JET PLANE CRASHES, BURNS AT BELLERIVE CLUB; BODY TAKEN FROM WRECKAGE

FIGHTER JUST MISSES HOMES IN PLUNGE ON TEST FLIGHT

After Take-Off From Lambert Field—Pilot
Was in Contact With Control Tower.

A jet fighter plane crashed and burned on the grounds of Bellerive Country Club at 2:15 p.m. today, barely missing three houses in the built-up residential section north of the grounds.

A body was removed from the wreckage a few minutes after the crash.

A spokesman for McDonnell Aircraft Corp., which made the plane for the Navy, identified the pilot as Albert Seawell Jr., a veteran of World War II and the war in Korea.

He lived with his wife and three children at 1030 Lindsay lane, Florissant.

The plane had just taken off from Lambert-St. Louis Field, about two and a half miles away, on a test flight. The company spokesman said Seawell deliberately controlled his dive and maneuvered to miss homes and automobiles.

The plane, heading southeast, crashed about 400 feet away from the McDonnell Provisional Boarding School, 8351 Florissant road, Normandy. Forty boys were playing in the yard and about 75 Sisters of the Divine Providence order were in the convent.

Dives From 3000 Feet.
The jet hit the ground and exploded about 300 yards from Geiger road, after coming down in a sharp dive from about 3000 feet, witnesses said.

A group of spectators gathered quickly, but they were kept at a distance by the intense heat of the fire. Police and firemen stopped nearby traffic.

Charles McCaughey, operator of a filling station at 8150 Florissant road, about a block and a half from the scene, said: "I heard a loud whistle, then a bang, and then the earth shook with a rumbling sound."

Pilot Radioed Tower.
St. Louis county police said they were informed that the pilot radioed the airport control tower shortly after the take-off that he was unable to gain altitude.

Three houses were missed by about 75 yards.

Carrier-Type Jet.
The plane was a Demon, a regular production line model in use on aircraft carriers, and was being given the test that is routine before release for use in the service.

The control tower operator said the plane went down, and watched as a plume of smoke rose after the explosion.

'Seemed to Have Motor Trouble.'
"The plane flew directly overhead at a height of about 50 feet. It was going more slowly than normal, and seemed to be having motor trouble," said Oliver Standley, who was sitting in his backyard at 9300 Velma avenue, Berkeley.

Most of the plane's fuselage was destroyed by fire, leaving sections of the motor. A piece of the motor came to rest about 20 feet west of Florissant road.

Near 95, Showers

Forecast for St. Louis and vicinity: Partly cloudy and continued hot tonight and tomorrow with scattered thundershowers; low temperature tomorrow morning about 75; high in afternoon near 95.

LEGAL FIGHT LIKELY OVER STATE TAX ORDER TO THE COUNTY

Council Tells Counselor
To Be Prepared to Resist — Commission
Chief Thinks 'They Are Bluffing.'

A legal fight between St. Louis county and the State Tax Commission was in prospect today over an order directing the county officials to increase the total assessed valuation of real estate by about 68 per cent.

Shortly before the order was issued by the commission at Jefferson City yesterday, the county council, at its regular meeting, directed the County Counselor to "be prepared" to resist the increase "with all legal means, to the end that if the council should decide to resist the order, the taxpayers of St. Louis county will be best protected."

At Jefferson City today, Chairman James M. Robertson of the tax commission said: "If the order is not complied with, we will turn the matter over to the attorney general to enforce it in the courts."

'I Think They Are Bluffing.'

St. Louis county is one of 26 in which the commission has said average level of real estate assessments must be brought up to 30 per cent of true value this year.

The commission, which decided to act after studying results of a three-year survey by public utilities, found that the average, assessments in St. Louis county were slightly more than 18 per cent of market value.

It directed that the total be increased by $300,455,559, to make a new total of $769,691,919 for urban and rural property.

The increase was broken down as follows: $234,381,234 on urban property, and $66,564,325 on rural.

Increase in Taxes.

If the order is enforced, there will be some increase in real estate taxes, but the amount of the increase for any individual taxpayer will be determined by taxing authorities in his district.

An increase would be necessary because the order has the effect of assigning to real estate a greater share of the tax load.

That is so because while real property values were ordered raised, assessments on other property were not. The other classes are public utilities, merchants and manufacturers, and personal property.

At its meeting yesterday the council unanimously adopted a motion by Harold D. Carey (Rep.), Sixth District, directing that the council should resist the order which would require a blanket increase in tax assessments.

Commission Stand.

The commission has adhered to the position that it is not "ordering a blanket increase"—but is leaving the method of compliance up to the county.

Council Chairman James A. Singer (Rep.), Fourth District, in commenting on the Carey motion.

death at the hands of the type of individual who would kill you for a dime."

Report on Fixed Races.

East St. Louis police were attempting to verify a report that Koening spread rumors about fixed races involving his own stable of horses. He accepted large sums of money from bettors wanting to get in on a "sure thing," it was reported, and then held the bets himself.

Koenig's horses which had been touted as certain winners would run out of the money, according to the report, and Koening would pocket the money bet with him. Some bettors allegedly became suspicious, discovered that Koening had not bet the money for them and attempted to get their money back.

Koenig was rumored to have obtained about $5000 from a group of Hot Springs (Ark.) bettors during the spring racing season there.

Some Doubt "Cheating" Theory.

Some persons familiar with Koening's operations were skeptical of the "cheating" theory, however. They pointed out that Koening, whose body was found in the trunk of his automobile June 22, would have been well to do if he had cheated bettors on the scale indicated by the reports. Instead, they said, he was deeply in debt, his automobile was heavily mortgaged and he had seemed to be a big spender.

Several men who knew Koening well said he was a victim of an economic squeeze which has hit the underworld in the St. Louis district because of crackdowns on illegal activity and a tightening of money in circulation.

Koenig's racing results information service for handbooks in the St. Louis district was established with the blessing of the Wortman syndicate, the Post-Dispatch was told.

As income from the rackets dwindled, the Post-Dispatch was told, some of Wortman's associates decided to eliminate Koening from the racket picture. They took over his racing results service April 1.

EMPLOYMENT SET RECORD IN JUNE, SAYS MITCHELL

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Secretary of Labor Mitchell told reporters today that employment rose in June to a new high.

At the same time, Mitchell said, the June employment figures to be released in detail tomorrow will show a "smaller than seasonal rise in unemployment." This, he said, will result in a seasonally adjusted unemployment level which would be the lowest in one and one-half years.

"It seems to me," Mitchell added, "that we can expect increased employment and declining unemployment in the fall. This should be the best year in history for American labor."

UNION ELECTRIC ST. LOUIS COUNTY ENGINEERS MEET TODAY IN DISPUTE IS ACCUSED OF PENNY-PINCHING

AFL Workers to Discuss Deadlock — Leaders Hope to Resume Negotiations.

AFL Operating Engineers who plant Union Electric Co. power plants will decide at meetings today what action to take in the deadlocked wage negotiations between the company and the union.

Union leaders and United States conciliators were hopeful negotiations would be resumed tomorrow. The previous wage contract expired last Thursday and the 1225 power house men have been working under an extension which can be terminated at any time.

Negotiations broke down last night, and union leaders made a report to night shift workers at a meeting in East St. Louis today. The 250 members present took a secret ballot on authorization of a strike.

The ballot box was sealed pending a similar vote by day shift men at a meeting tonight at Teamsters Hall, 4141 Forest Park avenue.

The Operating Engineers maintain three power plants in Missouri, three in Illinois and one at Keokuk, Ia. Workers at Keokuk and at Bagnell Dam will take the strike vote, with results to be reported to union headquarters here later.

St. Louis derives its electric power from the seven plants. The Missouri King-Thompson Act, under which the Governor can seize and operate a struck utility, would apply to the power plants within the state, but would not affect operations elsewhere.

A union spokesman said the operators reduced their original wage demand 50 per cent, but a company offer was still unacceptable. A settlement can be reached if the company raises its offer $80,000 a year, the spokesman added. The present wage rate is $2.21 an hour for a 40-hour week. The union demand and company offer were not made public.

Company officials said today they considered their offer "fair," and added that the company is willing to submit the wage issue to arbitration. The company is also in negotiations with two Electrical Workers unions, one representing outside distribution employees and the other office and clerical workers.

STRAITON VETOES REPEAL OF GRAND MARAIS PARK FEE

A bill which would have repealed the controversial 10-cent admission charge at Grand Marais Park near East St. Louis was vetoed by Gov. William G. Stratton today at Springfield, Ill.

St. Louis county is trying to get by with a "bargain basement economy" that will prove wasteful in the long run because of inadequate staff work and direction, M. Eugene Baughman, director of the St. Louis County Planning Commission, said last night.

Baughman, whose proposal for a county-wide metropolitan federation was published last May, discussed his recommendations before the St. Louis County Young Republican Club at the Coachman restaurant, 2119 Brentwood boulevard, Brentwood.

"Very few of the city halls being constructed will be large enough to take care of the official business of the new municipalities," he said. "Some facilities are going to have to be duplicated in the near future because of inadequate capacity, and improper location."

Baughman emphasized his conviction that the county should have a Board of Public Service, like the city of St. Louis. At present, he said, the County Supervisor, Council and 96 municipalities have no public works advisory staff.

As a result, Baughman said, St. Louis county is not getting its share of federal assistance funds and has lost many cases before the Missouri Service Commission on utility and transit rates.

He said no railroad grade separations of any significance had been constructed in the county for 18 years, except as part of state highway projects. One reason for this, he said, is that the county has no agency to prepare detailed drawings for submission to the Public Service Commission.

"St. Louis county," Baughman declared, "did not participate in drawing up the Malcolm Elliott report on expressways, with the result that there were three radial expressways terminating in the heart of the city of St. Louis and not one north-south artery, where federal aid could be used in St. Louis county."

He recalled that the Elliott report had been a joint effort of the city, the State Highway Commission and the United States Bureau of Public Roads.

Baughman's comprehensive plan for county development, set forth in a book, "Metropolitan Metamorphosis," called for setting up a federation that would plan on a county-wide basis for uniform zoning, highway construction and maintenance, mass transportation, garbage disposal, parks and traffic control.

New York Building Firm Named Plaza Area Technical Adviser

Paul Tishman Concern to Assist in Housing Being Financed by Private Capital.

Paul Tishman and Associates of New York, a building firm with broad experience, has been hired as technical adviser by a group proposing to construct housing in the downtown Plaza area now being cleared, it was announced today.

The firm was employed by the Urban Redevelopment Corp. of St. Louis, which plans to bid on land from the Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority for new housing to be financed by private capital.

Russell Gardner, president of the redevelopment corporation, said the concern was highly recommended. He said local architects, engineers, contractors, labor and materials will be used as much as possible.

Has Wide Experience.

The New York firm is headed by Paul Tishman, 54 years old, who has put up office buildings, department stores, factories, schools and hospitals, but is best known in the field of housing.

He has interested private capital in investing funds for building enterprises in connection with slum clearance in the New York area. Under a $3,750,000 contract with a group of 18 savings banks, he participated in development of Concord Village, a housing project in Brooklyn. He built Fleetchester Housing at Flushing, a $4,000,000 project in the same category.

He has developed a number of low-rent apartment projects for the New York City Housing Authority. The Roosevelt Hospital School of Nursing in New York, the Sarah Lawrence College arts building, the John

'HOT ROD' MOORE BEATS JAIL TERM ON APPEAL, FINED

Robert M. (Hot Rod) Moore was fined $100 and costs in circuit court at Linn, Mo., today after he entered a plea of guilty to a speeding charge on which he previously was sentenced to 90 days in jail and fined $100 in Brentwood. The case was taken to the Osage county circuit court on an appeal.

Moore, with a record of 24 traffic convictions in six years, entered the plea from another attorney, Henry G. Morris. Judge Joseph T. Tate assessed the fine and omitted a jail term over the protest of John F. Nangle, city attorney of Brentwood, who argued that the offense merited a jail sentence.

The appeal grew out of Moore's conviction in Brentwood police court last July 29 on a charge of speeding 65 miles an hour in a 20-mile speed zone.

Baby Dies After Race to Hospital.

HOCKER NAMED CHIEF COUNSEL OF SENATE GROUP

St. Louis Lawyer to Aid Subcommittee in Broad Study of Constitutional Rights.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 7—Appointment of Lon Hocker, former president of the St. Louis Bar Association, as chief hearings counsel of a Senate judicial subcommittee on constitutional rights was announced yesterday by United States Senator Thomas C. Hennings (Dem.) St. Louis.

Hocker, who is an advisor to the American Bar Foundation's project for preparation of a source book on American constitutional rights, will aid the subcommittee for several months in the initial phase of its work.

The committee is undertaking what Hennings described as a broad study and investigation of constitutional rights and "their possible erosion." The first hearings, scheduled to be held this fall, will deal with a general survey of constitutional rights.

Hennings said that probable areas for future committee investigation included wiretapping, use of professional paid witnesses by the Government, discharge of soldiers for activities and associations prior to military duty, post office department "censorship" in use of mails, and passport policies of the State Department.

Hennings said the committee might investigate also extension of the Government's security program to include workers in private industry and scientists working on unclassified, non-secret material in universities and research foundations.

In announcing selection of Hocker as counsel for the subcommittee, Hennings said the committee felt itself fortunate to obtain an attorney of his "stature and experience."

Hocker, who concluded his term as president of the St. Louis Bar Association last year, is a director, general counsel, and secretary of the Globe-Democrat Publishing Co.

for Rowland Hughes probably will be called later to explain why no mention of the First Boston Corp. was made in the Administration's documentation of the Dixon-Yates deal.

Use of FBI Denounced.

Meanwhile Democrats in Congress denounced as "a police state gesticulation... utterly ridiculous... terrible" the use of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to check on the intentions of officials of Memphis, Tenn., to build their own power plant rather than buy power from Dixon-Yates.

Under the Administration's plan the Dixon-Yates plant at West Memphis, Ark., would supply power through TVA lines to the Memphis area to make up for TVA-generated power supplied to atomic plants.

Senate Democrats demanded a full explanation from Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., as to why he directed the federal criminal law enforcement agency to find out whether Memphis officials really intend to build a municipal steam power plant.

Senator Kefauver said he would ask Brownell to appear soon before his subcommittee for questioning about "the authority, justification and wisdom of using the FBI to investigate the intentions" of Memphis officials.

The Democratic Senators said Brownell should make his study through the United States Attorney in Memphis instead of the FBI.

One influential Republican Senator said privately that Brownell's use of the FBI at Memphis was "politically unwise."

Senator John Sparkman (Dem., Alabama, who termed such use of the FBI as "utterly ridiculous," charged that it was nothing new for Brownell to employ the crack law officers "for purely political purposes."

"What business is it of theirs as to what the city of Memphis intends to do?" Sparkman asked. "Why can't Mr. Brownell call up the mayor and ask him?"

"I only hope the Attorney General will check the Dixon-Yates contract just as carefully."

Senator Albert Gore (Dem., Tennessee, charged that it was an outrage that the officials of "City in Free America cannot undertake to protect the interests of their city without being subjected to FBI investigation."

The FBI was created to "guard the nation's security and apprehend criminals," he said.

"It was never intended by Congress that the FBI be used as a gesticulation or political shock troops."

Senator A. S. Mike Monroney (Dem., Oklahoma, said Brownell's act was "terrible... a violation of intergovernmental relationships of the worst sort."

House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts expressed amazement that the Attorney General issued such an order.

"That is what would be expected in a police state," McCormack said.

Senator Clinton P. Anderson (Dem., New Mexico, commented that the Administration must feel that Memphis's plans are more criminal than possible espionage. He said that in recent weeks the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee, which he heads, tried and was able to get the FBI to go "into what we thought was an espionage case." Anderson did not elaborate, except to say the committee felt it might involve "an exchange of restricted data."

President Eisenhower said yesterday he will cancel the Dixon-Yates contract if current studies disclose no legal obstacles to Tax Commission order for an increase in property assessments, "you wouldn't get votes for a bond issue even if you changed the name of the highway to Davy Crockett and let all the children vote."

In other actions, appropriation bills were introduced to authorize hiring of 14 additional deputies as requested by Sheriff Arthur C. Mosley, at a cost of $19,950 for the rest of the year, and four additional jailers, at $6,408. Funds for employment of 24 deputies, who now have only civil duties, previously had been authorized by the council.

Also, County Counselor Herbert C. Funkhouser was directed to prepare an opinion delineating the duties of the sheriff's office and the new police department with respect to policing of school stop signs, moving of prisoners between the jail and courtrooms and hospitals and serving of warrants.

were eight or 10 years ago. Indeed, it is very difficult for me to estimate the result. It would be very, very grave and I think would give a totally new and unexpected lease of life to the Soviet, and they would then be riding the wave of the future very definitely. In my opinion, whereas we are now, the way it stands."

Dulles said the mutual security program is "greatly helping us to win the battle for peace and freedom in the world" and should not be stopped until the United States is assured of Russian intentions and capabilities by something stronger than words.

Dulles gave the committee a summary of the world situation as he saw it. He said the restoration of sovereignty to West Germany and its admission to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, along with the formation of the Western European Union, consolidated the free world position in Europe and "that success seems to have brought with it a series of other acts on the part of the Soviet Union, which indicate that they realize their old policies have failed and that they must seek new policies."

The first direct consequence of this European development was the signing of the Austrian treaty, under which the Russians agreed to withdraw their forces from Austria after balking on this point for eight years, Dulles said.

Then came the "pilgrimage" of the heads of the Soviet government to Belgrade to try to effect a reconciliation with the Yugoslavs. This Dulles said, is sure to have a great effect on the hold of the Russians on their European satellites.

De Facto Cease-Fire.
Dulles repeated there is now in the Formosa strait a "de facto cease-fire," and that this has not involved concessions by the United States or Nationalist China. Part of Dulles's discussion of the Formosa situation was off-the-record, nothing appeared in the testimony about the future intentions of Red China toward Formosa or the Chinese offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

The Secretary said it would be too optimistic to say the danger of South Viet Nam falling to the Communists has passed, but he regarded the situation as much better than several months ago and said the government of Premier Diem is gradually rallying the support of the people.

In his testimony Dulles stressed that the economic aid offered under the M.S.A. program is not in the nature of a hand-out to underdeveloped countries but that it advances the interests of the United States. He also pointed out that when Congress appropriates money for such purposes all of it is spent directly or indirectly in the United States.

"Approximately three-quarters of the sum is immediately spent here," he said. "The other quarter is spent abroad, but the people who get the dollars for that purpose in turn give them to other people who spend them in the United States."

SENATE APPROVES REWARDS FOR ATOMIC IMPORT TIPS

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—The Senate today passed and sent to President Eisenhower a bill offering rewards up to $500,000 to any person who furnishes "original" information to the Government on illegal manufacture or importation of nuclear weapons.

In a report, the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy said that "since the atomic weapon monopoly of the United States ended, it has been possible for an enemy to smuggle nuclear devices or special nuclear material into this country and thereby destroy vital targets prior to or following the commencement of hostilities."

The President himself would have to approve any reward above $50,000.

CEMENT-LADEN FREIGHTER
SINKS; CREW BELIEVED SAFE

MIAMI, July 7 (UPI)—A cement-laden freighter with 33 men aboard went down in heavy seas late yesterday off the coast of Haiti, the Coast Guard said it learned today.

Officials reported that "some or all" of the crew of the Lake Traverse had scrambled into two lifeboats. The survivors were trying to reach Puerto Paix, Haiti.

The message to the Coast Guard in Miami, about 700 miles northwest of the disaster scene, did not specify whether any of the crew members lost their lives, but officials said apparently all were saved. The Lake Traverse radioed yesterday afternoon it was taking on water badly and asked for help.

CALIFORNIA WOMEN WINNERS OF POWDER PUFF DERBY

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 7 (AP)—Mrs. Frances S. Bera of Los Angeles, and her sister, Mrs. Edna Bower, of Long Beach, Calif., today were announced as the winners of the 2800-mile ninth annual powder puff derby from Long Beach to Springfield. First prize is worth $800 to the winner.

Winners were announced after computation of handicap standings.

The $500 second prize went to Mrs. Alice Roberts of Phoenix, Ariz., and her co-pilot, Iris Critchell of Palos Verdes Estates, Calif.

Third place, worth $400, went to Mrs. Esther H. Gardiner of Waterford, Conn., and her co-pilot, Mrs. Clarissa H. Holcomb of Westfield, Mass. The $200 fourth-place prize went to Mrs. Margaret Callaway of Fort Worth, Tex., and Miss Lindy Boyes, her co-pilot, of Piedmont, Calif.

PAY RISE BILL FOR STAFF OF ELECTION BOARD SIGNED

JEFFERSON CITY, July 7—A bill authorizing increased salaries for the staff of the St. Louis Board of Election Commissioners was signed today by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly. It will become effective Aug. 29.

Salary increases authorized are: chief clerk, from $4920 a year to $5920; assistant chief clerk, from $4720 to $5720; six other assistants, as determined by the board, from $3860 to $4160; 36 other staff assistants, from $3420 to $3720 and all other assistants, from $10 a day to $11.50.

Another bill approved would give special cities of less than 10,000 population power to pay for garbage and refuse disposal from city general revenue, and authority to issue bonds to pay for installation of garbage and sewage disposal plants.

SAFeway CHAIN INDICTED ON ANTI-TRUST CHARGES

WASHINGTON, July 7 (UP)—A federal grand jury at Fort Worth, Tex., today indicted the big grocery chain of Safeway Stores, Inc., and two officers on charges of anti-trust law violations. The individuals named are Ligan A. Warren, Oakland, Calif., Safeway president, and Earl Cliff of Dallas, manager of Safeway's Dallas division.

A three-count criminal indictment, announced by the Department of Justice in Washington charges that Safeway attempted to monopolize the retail grocery business in various cities in Texas and New Mexico.

It charged also that Safeway sold goods in its Texas stores at lower prices than it charged in other parts of the country and below cost prices in order to destroy competition.

GRANDVAL FLIES TO AFRICA TO TAKE TOP MOROCCO POST

PARIS, July 7 (AP)—Gilbert Grandval flew to his new post as French resident general of the terror-ridden North African protectorate of Morocco today.

Grandval, 51 years old, has spent nearly 10 years in the delicate job of top French representative in the Saar, the autonomous German-speaking border territory which France wants to keep detached from Germany.

He replaces another career diplomat, Francis Lacoste, who was sent to Morocco a year ago after the French replaced pro-Nationalist Sultan Mohammed Ben Youssef with his more pliable uncle, Mohammed Ben Moulay Arafat. Lacoste was unable to halt the Nationalists' campaign for Ben Youssef's return and French withdrawal.

MAN MIRED IN MUD; CALL FOR AID IGNORED AS JOKE

ELKHART, Ind., July 7 (AP)—A toll road commission soil inspector was mired in the mud up to his hips for nearly an hour because fellow workers thought he was joking when he called for help.

James Batulis, 24 years old, South Bend, got stuck Tuesday while inspecting a part of the northern Indiana toll road route near Elkhart, where bulldozers had made an excavation which recent rains filled with water. By the time Batulis convinced his co-workers he wasn't joking, he had sunk so deeply they couldn't pull him out. They called Elkhart firemen and sheriff's deputies, who extricated him.

FEDERAL OFFICIAL ADMITS HELPING GIRL ENTER U.S.

G. V. McDavitt, Agency Security Chief, in Row Over German Immigrant.

WASHINGTON, July 7 (UP)—George V. McDavitt, security chief for the Small Business Administration, admitted today he sponsored the immigration of a German girl with whom he was accused of having a "liaison" in Germany.

McDavitt conceded his part in the case in a clash with members of a Senate Civil Service subcommittee. He said "Miss X," whose name was not revealed, "wanted to become an American citizen, but she's beginning to wonder now. She said she never saw anything like this in Germany, even under Hitler."

McDavitt also said he ran for Congress in New Jersey in 1950 on a platform which included a proposal to stop all immigration. This was shortly before he went to Germany as an employee of the Displaced Persons Commission, screening immigrants to the United States, and met "Miss X."

The subcommittee, which is investigating operation of the Administration's personnel security program, also questioned McDavitt about how he happened to rent a room from Allen Zoll here. It said Zoll was an official of American Patriots, Inc., an organization cited by the attorney general as Fascist.

Building in Zoll's Control. McDavitt said he was looking for a room in the spring of 1954, and rented one in a building which was owned or controlled by Zoll. He said it was not his job to investigate his landlord.

The subcommittee said McDavitt was listed in 1947 as second vice president of another organization linked with Zoll, the American Anti-Communist Association.

McDavitt said he met Zoll about 1949 while making about 300 anti-Communist speeches across the country. He said he paid rent to Zoll, and might have dined at Zoll's home.

When the subcommittee asked why he left his post with the Displaced Persons Commission in Germany, McDavitt read a letter from one of his superiors saying he left because of lack of schools for his two teen-age daughters.

But subcommittee counsel Paul Hadlick read another letter—from W. J. Fauceite, now a Durham (N.C.) insurance man, who was McDavitt's immediate superior. Fauceite said McDavitt "formed a liaison with a local girl... after his wife and teen-age daughters arrived, the situation deteriorated rapidly, and caused no little embarrassment."

"I don't know what you mean by 'liaison,'" said McDavitt. "I met local girls."

He said he is now divorced. Shows Him Name.

Hadlick showed him the name of "Miss X" written on a slip of paper.

"You are now delving into my personal life," McDavitt said.

He read a Supreme Court decision which said congressional inquiry into private lives should be limited.

"This pertains to your work as a security investigator," Hadlick said. "Did you associate with Miss X?"

McDavitt said it was a private matter and he wanted an attorney.

The wrangle went on until Senator Matthew M. Neely (Dem.), West Virginia, snapped. "I don't care about your non-sensical explanations."

McDavitt never answered that question directly. He said "Miss X" came to the United States as a visitor, but wanted to come here as a permanent resident. So he signed a form as her sponsor, guaranteeing her a job as companion to his 87-year-old mother, he said.

"I'd do it for anyone," he added.

After another shouted exchange with Neely, who accused him of evading answers, McDavitt said the girl did not live with his mother but took a job in "a financial institution."

GOVERNOR OF MAURITIUS FLIES TO LONDON FOR TALKS

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius, July 7 (AP)—Sir Robert Scott, governor of Mauritius, and eight members of the legislative council left by air for London today for talks on changes in the British island colony's constitution.

The delegation included four members of the Labor party, two members of the Mauritian party and two council members nominated by the government.

Before they left the Indian ocean island east of Madagascar a petition was circulated among Mauritian Chinese protesting that they were not invited to send a representative. The Chinese form a small minority of the island's 500,000 people, who are mostly Hindus.

NEW JURY WILL TAKE UP BARRACKS HOUSING PROJECT

An investigation into operations of the veterans housing project at Jefferson Barracks, begun by the previous St. Louis county grand jury, will be taken up today by the present jury. Prosecuting Attorney Edward Garnholz, whose assistants have been checking records of the housing project, said the chief purpose of the inquiry is to determine whether there were "any discrepancies."

The purchase of propane gas for the 800 family units and the handling of funds earmarked for schools have been among the matters taken up so far.

CAREER OFFICERS ARE BLAMED FOR WEAK RESERVES

What He Calls WPA
— 'West Point Protective Association.'

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Representative E. Keith Thomson (Rep., Wyoming), told Senators today that the military reserve program "is dangerously weak" because most career military officers in the Pentagon want it that way.

Thomson, a combat infantry commander and instructor in World War II, said experienced young reserve officers were not called back in larger numbers in the Korean war "because it would break up the playhouse for promotion which we called WPA."

He explained that WPA in Army slang meant "West Point Protective Association."

First Witness.

Thomson was the first witness before the Senate Armed Services committee as it opened public hearings on the controversial national reserve plan, pushed through the House after weeks of controversy. President Eisenhower has called the reserve program "vital."

Senator Richard Russell (Dem., Georgia), chairman of the committee, in opening the session, sharply criticized the Administration plan approved by the House, saying it still would place the burden for active duty on young men who had served two years under the draft or a longer period of volunteer enlistment.

Russell said: "Our prior-service men find themselves right where they were at the time of Korea. (They are) the only men available in this great nation of ours to shoulder the heavy burden of an active combat-ready reserve."

Says It Is Not 'New Approach.' Russell protested against terming the Administration program a new approach to the problem, asserting that as has been the case in the past the reserve burden will fall on men who volunteered or were drafted for military duty.

He did not indicate he would oppose the bill, which is designed to increase the trained reserve to 2,900,000 men by 1960.

Russell contrasted the situation with that he said was contemplated when the Senate voted for universal military training four years ago, only to have it die in the House. The aim of that program, he said, was to build up a combat-ready reserve without calling on veterans.

"So let me make this one thought crystal clear," he said, "if, today, the situation facing the nation is so grave that we must force this added burden on these men who have already served . . . if the situation is in fact that grave, then perhaps we have no alternative, and we must completely re-orient our planning . . ."

New Requirement.

"But . . . I must insist that this obligation be imposed as a new requirement, and not as something casually adopted under the guise of 'putting some teeth' into existing law, and implementing an alleged congressional intent that is more fantasy than fact."

Russell questioned "the propriety, or the equity, of imposing the major part of the reserve responsibility on the shoulders of our prior service men—the equity of forcing these men to participate in reserve training activities in addition to their basic liability for mobilization assignment and recall in time of war."

He asserted also that an erroneous impression has been "created in the public mind that the nation's military reserve has been deteriorating, and that it has suddenly become dangerously weaker than at any time in our past history."

Actually, he said, the "nation's military reserve today is larger and more efficient than any time in our history."

Age Amendment.

Earlier, Thomson said he planned to urge Senate committee to retain in the bill his amendment to require that youths who volunteer for a new special training program be at least 19 or have graduated from high school.

Thomson said "The Pentagon is opposing this but I think they are wrong."

Thomson persuaded the House, before it passed the bill, to adopt his amendment.

The Administration had proposed that up to 250,000 young men from 17 to 18½ years be permitted to volunteer yearly for this training. They would get six months active instruction and then be required to serve for 7½ years in an active reserve organization.

As long as their training service was satisfactory, they would be deferred from the regular draft. The draft requires 24 months active duty, plus another three years in an active reserve unit and one year in the inactive reserve.

BODY OF 8-YEAR-OLD GIRL FOUND ON CHICAGO SIDEWALK

CHICAGO, July 7 (AP)—The bruised body of an 8-year-old girl who had been missing since Monday was found today on the sidewalk under a viaduct on the South Side.

The girl was identified as Mary Manzo, who had been missing since her mother, Mrs. Lucy Manzo, sent her to a drug store with 25 cents to buy a baby bottle nipple.

Coroner Walter E. McCarron said this "is definitely a sex case."

Six Planes to Fly to Antarctic In Advance of U.S. Expedition

Navy Craft to Make Trip in November to Prepared Runways—Ships to Be Spaced Along Route.

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—The Navy intends to fly six planes from New Zealand to the Antarctic continent next November in an early phase of the planned big Antarctic expedition.

The planes will land on snow runways prepared previously by crews of six Navy ships which will go to the Antarctic earlier. A Navy spokesman said today the planes will consist of two P-2V Neptune patrol planes, two R-5DS (C-54 type) and two R-4DS (DC-3) with special fuel tanks and other equipment to extend range.

A task force of surface ships will be deployed along the 2040 nautical mile air route between Christchurch, New Zealand, and McMurdo sound, the point in the Antarctic where the runway will be built. They will serve as navigation aids and as rescue vessels if needed over a route where Antarctic storms make flying as difficult as anywhere in the world.

The six big planes will fly out over the same route and head for home sometime in February or March.

The White House had announced previously that the flight—part of a Little America naval expedition to be headed by R. Adm. Richard E. Byrd—would not take off until October 1956. That first announcement said the Navy would launch the three-year expedition Nov. 1, 1955, when five ships will sail under Byrd.

the advancement of the flight date.

Capt. George Dufek, task force commander, now is in Europe discussing details of the "International Geophysical Year" program in the Antarctic in which several major powers will join in scientific studies. Nations participating in the program include the United States, Britain, France, the Soviet Union, Australia, New Zealand, Chile, Argentina, Norway, South Africa and Belgium.

FREEZER DOES NOT DEFROST AUTOMATICALLY, G.M. SAYS

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission said yesterday that General Motors Corp. has agreed "not to represent that the food freezer section of its cyclamatic Frigidaire defrosts automatically."

FTC said the cyclamatic Frigidaire contains two compartments, one a freezer for storing frozen foods and the other a cold storage section. FTC said only the cold storage section defrosts automatically.

The announcement said that the agreement did not constitute an admission by General Motors of violation of law.

HUSBAND FATALLY -STABBED; WIFE HELD

Defense During Argument.

Noelle Lee Bartley, a painter living at 1002 Mississippi avenue, was stabbed to death by her husband at their home yesterday, police reported. She said she did it in self defense during an argument.

Mrs. Bartley said she returned home yesterday and found her husband and two other men there drinking.

As she started to prepare dinner, she related, she told Bartley to send his friends away and he then threatened to kill her with a pocket knife. He pushed her several times, she said, and she suffered cuts on both shoulders and the left arm. Finally, she warned him not to push her again, saying she would kill him, and when he did she struck him once in the chest with a paring knife, she told police.

She was booked suspected of homicide, and held for an inquest. She was arrested Monday on a drunkenness complaint.

Four Injured by Lightning.
NEW ALBANY, Ind., July 7 (AP)—Three boys were injured by lightning yesterday and a policeman who went to the scene was injured by lightning that struck at almost the same spot. The boys were identified as Kenneth Wall, 13 years old; Alonzo Elliott, 14; and Carl Adkins, 15, and the policeman as George Lampkin. All were taken to a hospital.

1700 ARE TO BE LAID OFF AT STUDEBAKER-PACKARD

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 7 (AP)—About 1700 hourly rated workers will be laid off indefinitely at the Studebaker-Packard Corp. plant here.

Clarence Smith, manager at the Studebaker plant, announced yesterday the layoff resulted from the recent installation of new work standards which reduced the need for manpower.

The layoff will reduce the work force to 9000.

4TH OF RED CHINA'S BUDGET FOR DEFENSE

Money Needed Because 'Imperialists Encircle' Country, Says Official.

TOKYO, July 7 (AP)—Red China will spend a fourth of its 1955 budget on defense, Vice Premier Li Hsien Nien, minister of finance, told the second national Peoples' Congress yesterday.

The expenditure is necessary, he said, because the imperialists were still encircling China and she had to protect her independence and national construction, liberate Taiwan (Formosa) and safeguard her sovereignty and territorial integrity.

The broadcast gave no breakdown or amplification on defense expenditures.

It listed total revenue in the 1955 national budget at 31,192,420,000 yuan. There is no official exchange rate between the Communist yuan and the United States dollar, but the latest unofficial figure is one yuan to 40 United States cents. Total revenue would be the equivalent of $12,467,680,000, unofficially.

Li set expenditures at 29,736,720,000 yuan ($11,894,688,000), leaving a budget surplus of 1,455,800,000 yuan ($582,280,000). He said 60.67 per cent of China's 1955 budget would go toward economic construction and social, cultural and educational services.

Vice Premier Li Fu Chun, chairman of Red China's planning commission, finished the report he began Tuesday on the nation's second five-year plan, now in its third year.

He blamed what he called "leftover capitalism" for the time Red China is taking to reshape the Chinese economy to the Soviet pattern. He said capitalism must be abolished but conceded it might take half a century.

JAP REDS REPORTED ORDERED TO ADOPT 'LEGAL TACTICS'

TOKYO, July 7 (AP)—National police headquarters said today it had seized a secret directive ordering Communist party members in Japan to dissolve "military organizations" and adopt "legal tactics" because of "one special development, concerning which cardholders are forbidden to make any kind of speculation or discussion."

The last drastic switch in Japanese Communism came in 1930 when the Cominform attacked Sanzo Nozaka, top Japanese Communist strategist and advocate of the "sweet-talk-and-go-slow" policy. Nozaka and the Japanese party then went underground. Most of the party's leaders and 4500 members have been in hiding since.

EISENHOWER ADVICE TO ZHUKOV RECALLED

Interpreter Tells of Warning on Germany Made in 1945.

NEW YORK, July 7 (UP)—President Eisenhower told Soviet Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov

nearly 10 years ago that the solution of the German problem might determine the future course of history and warned against making the country a political football.

This was reported yesterday by Paul P. Roudakoff, who as an Army major served as the then active general's interpreter at his last conversation with Zhukov.

The meeting took place the night of Nov. 7, 1945, just before General Eisenhower left his post as supreme Allied commander in Europe to return to the United States to become Army Chief of Staff.

Roudakoff gave his version of the meeting in an article entitled "Ike and Zhukov, Minutes of Their Last Meeting," in Collier's magazine.

The former interpreter said that Mr. Eisenhower, during the conversation, won Zhukov's permission for American correspondents to enter the Soviet zone of Germany to gather information for stories.

He also told Zhukov that the integrity and good will of the victorious Allies was being put to an acid test in Germany. He suggested that Zhukov carry his thoughts to then Premier Stalin and urge him to play above board with Germany or face the "ugly consequences," Roudakoff related.

Zhukov was quoted by Roudakoff as agreeing wholeheartedly with General Eisenhower.

After the meeting, Roudakoff said, the General told him he wanted more than anything else to go home, retire and fish. He was quoted as saying the Army life of being constantly on the move and away from his family was hectic and hard in many ways.

40 billion lire ($64,000,000). Eleven firms were charged with smuggling huge quantities of gold into Italy.

Authorities said other transactions involved United States dollars, British pounds and Swiss francs. Italy maintains tight controls over the export and import of foreign currencies.

CITIZENS GROUP SAYS FDA NEEDS MORE MONEY AND MEN

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—The Food and Drug Administration lacks enough money and men to do its job of protecting the public health, a citizens' advisory committee reported yesterday.

The committee of prominent citizens, appointed by Secretary of Welfare Hobby and supported by congressional funds, said Congress has given the agency "meager financial support" in recent years. It noted that the agency's funds were cut in the last two fiscal years, while its responsibilities grew.

It also had some criticism for the Food and Drug Administration itself, saying it has failed to develop an adequate educational program for the food and drug industry and the public.

The committee was headed by G. Cullen Thomas, vice president of General Mills, Inc.

$19,000,000 Canadian Wheat Sale To Poland Starts Bitter Dispute

Opposition Says St. Laurent Misled House of Commons, Opposes 'Gifts or Quasi Gifts' to Unfriendly Nations.

OTTAWA, July 7 (AP)—A deal for sale of $19,000,000 worth of Canadian wheat to Poland, largely financed by a government-guaranteed bank loan, has plunged Canada's Parliament into bitter controversy.

The opposition Progressive Conservatives, trying to block the deal, charge Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and Trade Minister C. D. Howe, misled the House of Commons in stating that the deal is incomplete, while the grain dealer who negotiated it says it was finished two weeks ago.

Progressive Conservative Leader George Drew contends the transaction—Canada's largest with any Iron Curtain country since World War II and its first sale of wheat to any of them—will prove to be at the cost of Canadian taxpayers.

Only 15 per cent of the price is to be paid in cash, the remainder being provided by a Canadian bank loan guaranteed by the government.

"If gifts or quasi gifts are to be made," Drew said, "let them be made to friendly countries."

St. Laurent, leader of the dominant Liberals, said yesterday he did not think the sale had been completed.

Later, however, informants said the government's Export Credits Insurance Corporation was instructed by the Cabinet to underwrite the sale.

Charles Swartz, president of Northern Sales, Ltd., Winnipeg grain dealers, said he completed negotiations for sale of 9,250,000 bushels of wheat with a Polish government official in Ottawa two weeks ago. He said his firm's representative now is in Poland completing shipping arrangements.

Swartz credited Trade Minister Howe for the transaction, saying, "He gave it a lot of thought—so far as we are concerned it is a straight business deal."

St. Laurent said he believed Poland would be able to pay off the loan. He admitted that outbreak of war might prevent this, but said he did not think war was in the offing.

St. Laurent also said a private exporter of butter to a European country will pay 37 cents a pound for government butter instead of the regular price of 56 cents. The European country was understood to be Czechoslovakia.

$16,000 Stolen From Pocket. NORTH WEBSTER, Ind., July 7 (UP)—Ed Henwood, 82 years old, told police yesterday that two women grabbed his life savings of $16,000 from his hip pocket while he was pulling weeds in his garden.

It's much more obvious when you don't wear a Zenith Hearing Aid

Perhaps you are one of the millions who suspect that your hearing is not what it used to be. Or one of the millions fully aware of a definite hearing loss.

In either case, you have noticed how hard it is to keep the secret. How often you catch yourself saying "what did you say?" How often you feel "left out" of conversation you strain to hear.

How obvious to those who are near to you—those who want you to hear all they say, just as you want to hear them. Far more obvious indeed, than when you choose and wear a Zenith Hearing Aid, and really hear everything. Instantly, you are marked as a considerate, intelligent person. The embarrassment is gone. Confidence comes back. Silence, doubt, suspicion are gone forever.

Get Your Physician's Advice

If your physician says a hearing aid will help you, follow his recommendation. Enjoy Zenith's finest quality in the all-transistor "75-X" Hearing Aid for only $75... other tubeless, transistor Zenith Aids with special features or extra power, $100 and $125. Operating cost as low as 15¢ a month.

Remember, all makes of hearing aids cost about the same to manufacture. Yet top-quality Zenith Aids do not sell for $250 to $300—as do many others—because they do not carry a high mark-up for so-called "selling expenses." No referral commissions are paid by us, so you can be sure that a friend or physician has your best interest at heart when recommending a Zenith.

Zenith's 5 air-conduction models offer 432 individual power-tone response adjustments. You get the one best suited to your hearing loss—no extra charge, no hidden "fitting" costs!

10-Day Money-Back Trial

Try any Zenith Aid for 10 days in the privacy of your own home... try it anywhere, everywhere! You must be satisfied. Full-Year Warranty. Five-Year Service Plan. Stock earmold provided; custom earpiece or bone conduction device at small added cost. Your Zenith Hearing Aid dealer is listed in your classified telephone directory. PRIMATE BACKS PERON'S PLEA FOR INTERNAL PEACE Letter Urging Catholics to Heed President's Request Ordered Read at Masses.

BUENOS AIRES, July 7 (UP)—Cardinal Santiago Luis Copello, primate of the Roman Catholic Church in Argentina, urged all Catholics today to heed President Peron's plea for internal peace and harmony.

He ordered that a pastoral letter be read at all masses Sunday signifying support of Peron's plea for a political truce.

The cardinal, in effect, called for an end to church-state friction. He declared that "peace and harmony among our citizens is our greatest aspiration, but these noble longings for union and peace can only be realized if the causes which have created discontent and have divided our citizens are eliminated from among us."

He repeated instructions issued Dec. 1, 1954, which stated "the faithful should not participate in acts purporting to be of a religious nature if they have not been previously approved by church authorities."

Yesterday the new interior minister, Oscar Albreu, promised that opposition parties will have access to the radio and press providing they "place themselves within the bounds of pacification and harmony."

The Radical party, which holds the only opposition seats in Congress, had responded to Peron's call for a political truce by demanding radio time to reply to the president.

In Montevideo, Uruguay, the leaders of the large group of Argentine civilian and military exiles said in a published statement that while they are not opposed to political peace in Argentina, they refuse to "become voluntary actors in a reconciliation farce designed only to save the (Peron) dictatorship, already in a state of bankruptcy."

Peron, the statement said, has lost the support of the army and of public opinion and has been "deprived of his principal aggressive weapon, the General Labor Confederation."

GETS 60 DAYS, FINED $280 ON 11 TRAFFIC COUNTS

Hughie Lee Ross, 3140 Pine street, was fined $280 and sentenced to 60 days in the Workhouse yesterday after he pleaded guilty of 11 traffic violations.

Police testified that Ross, a Negro, drove his automobile 75 miles an hour on the Express Highway Monday. When pursued by police, Ross drove off the highway at Vandeventer avenue and abandoned the machine near South Corpton avenue and Market street. He was arrested later, at the home of a friend.

When Police Judge Robert G. Dowd asked Ross to explain his driving, he replied, "I just didn't want to get caught."

RESHEVSKY SEEKS CHANCE AT WORLD CHESS CROWN

MOSCOW, July 7 (UP)—Samuel Reshevsky who defeated Mikhail Iotvinnik, Soviet world chess champion 2½ to 1½, in the United States-Russian team match, called last night for a crack at the title. The team match ended yesterday, the Russians swamping the Americans, 25 to 7.

International Chess Federation rules provide that the only way challengers can earn the right to a title match is by winning interzonal qualifying rounds. The Americans feel that so much time, energy and travel costs would be consumed that it would put an unfair burden on Reshevsky. The Soviet reply delivered in numerous forms by players and officials was in essence: "No."

Holland's Dr. Max Euwe, former world champion who served as chief referee at the Soviet-American team match, said that under the present rules it might take Reshevsky "as much as nine years to get through the challenge rounds."

24-HOUR NATION-WIDE STRIKE IN CHILE AGAINST LIVING COST

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 7 (AP)—The government alerted troops for trouble today as a 24-hour nation-wide general strike protesting against high living costs got under way.

The Central Labor Union, which ordered the walkout, claimed it would pull out 1,300,000 workers. However, those in Chile's largest industry, the copper companies, said they had no grievance and would not strike. They got wage increases last fall.

The walkout came after some 40,000 employees of government-owned railways, buses and communications had been striking for a week over wage demands. That labor dispute drove the Chilean peso down sharply on the Santiago exchange.

SOUND BARRIER PILOT APOLOGIZES TO LONDONERS

LONDON, July 7 (AP)—A test pilot who startled Londoners out of their sleep with an unscheduled burst through the sound barrier apologized last night for the trouble he had caused.

Dickie Martin, pilot for the Gloster Aircraft Co., was test-flying a twin-jet delta-winged Javelin over London early Tuesday at a routine 700 miles an hour.

Suddenly Martin's oxygen tube got tangled in his parachute harness. When he tried to free it, the plane swerved, gathered speed and went through the sound barrier.

Frightened Londoners phoned police that a bomb had gone off. Sailors on the river Thames prepared to abandon their ships, convinced the boilers had burst. Scotland Yard made extensive inquiries but could find no explanation.

The Gloster company finally got in touch with the Air Ministry to explain what had happened and relay Martin's apologies.

EX-PRIEST TO STAY IN U.S. BUT WITHOUT PRESIDENT'S OK

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Without the approval of President Eisenhower, the privilege of living permanently in the United States was granted yesterday to a priest who left the Roman Catholic Church, became a Baptist minister and married an American school teacher.

Aniceto Mario Sparagna, 42 years old, who came from Italy and now lives in Vincetown, N.J., is the central figure in this unusual situation.

The White House announced a bill granting permanent residence to the clergyman became law at midnight without the President's signature. A bill becomes law if the President fails either to sign it or veto it within 10 days. The White House gave no explanation of why the President declined to act.

The immigration and naturalization service planned to deport Sparagna on the ground he made fraudulent statements in obtaining a visa to enter this country as a Non quota immigrant in 1950.

Without the approval of President Eisenhower, the privilege of living permanently in the United States was granted yesterday to a priest who left the Roman Catholic Church, became a Baptist minister and married an American school teacher.

Benton Park Families Gather To Hear Plans for Neighborhood

Mayor Tucker, Former Resident of Area, Says Rehabilitation Will Be Started by January.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

Residents of the Benton park neighborhood, young and old, gathered last night at the park to hear about plans for the progress in the rehabilitation of their neighborhood.

During the course of the evening they also reminisced with their neighbors, joined in a few choruses of "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," and watched their children playing on the freshly-painted swings.

They heard Mayor Raymond R. Tucker say the city planned to spend $100,000 on improvements to the park and the nearby Carnegie playground. He said the work would be well under way by January.

The Mayor recalled that as a boy of 10 in 1907, he had lived for a year in the 3100 block of South Jefferson avenue, across the street west of the park. "I roller skated here," he said, "most likely on these very same sidewalks."

Joint Venture. Rehabilitation of the neighborhood, designated the Cherokee area, is a joint venture by the city and the residents. Under the program, the city enforces laws requiring owners to bring their property up to certain standards of repair. The city then provides funds to improve recreation facilities, streets, lighting, traffic flow and other things which will make the neighborhood a better place in which to live.

Although detailed figures are not available, it is estimated that the cost of improving the homes by householders may run to $750,000. Outlays by the city may total $500,000. Since the program depends on neighborhood co-operation, a timetable has not been established, although city officials hope it will be completed within three or four years.

About 9500 persons live in the area, which covers 66 blocks, extending in an irregular pattern east and west from South Jefferson avenue. One part extends north to Gravois avenue, and another goes south to Chipewa street.

Most of the homes are two-family brick flats, averaging about 60 years old. About 65 per cent are in good repair, 9 per cent need minor improvements and 26 per cent need major repairs, city officials estimate.

The Cherokee area is one of two pilot projects in the city's neighborhood rehabilitation program, for which $4,000,000 was voted in the $110,639,000 bond program in May. Some funds also are available from the 1944 bond issue.

Role of the $16,395,000 public school bond issue, also voted in May, was outlined by Mrs. Irma H. Friede, president of the Board of Education. Modernization projects, financed with bond money, are planned for nearly every school in the city, she said.

'Great Plans' in View. Bernard Blaydes, chairman of the Cherokee Council for a Better Community, which sponsored last night's meeting, declared, "We have great plans for our neighborhood, and we will make them work." He said "citizen enthusiasm" was essential for success of the program.

Citizen enthusiasm was evident among many members of the audience. Steve Gibala, a paper box worker who started a rehabilitation project of his own four years ago when he bought a four-family flat at 2100 Wyoming street, spoke warmly of the neighborhood plan.

"When I bought," he told the Post-Dispatch, "that house was in terrible shape. I put some work in there, and I spent some money. Now it is in A-1 condition." Gibala hopes the program will be successful.

FINAL $32,000 TV PRIZE WORTH ONLY $12,000 AFTER TAX

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 7—If Mrs. Catherine E. Kreitzer doubles the $32,000 she's already won on the television show, "The $64,000 Question," it would be worth only an extra $12,000 or so to her.

She is a contestant on the recently introduced television quiz program that allows participants to double their prize money every time they answer a question correctly until they reach $64,000.

An additional tax of about $20,000 on her next $32,000 would be assessed by the Federal Government if the 54-year-old Camp Hill (Pa.) Bible reader hits the jackpot next Tuesday night.

If Mrs. Kreitzer decides to keep the $32,000 she won last Tuesday on the show, Uncle Sam's cut will be about $12,000. A contestant may elect to stop at any time and keep the money he has won.

In the event Mrs. Kreitzer tries the big question and fails, she gets a Cadillac automobile as a consolation prize.

This will cost her about $680 in additional taxes.

The tax computations were made by Ernest J. Sauber, internal revenue service district director in Chicago.

"We always get our share," he said.

Had Mrs. Kreitzer stopped two weeks ago when she had won $8000, the tax would have amounted to about $2600.

INTERN TRAINING DIRECTOR

Dr. Jack Barrow, 8587 Colonial lane, Ladue, has been appointed director of intern and resident training and of the employees' health service at Deaconess Hospital, it was announced today.

Dr. Barrow is completing a National Research Council fellowship in medicine at Barnes Hospital. He is a native of Carbondale, Ill., and served 33 months in the United States Navy Medical Corps.

HEARING ON FRED SAIGH TAX SETTLEMENT SET NOV. 16

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 7—A Government motion to withdraw a stipulation settling tax claims of $276,328 against Fred M. Saigh, former owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, and several associates, has been set for hearing before the United States Tax Court Nov. 16.

The hearing was scheduled yesterday, but a continuance was granted at the request of the Internal Revenue Service and attorneys for Saigh, a court official said. The Internal Revenue Service sought a postponement of the settlement of the Saigh case pending the outcome of a federal grand jury investigation at St. Louis of alleged tax scandals during the Truman Administration. The grand jury has recessed until September.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS BUILDERS, UNION TO HOLD WAGE TALK

A contract negotiations meeting of the Southern Illinois Builders Association, representing contractors, and AFL carpenters will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Broadview Hotel, East St. Louis. Federal conciliators will participate.

The meeting will be the first since work on major construction projects in St. Clair, Madison and other Southern Illinois counties was stopped last Friday by a strike of about 750 workers.

AFL CARPENTERS AND SHEETMETAL WORKERS

Approximately 500 carpenters on strike now receive $320 an hour. They rejected an offer of a 25-cent pay rise over a two-year period, and are demanding a 30-cent increase and a three-year contract. Sheetmetal workers, who belong to the Tri-County Sheet Metal Association, rejected a 20-cent hourly increase over a two-year period, and are asking for a one-year contract with a 15-cent pay rise and establishment of a vacation fund.

CITY WANTS QUARRY FILLED, WILL PERMIT FREE DUMPING

Non-combustible materials, including earth, bricks and rubble, may be dumped free of charge at a city-owned quarry at Minnesota avenue and Macder street in South St. Louis, Director of Streets and Sewers Frank Kriz announced today.

A city employee will be on duty at the quarry from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays to supervise dumping. No dumping will be allowed outside those hours or days, Kriz said.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Thurs., July 7, 1955 13A

somehow of a nuisance because of malodorous fumes and rats, he explained. The quarry was used by the city as a dump before the south side incinerator went into operation.

DECEASED LISTED WHOSE FAMILY FINDS OUT

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., July 7 (AP)—A family here may get up to 22,700 wrong number telephone calls.

The Pike Peak or Bust Rodeo Association disclosed today it has sent out that many brochures with a wrong phone number for those who plan to go to the rodeo.

An entirely unrelated phone number was listed in the brochure instead of the rodeo office number. Officials said they did not know how it happened and nobody noticed it until the phone at the Clare W. King home began jabbering.

The Kings said they plan to be away from home most of the time.

SOCIAL SECURITY TAX RISE OK BY HOUSE PREDICTED

Democratic Bill Voted by Committee—
1,100,000 Would Be Added to Rolls.

WASHINGTON, July 7 (UP)—Democrats predicted today House approval of their plan to increase social security taxes by 25 per cent on both workers and employers to fund expanded benefits.

The proposal, which would take effect next Jan. 1, won approval last night of the House Ways and Means Committee. Supporters conceded, however, that in the rush for adjournment the Senate may delay consideration of the measure until next year, thus upsetting the proposed effective date.

The Democratic plan would add 1,100,000 persons to the 7,000,000 already receiving monthly social security checks and would bring another 220,000 persons, mostly lawyers and dentists, into the social security program for the first time.

Increase in Rates.
To pay for the increased benefits, the social security tax on both employees and employers would be increased from 2 to 2.5 per cent on the first $4200 in annual wages. Self-employed persons now paying 3 per cent would have to pay 3.75 per cent.

This would mean, for example, that an employed person earning $350 a month or more would have to pay an additional $21 a year in social security taxes and a self-employed person with the same income, an additional $30.50 annually.

The tax increase, amounting to 1/2 of 1 per cent a month, would also be added to tax jumps on both employees and employers already approved for future years.

With the increased revenue, the Democratic plan would:

1. Add an estimated 800,000 persons to the social security rolls by lowering the benefit age from 65 to 62 for widows, working women who retire and wives of covered workers who are 65 and who retire. This estimate includes workers who would be expected to retire once their younger wives become eligible for their supplementary benefits.

2. Add 300,000 persons to the rolls by allowing workers permanently and totally disabled to receive social security checks at age 50. Mentally and physically handicapped children of deceased workers would be entitled to draw survivor benefits beyond the present cutoff age of 18, but this would add only a relatively small number to the rolls.

New Extension.

The plan also would extend mandatory social security coverage, including taxes, for the first time to an estimated 220,000 mostly self-employed persons. These would include lawyers, dentists, veterinarians, osteopaths, neurologists, chiropractors, optometrists, employees of the Tennessee Valley Authority and home loan banks and turpentine workers. Doctors would not be included.

One high-ranking Republican said, privately the Democratic plan would get a lot of G.O.P. votes in the House even though the Administration has warned against hasty revision of the social security program. The plan is expected to be called up for House action next week.

The tax increase proposed by the Democrats would be added to other increases already scheduled to start taking effect in 1960 to finance the growing social security system. This means both employers and employees would have to pay 3 per cent in 1960, 3.5 per cent in 1965, 4 per cent in 1970 and 4.5 per cent in 1975.

Self-employed persons would continue to pay one and one-half times the rate for employed persons.

6 LEGISLATIVE GROUPS RULED ILLEGALLY SET UP

Dalton Holds They Cannot Incur Expenses Against Contingent Funds.

By the Post-Dispatch Jefferson City Correspondent.
JEFFERSON CITY, July 7—Attorney General John M. Dalton said yesterday that six of the 21 investigating and survey committees created by the 1955 Legislature, to operate after adjournment, were not legally established and could not incur expenses against the legislative contingent appropriations.

His opinion, issued to House Speaker Roy Hamlin, also raised a strong legal question as to validity of the 15 other committees, although he did not directly pass on each of them because Hamlin had not asked for a ruling as to them.

Governor's OK Needed.
He said that a resolution creating a legislative committee to function after adjournment, whether House, Senate or joint, should be a joint and concurrent one, approved by both houses, and sent to the Governor for his approval, to legalize any post-session expenditures charged to the state.

None of the resolutions creating the investigating committees was sent to the Governor for approval. Six or seven of the resolutions attempted to appropriate expense money from the legislative contingent funds. The others placed no limit on committee expenditures when the Legislature was in adjournment.

Zone Fare Inquiry Included.
The six committees which Dalton specifically held were not legally created, under the type of resolution adopted, and because of failure to present the resolution to the Governor for signature, were ones calling for these inquiries:

House investigation of the rate-making practices of the Missouri Public Service Commission, particularly in connection with its authorization of a general system of zone fares for the transit system of the St. Louis Public Service Company.

An investigation of the state's methods of state income tax collection and possible changes in the law.

Inquiry into the operation of the constitutional non-partisan court plan of Missouri.

A study of the salary schedules of county officers in Missouri, with recommendations to be made to the next Legislature (presumably for increases).

An investigation of the operations of the Metropolitan Police Department of St. Louis.

A study of the legislative rules of the House, and submission of recommendations to the 1957 Legislature.

Hamlin had questioned the legality of some of the resolutions because no attempt was made in them to put any limit on the spending power of the groups, and the incurring of expenses against the legislative funds while in adjournment.

Constitution Cited.
Referring to the House resolutions, the Attorney General said that under constitutional provisions the House "cannot by resolution, not concurred in by the Senate, create a committee to investigate and inquire into matters pertaining to its legislative functions and authorize it to sit after final adjournment."

The Legislature adjourned last May 31.

He also said another House resolution relating to investigation of admissions of patients to the University of Missouri hospitals was not valid.

Among the committees created by the last Legislature for post-session inquiries, in addition to those specifically considered by the attorney general, were ones for a toll road study, inquiry into corporate practices, criminal law revision, memorials for deceased governors, state water resources, state retirement systems, and judicial circuit boundaries.

Others proposed another survey of reorganization of the state government, state professional licensing board laws, higher education in Missouri, state salaries, juvenile delinquency and transportation of school pupils.

CONGRESS OK'S $25,000,000 TO FIGHT AIR POLLUTION

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Congress completed approval yesterday of a bill to authorize a five-year $25,000,000 federal program to aid states and local governments in combating air pollution.

Actual control measures would be left to state and local governments, but the Federal Government would undertake research projects of its own and provide financial support for research activities by public and private agencies.

The measure was passed and sent to President Eisenhower after the Senate accepted without objection a number of House amendments to the original Senate bill.

The legislation was in line with Mr. Eisenhower's recommendation to Congress last January that increased funds be made available to the Public Health Service "for studies seeking necessary scientific data and more effective methods of control" of air pollution.

The President said then that "the atmosphere over some population centers may be approaching the limit of its ability to absorb air pollutants with safety to health."

Largest, Longest Airlift Begins In Swap of Two Combat Teams

By VERN HAUGLAND
FORT CAMPBELL, Ky., July 7 (AP)—A double-decker transport plane with 92 paratroopers aboard roared off for Japan at 12:10 a.m. today to start the largest and longest airlift in history.

It was followed at 2 a.m. by a second C-124 and at 4 a.m. by a third.
A fourth Globemaster lifted its 158,000 pounds of gross weight aloft at 6 a.m. and a fifth, carrying 23 reporters and 67 paratroopers, left at 8 a.m.

The load quota of each plane was 90 men with their personal equipment as contrasted with the C-124's capacity on shorter flights of 200 fully armed men.

Altogether 43 of the planes will take off from here in a two-day period on the 18,000-mile mission of swapping two airborne combat teams between the United States and Japan.

Largest, Longest Airlift.
The planes are taking almost 3900 officers and enlisted men of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team to Ashiya, Japan.

Within 60 hours of their arrival in Japan, the C-124s will take off again from Itazuke Air Base near Fukuoka, Japan, to return the 3100 troopers of the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team to Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

The movement will total 31,500,000 passenger-miles. Maj. Gen. Chester E. McCarty of Portland, Ore., commander of the Eighteenth Air Force, said the exchange is the largest and longest troop movement by air ever undertaken.

Gen. McCarty commanded the Korean airlift for 2½ years, and had charge of the movement of 4000 men from Japan to Korea in 17 hours to quell prisoner-of-war riots in 1952.

"But we are treating it as routine—an exercise demonstrating our capabilities of airlifting anything or anybody, anytime, anywhere," Gen. McCarty told a news briefing shortly before the take-off.

Dependents Going by Sea.
The airlift was co-ordinated with the shipboard movement of 433 families—about 1300 women and children dependents of soldiers of the 508th.

Housing shortages in Japan prevented movement of 83 other families immediately, but the Army hopes to house them soon.

The dependents set out for Japan from San Francisco this week aboard the U.S.S. Anderson and the U.S.S. Breckinridge, and will be greeted by their husbands and fathers on their arrival about 10 days hence.

Gen. McCarty said the airlift is part of the new Army operation known as "Gyroscope," involving the replacement of entire overseas units every three hours instead of individual replacements.

The first planeload of paratroopers was commanded by First Lt. David Brazel, Carthage, N.Y., who said it would be his first trip to the Far East.

The first stop was scheduled at Travis Air Force Base, Calif., about 10 hours from Fort Campbell.

After a three-hour stop there, the planes will make the 12-hour flight to Hickam Field, Hawaii, then the 12½-hour flight to Wake Island and the final eight-hour flight to Japan with two-hour stops at each place.

About 500 mechanics and other personnel have been posted along the line of flight. The combat team will be stationed on Kyushu Island—at Camp Chickamauga in Beppu, at Camp Kashi, near Fukuoka, at Camp Wood near Kumamoto.

GUARDS SEARCH PRISON AFTER REBELLION ENDS

Convicts Marched Into Yard—Warden Says Revolt Leaders Will Be Prosecuted.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., July 7 (AP)—Prisoners filed quietly from their cells today as authorities gradually resumed control of Washington State prison and its warden asserted ringleaders would be prosecuted for a two-day revolt.

Eight unarmed guards went into wing 6, the first section entered since the rebellion over prison rules started Tuesday. The 400 inmates walked into the prison yard, where other guards patrolled with billy clubs.

Warden Lawrence Delmore Jr., who was away from the prison when the riot started, ordered guards to "secure" each cell-block, move prisoners into the yard and search cells for any weapons hidden after prisoners seized hostages and took over the prison. The 1700 convicts were to be searched.

Promises Prosecution.
Delmore said inmates who won concessions from prison officials before nine hostages were released realized they were liable under a new state anti-riot law, and "they will be prosecuted." The county prosecutor previously had said he would insist on invoking the new law.

Delmore said "I don't believe we sold out" in making concessions, adding that "time was running out" in seeking release of the hostages.

He said men in wing 1, where the revolt began, will be transferred to wing 8, where new locking devices have been installed, pending construction of a new $500,000 maximum security building.

As authorities took over the cellblocks, 38 state patrolmen lined the prison walls and a few guards carrying rifles stood inside the enclosure.

Guards Enter Cellblock.
The first guards entered the cellblock more than two hours after the 5 a.m. deadline set by prison officials and revolt leaders to regain control of the institution.

Many guards at first had balked at entering the building without an armed task force preceding them to protect against violence.

Guards began their holdout late last night after a check showed only about 24 weapons, possibly a third of those believed to be in the hands of the convicts, had been turned in.

Hostages Freed.
Nine hostages held by the prisoners were released late yesterday afternoon when Dr. Thomas Harris, state director of institutions, signed a nine-point agreement with five of the 33 inmates who led the original revolt which eventually embraced half the prison and its 1700 inmates.

But the guards said they had no assurance they wouldn't replace the original hostages or suffer an even worse fate at the hands of angry convicts.

The temper of the inmates in the affected area was not known. It was believed they had heard, however, that Arthur Hawman, Walla Walla county prosecutor, had announced he would prosecute the ringleaders under a new state law.

Hawman said he would ignore promises by Director Harris that leniency would be sought for the revolt leaders and bring them into court "just as soon as we obtain all the facts."

The leniency promise was one of the nine points agreed to by the state official. He agreed also to order release of men now in isolation and segregation wards to normal prison life and accepted a demand for establishment of an inmate council.

The council, to be selected by a prison election, would present grievances to prison officials. Its membership would not be subject to control of the prison administration.

Charles Simon, head of the prison classification department whose removal had been demanded by the prisoners, was shifted to other duties by Harris in keeping with a promise made the rebels. "The prisoners said Simon is unnecessarily slow in preparing parole studies. Simon denied the charge."

The convicts' original demands had included a request for dismissal of Delmore and that Gov. Arthur B. Langlie "come to the prison and meet with the revolt leaders. Harris refused to discuss the demands and they were dropped.

Other Concessions.
It was agreed also to speed up interviews with inmates when requested; to arrange for services of an attorney to advise the prisoners; to investigate complaints of delay in mail delivery, and other minor concessions.

The agreement was quickly criticized by state legislators and law enforcement officials as too lenient but Harris said it was the best agreement that could be made.

He said he had to think of the lives of the hostages and that it took "all my psychiatric skill to deal with them."

The nine hostages were not harmed, although they appeared shaken by their experience.

One Associate Warden Theodore Bezerides said, "Any man would be a fool in such a situation to say he wasn't scared."

He said he and the other hostages, held in a large storage room in the kitchen, were treated well.

"At no time did I really feel that my life was in danger—but only the normal feeling you'd have under circumstances like that," he added.

Bezerides said he spent considerable time "trying to talk sense into the heads of the inmates." The convicts involved, he said, instigated the revolt because of "a feeling of injustice."

Here's your opportunity to win $10,000 cash in a new and different kind of contest!

The entry blank is FREE at your newsstand. Just read its brief descriptions of the articles in July Reader's Digest. Then list, in order, the 6 articles you think most readers of the magazine will like best. Or, if you wish, read the complete articles in Reader's Digest, now on sale. You'll also find an entry blank in all newsstand copies—but you need not buy the magazine to enter.

Don't miss this opportunity to win up to $10,000! Get a FREE entry blank (or July Reader's Digest) at your newsstand TODAY!

Doctor's Laxative Works Wonders for "Nervous Irregularity" (You can suffer this kind of irregularity for years without knowing what it is!) If you've been bothered by irregularity that doesn't seem to improve no matter what you try or what you do, you may have nervous irregularity. When digestive tract muscles are tense because suppressed bowels don't give them enough "bulk," you're constantly irregular. Your system needs a special kind of help. Daily Regularly Now Yours Without "Forcing" Your System! Discovered by a doctor, all vegetable formula gives the muscles of your digestive tract the kind of soft, non-irritating bulk it needs. Bowels operate on a regular basis, no irritating roughness... works without hurting.

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—A report showed today that Agriculture Department losses on farm surpluses totaled $643,987,000 during the 11-month period ending May 31.

This was far in excess of losses in corresponding periods in the past. They totaled $419,477,000 during the previous fiscal year.

By comparison, the department has been spending slightly less than a billion dollars a year on all of its activities other than price support and crop control activities.

Losses occur when surplus commodities are sold for less than the department paid for them under producer price support programs, and also result from donations for relief purposes at home and abroad.

The department also reported that it has sold $468,800,000 worth of surpluses abroad under provisions of the Agricultural Trade Development Act of 1954 authorizing acceptance of foreign currencies as payment. However, the department said it will get only $360,800,000 for the commodities under its cut-rate export price offers.

The department had $6,109,295,000 invested in surplus farm products May 31 compared with $6,188,738,000 a month earlier with slightly more than $7,190,000,000 last winter.

Investments included a record quantity of 1,022,000,000 bushels of wheat which cost the department $2,631,000,000 under price support operations.

HOUSE SPRINGS (MO.) YOUTH FOUND SHOT IN CHEST, DIES

Owen Dabbs, a machine shop employee, was dead on arrival at Park Lane Memorial Hospital early today from a gunshot wound in the chest incurred at his family home at House Springs, Mo. He was 17 years old.

Dabbs, who was separated from his wife, lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Dabbs. The youth's mother told police she heard a shot at 6 a.m. and found his body lying in the yard at the rear of the Dabbs home, a 22-caliber rifle beside it. Dabbs' father and an uncle, Leo Dabbs, of 2328 Madison street, St. Louis, who had been visiting the family, rushed him to the hospital.

Police said they had not been able to determine the exact circumstances of the death. An inquest will be held.

Stevenson Charges President With Inaction in Program to Provide U.S. Aid to Schools

Tells Teachers Administration Plan Is Inadequate—Cites Discrepancy in Comparison With Federal Highway Proposal.

CHICAGO, July 7 (AP).

ADLAI STEVENSON, former Democratic presidential nominee, last night attacked President Eisenhower's program of school aid before an audience of school teachers.

Stevenson, in a speech delivered before the National Education Association convention and broadcast over the CBS radio and television networks, quoted President Eisenhower as saying just after he assumed office: "Our school system demands some prompt effective help."

"Yet, today," chided Stevenson, "two and one-half years later, when this need has become acutely critical, nothing has been done. Instead of 'prompt effective help,' we await a conference on education to be held at the White House next fall."

"Inadequate Excuse." "Now a conference is fine," said the President's former political opponent, "and it will dramatize the great significance of our educational system and its critical deficiencies, but it seems to me a pitifully inadequate excuse for years of doing absolutely nothing about America's No. 1 domestic need—schools and teachers."

Stevenson referred to the White House Conference on Education, scheduled this fall, a meeting of some 2000 educators of various creeds, races, occupations and geographical locations who will make recommendations on school problems.

The former Illinois Governor said the President recommended to Congress last February that it pass legislation for seven billion dollars worth of new schools.

"But to get them," said Stevenson, the President "recommended that Congress pass not a law but a miracle."

"For meeting this seven billion dollar need, the President proposed grants of $66,000,000 a year for three years. This is 33 cents a year to meet every 33 dollars of admitted present, crying need."

Stevenson termed it "interesting if disheartening to reflect that while proposing an effective grant of only $66,000,000 a year for three years for school construction aid, the President at the same time proposed a Federal grant for highway construction—mostly on a matching basis—of three billion dollars every year for the next 10 years. This is $45 of Federal funds for highways to every $1 for schools."

"I will resist the temptation to draw inferences from the unequal competition between automobiles and education in our government these days," said Stevenson, "but I deny that this 45-1 ratio between highways and schools represents the standards of our government."

"But to get them," said Stevenson, the President "recommended that Congress pass not a law but a miracle."

"For meeting this seven billion dollar need, the President proposed grants of $66,000,000 a year for three years. This is 33 cents a year to meet every 33 dollars of admitted present, crying need."

India's Menon Sounds a Hopeful Note

V. K. KRISHNA MENON, right, India's roving ambassador, talking with reporters at the White House after his talk with President Eisenhower. At left is JAMES HAGERTY, presidential press secretary, and in center is GAGANVIHARI I. MENTA, India's ambassador to the United States.

Menon Says Red Peace Gestures Should Be Taken at Face Value

Prospects for Release of Americans Are Better 'Than for a Long Time,' He Tells Newspaper Group.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post Dispatch Special Dispatch.

V. K. KRISHNA MENON, India's roving ambassador, said here yesterday that he believed Russian peace moves should be taken at their face value and that prospects for release of Americans held by Communist China are better "than for a long time."

He made these points at a luncheon of the National Press Club and later in the day conferred briefly at the White House with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles.

Menon went to New York last night and was scheduled to take off this afternoon for London to give a report to Indian Prime Minister Nehru who will arrive in the British capital later this week.

15-Minute Talk. The President, Dulles and Menon talked for about 15 minutes. Several weeks ago the envoy visited the President and the Secretary of State to discuss his mission to Peiping where he had conferred at length with Red Premier Chou En-lai about the Formosa crisis and the imprisoned Americans.

Menon, who has assumed on his own the role of intermediary between Washington and Peiping, was given a personal message from Mr. Eisenhower to Prime Minister Nehru.

At the luncheon, Menon was asked if he believed current Russian "softness" was "sincere." He said:

"We have found it better to accept people for what they say and not suspect them. If we suspect them, they begin to suspect us and suspicion becomes endemic and chronic. My impression is that the general changes and improvements in Communists but this has been denied by Peiping. Menon repeated the Indian contention that Formosa belonged to the mainland Chinese government, but went on: "Whatever may be the legal rights, the implementation should be accomplished peacefully."

He said "it should not be beyond the wisdom of man to find some solution."

RED RADIO TELLS OF EISENHOWER GENEVA PLEDGE

MOSCOW, July 7 (INS)—Moscow radio told its listeners in Russia today about President Eisenhower's assurances that the United States delegation to the Geneva conference will go there with a "conciliatory... friendly attitude."

The broadcast, summarizing the President's news conference in Washington yesterday, led off by quoting Mr. Eisenhower about his approach to the Big Four chiefs of state meeting which begins July 13.

This was the second week in succession that Russian citizens have been given reports of the President's press conference comments. Last week, Russian newspapers printed the text of much of the news conference statements, including some critical of Soviet policy.

Dock Workers End Strike. SANTOS, Brazil, July 7 (AP)—Dock workers who had paralyzed this port since Friday voted yesterday to return to their jobs. The government is increasing their wages 25 per cent. The port workers' pay has averaged 6000 cruzeiros ($75) monthly. The strike involved about 9000 workers.

FLEESON Speculation Over Firing of Tass Reporter

American Woman Correspondent
May Be Victim of New Policy.

By DORIS FLEESON
WASHINGTON

TASS, the Soviet news agency, has withdrawn the press credentials of an American woman correspondent, Mrs. Jean Montgomery, who has represented it here since about 1939.

United States officials are guessing that Mrs. Montgomery has been sacrificed to the Kremlin's new sweetness and light policy. Many persons resented the fact that an American was reporting to the official Communist press service and members of Congress especially have shown their irritation.

The White House, the State Department and the Congressional press galleries have received a formal request to take Mrs. Montgomery from their lists of accredited correspondents. It was signed by Georgi N. Bolshukov, chief of bureau.

Other Tass Representatives. The letter said that Tass would continue to be represented by Bolshukov and Vladimir B. Paramonov. Both are Russians and relative newcomers. Bolshukov has been here about a year. Paramonov was transferred from the New York office of Tass a month ago.

Bolshukov, a suave and smiling figure who is noticeably alert to what goes on around him, is most often seen at the State Department. There he is a useful source of the current Communist line which he seems to know or at least tells before the Soviet embassy puts it out.

He is presently in San Francisco where he went to cover the United Nations birthday celebration. Paramonov explains he is here as a substitute. He formerly, he said, a member of the journalism faculty of the University of Moscow.

It is Mrs. Montgomery who is the familiar figure, a regular attendant for many years at the press conferences of the President and Secretary of State and always present in the Capitol and at important hearings.

In the Senate press gallery she had a private telephone booth with a connection to the Tass office in the National Press Building and her own desk. Her most immediate neighbor, it was noted with relish, was the Wall Street Journal which of course had similar privileges as do other major newspapers.

She was in the Senate gallery last Friday, apparently in her usual good spirits, and gave no

DRUMMOND Milton Eisenhower Suggested For 1956 if President Retires

Pennsylvania State Educator Said to Meet Qualifications in Event G.O.P. Needs an Alternate.

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND
WASHINGTON

MOST Republican politicians, in their more candid and confidential moments, appear to be agreed on the following propositions: That they badly want and need President Eisenhower to run in 1956.

That with Mr. Eisenhower as a second-term candidate they will retain the presidency and have a good chance of recapturing one or both houses of Congress.

That Adlai Stevenson as the Democratic nominee would almost certainly win over any presently discussed alternative to the President, whether it be Vice President Nixon or Senator Knowland or Gov. Knight of California, or Senator Dirksen of Illinois, or anyone else.

And where does all this leave the Republican high command? It leaves it hopefully wedded to the assumption that Mr. Eisenhower will in the end be persuaded to run under any circumstances.

Others Qualified. If this is an accurate estimate of the situation which the Republican party faces, the question has to be asked: are the Republicans going to do anything about it? Is it wise for the party to become the prisoner of a frame of thinking which says, in effect, that if Mr. Eisenhower won't run, then all is lost and nothing can be done about it?

Surely, the candidates who would be qualified for the Republican presidential nomination are not limited to the few names that also crop up in a politician's conversation. I realize full well that the Republican professionals do not want to leave the impression that they would settle for less than Mr. Eisenhower. But there are Republicans around who would like to see a little advance thinking about what is to be done if Mr. Eisenhower says no.

I am not assuming to say who could be or who should be nominated if Mr. Eisenhower says "one term only," but I do suggest that the list of qualified Republican candidates is not exhausted when you get to Senator Dirksen.

What, for example, would be a fair set of qualifications for a new 1956 Republican nominee? Perhaps these:

1. A good chance of winning.
2. An intellect and leadership qualities reasonably equal to the job.
3. Top-level government experience.
4. Administrative talent.
5. A determination to carry forward the Eisenhower policies.
6. Substantial Republican background.

President Eisenhower probably would be the best judge. He has said: "I think I would rather take Milton's views than those of anyone else. He's a unique brother. He's got the respect of all the older ones."

There are probably a dozen good Republican presidential possibilities who haven't yet been thought of and in 1956 that name Eisenhower would be something, whether the first name is Dwight or Milton.

PEARSON Senator Welker Kept Former Aid On Payroll While on Another Job

By DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1955.)

HERE'S ANOTHER EPISODE in the payroll generosity of Idaho's Senator Herman Welker. This chapter might be called, "The Case of the Yellow Shoes."

It has already been reported how Welker arranged for his brother, Ted, to lead the life of a retired truck driver in Twin Falls, Idaho, at the taxpayers' expense. The Senator put brother Ted on the Senate payroll for $5200 a year. Meanwhile Ted remains in Idaho, doing no visible work for the taxpayer, though a Senator's payroll is supposed to be spent for the benefit of the constituents who send the Senator to Washington.

Welker also helped his nephew, Craig Nelson, and a family friend, William Cook, "work" their way through the University of Idaho by paying them a Senate salary for part of the college year. The Senator has hinted that the two boys were investigating Communists on the university campus for him. In addition to all this, Senator pay vouchers also reveal that Welker kept an ex-employee, Marion "Pete" Jensen, on the payroll for a year after he had returned to Preston, Idaho, to teach high school.

Served in Idaho Senate. Welker and Jensen served together in the Idaho Senate, then came to Washington together after Welker's election to the United States Senate. Both showed up on the Washington social scene wearing almost identical yellow shoes. Welker noticed nobody else in the Senate wore loud yellow shoes, so he switched to a more conservative color. "Pete" Jensen, however, who then worked as Welker's administrative assistant, refused to part with his yellow brogans. But one day he walked on the Senate floor to deliver some papers to Welker. All Welker could see were the yellow shoes moving across the carpet. Turning to an aid, Welker grumbled: "That so-and-so has worn those yellow shoes on the Senate floor for the last time."

Firing Jensen, however, was a ticklish job since he has political influence in southern Idaho. To soften the blow, Welker put out a press release about "losing my good right arm." He also kept Jensen on the payroll for a full year, even though Jensen went back to his former job as high school teacher in Preston.

Another name on Welker's Senate payroll is that of Harry A. Nock, a prominent Idaho Democrat. Welker and Nock also served in the Idaho Senate together, though Nock never both-

When to Establish an Irrevocable Trust

GREAT CAUTION should be used in establishing an irrevocable trust because once a person has created such a trust, the property is beyond his reach and he cannot change his mind. However, there are a number of situations in which the use of an irrevocable trust is highly desirable.

For example, take the case of a man who is in high income tax brackets and whose aged mother is solely dependent upon him for her support. In such a case, if a man is in a 50% top income tax bracket, he requires $2,000 before-tax income for each $1,000 he gives to his mother. If he is in a 75% tax bracket, he requires $4,000 of before-tax income for each $1,000 he gives his mother. He would be far better off if he established an irrevocable trust under which the income would be paid to his mother for life and the trust would terminate upon her death, at which time the principal would revert to him. In this case, the income used to support his mother would be taxable to her and in much lower tax brackets, and the principal would come back to him at her death.

A person with a large estate may find it desirable to use a relatively small portion of the estate to create separate irrevocable trusts for children or grandchildren. For example, suppose a man with a $600,000 estate creates irrevocable trusts of $30,000 for each of three grown children. If his wife gives her formal consent to the gifts and neither of them have used their $30,000 gift tax exemptions, $78,000 out of the $90,000 total will not be subject to gift tax, the taxable gift will be only $12,000 and the gift tax only $540. By creating the irrevocable trusts, he will effect saving in Federal Estate Taxes of $27,000, save executor fees on $90,000 and make substantial annual savings in family income taxes.

There are many situations in which an irrevocable trust may be a desirable part of an estate plan, but care should be taken in creating such trusts because once they are created, they cannot be revoked. Our officers will be glad to discuss with you the financial advantages of using trusts. Your own lawyer should advise you on all legal questions involved.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

'Yes' to a Street Closing

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Concerning the letter "No" to a Street Closing, published July 1, in my opinion, Reader G. S. Ruffin, who wrote the letter, is not fully acquainted with the particular circumstances that initiated the move of asking the right to close Pershing between Kingshighway and Taylor. Nor could he have been present at the request hearing, for there was not one objection raised by those present.

Pershing, starting at Kingshighway and ending at Newstead, is a dead-end street. It is not a main traffic artery. Closing it would not be detrimental to traffic. Furthermore, the residents of this block are good St. Louisans, who enjoy living there; they will, however, move to the county if they cannot enjoy the rights which residents of other parts of this same area enjoy.

What is this about "doubtful legality"? The city has a perfect right to abandon public property to private use. Objection Ruffin, these citizens are not "ancient, provincial, aristocratic and undemocratic" and would not make any request that is such.

It's not a "device"—merely the request of a group of people who want to keep their part of the city up to snuff.

MARIE GARESCHE.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I think that the story of Pershing Avenue, as presented by the Pershing Avenue Association, may well make the street one of the most famous streets in the United States. It seems to me that it is the story of the great dream of urban conservation and redevelopment for fine single-family dwellings. These dwellings, well maintained and cared for, are the anchor and stabilizing force of a great city.

Pershing Avenue property owners now stand on the threshold of the greatest step to preserve and protect their street, and to thereby protect St. Louis as a whole. Mr. McDevitt and his associates on the Board of Public Service have recognized the unique and magnificent contribution that these people are making to improve St. Louis. Cities need strong families and strong people to preserve their residential areas. This the property owners are doing with their own private funds.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Re J. W. Squires' recent letter, "Without Warning," I would appreciate an opportunity to make a few comments.

Being a crew-member of a patrol plane during World War II and having been attacked by enemy fighter planes, I think a little enlightenment on this subject might prove beneficial to Mr. Squires.

First, it's possible to be jumped by fighter planes, being taken almost wholly by surprise, even though you have an alert watch on the horizon and alert lookouts at six stations of your plane.

Second, the predecessor to the Neptune, now obsolete, carried seven or eight machine guns. I think it reasonable to believe the latest patrol plane would at least match this firepower.

Third, a lone, relatively slow patrol plane does not have much chance against four fighter planes, even if it gets the chance to fire back. The primary purpose of the patrol plane is to report to base any enemy movements.

I would love to be present and have Mr. Squires ask the surviving crew members of the downed patrol plane if they were making fudge or watching Howdy Dood when they were attacked.

The truth is, they were watching out for all of us here at home.

As to Argentina

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
It seems to me we are wasting a lot of sympathy on the Catholic hierarchy in Argentina. They are reaping what they sowed in other parts of the world. If the Church would stay out of politics it would not have this kind of trouble.

In Name Only

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
On your July 2 picture page, under the caption, "Geometric Gymnastics," you published a photograph of 12,000 students performing in Czechoslovakia's National Spartakiade in a mass drill. You named them as members of the Sokol Gymnastic Association.

The Sokol organization in Czechoslovakia under the Communist rule exists in name only and is a far cry from the ideals upon which it had been founded.

The Sokols were a nonpolitical and a patriotic organization and upon the same principles it was organized in St. Louis in 1865.

We have nothing in common with the present Sokol organization in Czechoslovakia, and our nineteenth anniversary celebration, which was held in St. Louis June 17, 19, 19, was a sort of a protest against the Spartakiade held in Prague.

Smoke Screen for a Retreat

One of the most pertinent and shocking facts now emerges through the smoke screen with which the Administration of Dwight D. Eisenhower is covering its retreat on the ill-starred Dixon-Yates power contract.

That fact is the full measure of the impropriety of Adolphe H. Wenzell's serving the Government at the same time that his investment house was arranging financing for Dixon-Yates.

Paul H. Miller, an official of First Boston Corp., as was Wenzell at the time, testified Wednesday to the Senate anti-monopoly subcommittee that Wenzell drafted the Dixon-Yates financing plan while serving as a consultant to the President's Bureau of the Budget.

He testified that one reason First Boston waived its usual fee for the service—amounting to $150,000—was that it wanted to avoid charges that the bank profited from Wenzell's work with the Budget Bureau.

Yet as late as June 30 President Eisenhower told his press conference:

Mr. Wenzell never was called in or asked a single thing about the Dixon-Yates contract. He was brought in . . . before the contract was ever proposed. My understanding is that quickly as the Dixon-Yates thing came up he resigned.

Senator Kefauver proposes to call Budget Director Hughes to explain why no mention of First Boston Corp. was made in the Administration's official documentation of Dixon-Yates. The committee might also inquire why the President has been so sadly misinformed and non-informed about Mr. Wenzell's role.

Senator Kefauver's committee is hot on the scent of the charge that Mr. Wenzell violated the conflict-of-interest law. This part of the criminal code forbids Government employees outside interests which conflict with their interests as Government servants.

Meanwhile, the Administration continues to send up new puffs of smoke. Gen. Vogel, chairman of TVA, reports, as everyone already knew, that the Dixon-Yates plant is no longer needed. Budget Director Hughes "re-examines" the project at the President's behest. Attorney General Brownell assigns FBI agents to find out if Memphis can really go ahead and build its own steam plant.

Whatever the fate of the Dixon-Yates project—and its future does not appear bright—there should be no letup in the investigation of the Wenzell double role and of the apparent favoring of special interests which has characterized the whole unbusinesslike business.

Cahokia's Proposed Bridge

The last major act of the St. Louis Board of Aldermen before it adjourned until October was to approve, 22 to 2, bills to grant Cahokia, Ill., permission to build a bridge with a western approach at Chippewa street. This suggests an inventory of highway bridges over the Mississippi in the St. Louis area.

Between Alton and Jefferson Barracks there are now seven highway bridges from Missouri to Illinois. At Alton a Leas and Clark bridge carries U.S. 67 and State 140 to St. Charles county. The Chain of Rocks bridge, with U.S. 66 and By-pass 40, is just inside the northern St. Louis limits. McKinley bridge connects Salisbury street, St. Louis, with Venice.

The newest bridge, East St. Louis's Veterans Memorial, joins Delmar and Franklin avenues with Third street, East St. Louis, and about three blocks south is the first St. Louis bridge, the historic and graceful Eads, opened in 1874. Approximately a mile south, at Chouteau avenue, is the St. Louis municipal bridge, now named for Gen. MacArthur. A glance at the map shows why a bridge in the vicinity of Chippewa avenue is indicated: for between the MacArthur bridge and the Jefferson Barracks bridge—a distance of about 10 miles—there is now no highway crossing.

Yet there is heavy population in South St. Louis and east of Cahokia via Illinois Highways 157 and 13 lies the short route to Belleville. A bridge at Chippewa would also provide a still faster access to Parks Airport, Dupont and other communities in the immediate area.

The placing and building of a new bridge is no light task and it should be co-ordinated carefully with the over-all transportation needs of the entire St. Louis metropolitan area. This means that the Bi-State Agency, which some day may hold all the area's bridges, ought to be a factor in all such considerations.

There is a historical appropriateness about a bridge at Cahokia since the 256-year-old community was the parent of St. Louis. And as to its name, nothing could be more appropriate than simply: the Cahokia bridge.

Eight Years Late

After eight years of saying No, the State Department says it will issue a passport to Martin D. Kamen, Washington University biochemist and wartime atomic bomb scientist. Here is one of the most shocking instances of capricious and arbitrary action by the Passport Office.

In 1947 Kamen was preparing to go to Europe when State Department agents seized his passport at a travel agency. No reason was given except that his trip was against national interest. Kamen spent years trying to get a passport or an explanation. He won an oral interview; denied allegations and signed non-Communist affidavits. Still no passport. Finally he went to court and filed suit.

Now Kamen has won the promise of the right to travel because of prodding by the courts, and not because of any change of heart or procedure in the Passport Office. The precedent for his case was established in two other recent cases involving Prof. Otto Nathan, executor of Albert Einstein's estate, and Max Schachtman, who described himself as an anti-Stalinist socialist.

The Federal Court of Appeals in Washington ordered a hearing in the Nathan case and the State Department issued Nathan a passport almost at once. In the Schachtman case, two weeks later, the court ruled that the State Department had no right to deny a passport merely on its own discretionary authority, and that the right to travel was subject to the rules of due process of law.

A number of passports of distinguished citizens have been withheld in Washington in similar ways for similar inexplicable and inexcusable reasons. Perhaps many of these will now be unfrozen. The State Department in the Nathan and Kamen cases seemed to prefer granting passports to providing reasonable explanations for withholding them. Moreover, this is one way to clear the office pigeonholes in advance of an investigation of the whole security program.

Nevertheless, the record of negotiation and reluctant retreat is no credit to passport officials. Prodding by courts should not be necessary. What is needed is a systematic and fair procedure in the Passport Office.

Steel Passes It On

Steel is still cheaper than dirt, despite the whopping $7.50 a ton price rise announced by United States Steel following last week's strike settlement.

That is what a company statement says, anyway. By way of documentation, the statement points out that a pound of "ordinary potting soil" costs 8 cents in New York, whereas carbon steel even at the new prices will sell for 6 1/2 cents a pound.

The zealous press agent who thought up that comparison certainly deserves a raise in pay. We feel confident that he could prove his claim thereto by demonstrating that he weighs less than the Aga Khan, who collects his weight in diamonds every year. Still, no amount of cleverness will dispose of the serious and important problem created by the linked rise of steel wages and prices since World War II.

During that period, there have been eight increases in wages or pension and welfare fund payments, and every one of them has been accompanied by an increase in steel prices. Usually, as in the present case, the price increase has been far larger than necessary to meet the extra cost of the wage increase.

The excess has been explained in various ways. This year, the public is told that higher taxes, higher construction costs and higher prices of goods purchased require the extra increase. What is not explained is why the steel corporations feel justified in passing on to the steel-consuming public all the costs of every wage settlement.

If it can be assumed that productivity has been rising steadily in steel as in many other industries, then a time should come when the steel industry not only can but ought to absorb some wage increase without passing it on in the form of higher prices.

Unless workers receive some of the fruits of their increased productivity—sharing those fruits with investors who finance the new machinery which makes the higher output possible—a fundamental imbalance in the national economy may develop.

Higher productivity means that fewer men are needed to produce a given quantity of goods. During the first quarter of this year, for example, U. S. Steel employed 25,000 fewer workers than last year but produced 481,000 more tons of steel.

That is fine for everybody—provided steelworkers and other workers continue to have enough purchasing power to buy the things that are made from steel. But if all wage increases are passed on to the public in the form of higher prices, the time will surely come when the cash and credit available to consumers are not enough to maintain a full-employment economy.

Unless real wages rise along with productivity—especially when automation in some industries is expediting the rise of productivity—we may be storing up future trouble.

Mail for Sherlock Holmes

No longer can there be the slightest doubt about the immortality of the greatest sleuth who ever sprang from pen, pencil or typewriter. This greatest of all detectives in crime fiction, invented in 1887 by Dr. A. Conan Doyle, was Sherlock Holmes.

He was utterly incomparable and completely ineluctable, and in the company of his inseparable friend and chronicler, the rather lethargic Dr. Watson, he detected crimes, disentangled mysteries and unscrewed the inscrutable until 1914.

According to his literary creator, Sherlock Holmes was born in 1854 and the British Broadcasting Corporation observed the centennial with fitting ceremonies. Doubtless no year will go by without the shades of Holmes and Watson being invoked in the press from London to San Francisco. The long, lean, sharp-faced detective and his puffy, stubby companion are long gone, but they still are better known than the slickest "private eye" among the scores that abound in today's fiction.

Not so? Well, there is the current official report from Scotland Yard and it records among its many functions the answering of letters addressed to Sherlock Holmes. "We write back," says Scotland Yard, "telling them that he doesn't work for us." We'll wager three bob and a tanner that Scotland Yard receives no queries about the crop of present-day dicks of radio, television and slicks.

An Angry Judge on Delinquency

Asperity, if not downright anger, is easily detected in Judge Elijah Adlow's remarks on juvenile delinquency in today's Mirror of Public Opinion. But experience is warrant for his tone—experience and the mores of a Harvard and a New England not so obvious as once they were. He has been on the bench for 27 years. He speaks with flesh-and-blood knowledge.

Judge Adlow writes about not just a Boston problem. New York's Police Commissioner Francis Adams reported the arrest in 1954 of 12,470 youngsters between the ages of 16 and 21. That was an increase of 15.8 per cent over 1953. Other police blotters offer similar testimony.

Judge Adlow, however, is interested in causes and cures; and his conclusion is rather "old-fashioned." To him, probation and specialized institutions are more palliative than corrective. He sees no substitute for the home which inculcates a definite standard of conduct. He does not believe that the parental role can be delegated.

Yet as Senator Thomas Hennings's investigations have shown, there are serious influences at work outside the home. For example, psychologists are warning more and more often against the new crime and smut "literature"—of which most of us have personally encountered only the mildest examples. The judge himself observes a "copy-cat" strain in the young which gives outside influences at least a chance to corrupt the influences of the home.

So the community is not without its responsibilities. We can no longer afford a semi-tolerant attitude. Too much delinquency is no longer the overdone rough-housing which passes without much damage done. There is too ominous a criminality in many of the cases now in the juvenile courts. This concerns us all.

NEHRU: IT MAY BE HARD TO COME DOWN TO EARTH AGAIN, INDIRA

Why Teen-Age Criminals?

The Mirror
Public Opinion

Surrender of parental responsibility, especially since war's end, is the chief of several causes of a juvenile delinquency which is more like adult crime, says experienced judge; the young react to environment, so home is where good character is formed.

Judge Elijah Adlow, Chief Magistrate of Boston Municipal Court, in Atlantic Monthly

Since the beginning of World War II the abandonment of domestic responsibilities by many mothers in exchange for jobs in industry has left countless children to rear themselves. It was inevitable that some of these children would speedily show evidences of neglect.

The judges expected that with the return to normalcy, and the return of mothers to their homes, the conditions would abate. Unfortunately, a good many mothers are still working. What makes the revolt of modern youth serious is that it bears little resemblance to what was once viewed as juvenile delinquency. There was a time when the difference between a bad boy and a playful boy was one of degree.

Today the crimes of violence in which the young indulge can never be mistaken for boyish pranks. The many cases of malicious destruction of property that have entailed great loss to the public are not the cumulative consequence of youthful exuberance but the product of calculated mischief. The many assaults with dangerous weapons are the acts of irresponsible desperadoes which differ little from the planned attacks by adult outlaws.

Youth Sees Adult Orgy

The disposition of cases by probation of the offenders reveals a reluctance on the part of the court to take the entire matter very seriously. If there is a serious juvenile delinquency condition in America today, the courts must share a part of the responsibility for it, but that share is insignificant.

The modern youth reacts to environmental as grownups do. It would be absurd to expect that at a time when adult America is indulging in an orgy of lawlessness, youth should reveal moderation and restraint.

The authority of parents has been weakened. And for the impairment of this most important element in character building the parents themselves are to blame. In many homes parents have viewed their responsibilities in a detached and indifferent manner.

A generous application of liberal principles, so called, has resulted in parents' over-indulging children and allowing them to do as they please. Instead of inhibiting violent tendencies and molding character by strict supervision and guidance, parents have deliberately refrained from stifling the impulses of youth lest some latent talent be frustrated.

With Too Little to Do

Frequently these youngsters come from good homes; their parents are excellent people and no effort or cost has been spared to fit the children properly for their place in society. Consider the hoodlums revealed by the raids on girls' dormitories by college boys in recent years, and it will readily appear that delinquency is not merely a problem of the slums.

A substantial portion of the young offenders brought into court come either from broken homes or from homes rendered destitute by the chronic alcoholism of one or both parents or from homes presided over by parents with long criminal records.

Modern youth has a great deal of time on its hands. Actually, a shortsighted legislative policy has forbidden young people to engage in many pursuits which once afforded opportunities for wholesome employment. I have seen prosecutions under the child labor law which did more harm than good.

There can be no question that the improvement in the condition of the average man, with its increase in earning, has contributed radically to the change in attitude of parents. Most of them overlook the part which strict discipline, scanty allowances and hard work played in their moral and physical upbringing. Instead they are determined to give to their children what was denied them.

This generosity on the part of parents has had an evil effect on the generation upon which it has been lavished. The little gifts which once provided the great incentive to youth for obedience and industry are now without effect. The kindness of parents has resulted in building up in young America a pronounced aversion for labor and toil.

Equally devastating is the noticeable weakening of the moral viewpoint. The nineteenth century may have been hypocritical in its severity, but it extolled virtue and denounced vice and sin. For youth it meant a high moral standard which served to encourage obedience to law.

Changes in Moral Concepts

Equally marked are the changes in concepts of decency and honor. We read in the daily paper that a judge has ruled in the federal court that even though a man has been convicted on several occasions of violating liquor and gambling laws, he is still worthy of becoming an American citizen.

The chronic condition of unrest on the labor front, punctuated by occasional outbreaks of violence and lawlessness, has had a noticeable impact on young people, as is evident from their readiness to join in any mass demonstration promoting any cause. The ultimate consequences of these demonstrations are to exalt insubordination.

Young people are spectators of political recrimination, innuendo and bombast. They emerge from the experience with a feeling that a great many people are being entrusted with the powers of government without regard to their merit or personal integrity.

To what extent has the cultural setting in which modern youth lives been responsible for the moral breakdown? Boys and girls have movies, radio, television, and the modern newspaper. Some of these are educational as well as entertaining. Others have questionable value, and there are some which are a distinct menace to the morals of the community. We must never underestimate the role played by suggestion in influencing the behavior of youth.

'Spirit of Home' Is Needed

Human behavior is linked with character, and the process of character building commences at infancy and acquires its basic strength and quality in the home. No public agency can supply the training and instruction which a well-managed and properly supervised household affords.

If the desire of women to retain their place in industry becomes fixed, we must expect an aggravated delinquency situation. While woman legally has a right to participate in industry, there is no moral sanction for abandoning a more sacred responsibility.

The child who might have grown into an honorable career had it not been for the undesirable associations which brought him to his sad estate has a just grievance against a society that did not insulate him from these vicious influences.

We must recapture the spirit of the home which our parents and grandparents knew, and young people must be brought up and not left to bring themselves up.

WIDE CHOICE.

As we understand it, the Republican nomination for 1956 is wide open to any bald-headed, Angus-bred, golf-playing, wide-smiling, homburg-wearing former general. So it should be hotly contested.

Between Book Ends

Up From Alabama

THE THIRD DOOR, by Ellen Terry. (David McKay Co., 304 pp., $2.50.)

This is the autobiography of a beautiful American woman whose main interests have been the racial and religious problems of our country in the last thirty years. She is a Negro, in spite of her white skin and red hair, and she is a devout Catholic by conversion.

Her childhood in Birmingham, Alabama, where her parents were happy and respected, was a healthy and secure one. Her first ambition was to go to Africa and teach and care for the poor heathen. When she recovered somewhat from the shock of her first brutal experience with the terrors of racial discrimination and hatred, she changed her ambition from Africa to her native Alabama.

She went to a Catholic school and, in spite of her Protestant training, found intense happiness and guidance in her new religion. She lived in Harlem during the years of the depression, fighting for a chance to study journalism and writing for children. Here she found comfort in the work of Friendship House, interracial, Catholic-directed center. During the war she helped found a similar institution in Chicago.

She became a good reporter and, under Lucy Sprague Mitchell, a successful children's writer. Among her books are "My Dog Rinty," the everyday life of a Negro child in Harlem, "Janie Belle," and "Hezekiah Horton," inspired by the sight of wriggling, giggling little colored boys in a big red convertible.

She has an ability to sketch quickly and unforgettably such important things as the backstage organization and motivations of the Negro march on Washington which resulted in the establishment of the FEPC. Her two-page-long story of George Washington Carter's arrival in New York, where a tired, 76-year-old gentleman waited politely for 11 in the morning till 6 at night for a place to rest before his scientific address in the evening, is memorable.

The book, by an obviously passionate woman, is dispassionately written. She found the courage to return to her native South to teach and eventually to take her little brown-skinned daughter on a tour of America.

"It has been long adventure, during this past quarter century when wars, inventions, and daring achievements have wrought revolutionary changes throughout the world, to watch the pendulum swing across the dial of American history. It has been rewarding, if at times difficult, to hold on to the belief that 'things will be different someday.' Though that day is only dawning, tomorrow will come! Descended from slaves, rebels, and a vanquished people, I have lived to write boldly 'American' beside my name; to know that my child is in fact free."

The third door, she feels, will replace those now marked 'colored' and 'white.'

A Jewish Anthology

MID-CONCENT, edited by Harold U. Riblow. (Beachhurst Press, $4.)

This lengthy anthology of writings by and about Jewish authors is an impressive token of the contribution these writers have made to American literature. There are some 50 represented in the book, and its quality may be attested by naming among them Maurice Samuel, Ludwig Lewisohn, Charles Angoff, Herman Wouk, Irving Howe and Sidney Hook. Their essays cover every aspect of Jewish life in America, and it's significant to note how the younger writers tend to identify themselves far more with an American outlook than the older contributors do.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Clements of Kentucky Takes Over

WASHINGTON.

STOCKY, amiable, politically-wise Senator Earle C. Clements of Kentucky now steps full into the limelight. It has become his job as acting Democratic Senate leader to direct his party in management of the Senate for the rest of this session of Congress.

Upon him will fall responsibility for completing, as far as possible, the program left unfinished when Senator Lyndon B. Johnson was stricken over the July fourth week end and had to relinquish his post as majority leader.

In addition, the Kentuckian will inherit the challenge flung a few days ago to Senator Johnson by President Eisenhower who listed a number of unfinished measures which he insists the Democratic Congress pass before its recess, now expected in early August. That is not, of course, altogether in the hands of the Senate; in fact, it is more a problem for the House which has not yet acted on a number of important bills already passed by the Senate. Devoted to Senator Johnson with whom he has worked closely in his post as assistant leader, Senator Clements is akin to the Texan in some respects that are significant politically, and we may not expect any decided change from the course pursued by the party under Senator Johnson.

Patient, Soft-Spoken.

Senator Clements has similar talents as a skillful legislative manager and political negotiator. Like Senator Johnson, the Kentuckian is adept at bringing diverse-minded colleagues to compromise.

Also like the Texan, he would prefer always to settle differences, both within the party and in the Senate, by compromises off the floor, worked out in the cloakroom or in the privacy of senatorial offices, rather than risk open conflict in debate on the Senate floor.

Senator Clements is patient, soft-spoken, and always a good listener. He gets along with all elements of the party, from South to "liberal" members of the North East and West.

Man of Repose.

He lacks Lyndon Johnson's intense drive which kept the Texan forever at his job, day and night, and was responsible for the splendid legislative record of the Senate so far this session—and, undoubtedly, for his cracking under the fast pace he set for himself.

Senator Clements is a man of more repose, though with a force and persistence on major aims that he displayed more openly when he was Governor of Kentucky than in his six years in the Senate. At 59 he is a dozen years older than Senator Johnson. Here, he has kept mostly in the background. That has been so even since he has been assistant leader. Senator Clements has been very helpful in his own quiet way, doing his business in conferences on the Senate floor or in the cloakroom.

He is what might be called "a Senator's Senator." That's the sort of confidence he enjoys among his colleagues. In him they recognize a master craftsman in the art of politics. He knows it from the ground up, for it has been his career. He began in his own Union county in western Kentucky which he served as county clerk, sheriff and judge.

Up for Re-election.

Later he went to the State Senate where he was majority leader. Then he went to the House of Representatives here for two terms before he became Governor of Kentucky in 1947. He was elected to the Senate in 1950.

Which means that he is up for re-election next year. That brings up a distraction of a political nature that keeps his eye peeled toward Kentucky and his ear cocked in the same direction, while attending to his leadership duties here.

There is much at stake for him in the gubernatorial primary in Kentucky on August 6 in which former Governor and Senator Albert B. "Happy" Chandler is trying for a comeback.

Happy Chandler Issue.

Senator Clements and his organization, including Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby, are fighting "Happy" Chandler and supporting Bert T. Combs, a 41-year-old judge of the State Court of Appeals, for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

For Senator Clements much depends on the outcome of the August primary. If "Happy" Chandler should capture the nomination and win the November election and become Governor again, it would be highly difficult for Senator Clements to win renomination to the Senate next year—or so Kentucky political experts say.

Senator Clements may be expected to follow Lyndon Johnson's policy of co-operating, so far as compatible with Democratic party philosophy, with President Eisenhower. While he has not hesitated to criticize the President and his Administration on specific matters he shares with Senator Johnson the belief that the President is still very popular with our people.

'THE DESERT SONG' NEXT AT PARK OPERA

Edward Roecker to Star as Red Shadow for Third Time Here.

Edward Roecker, veteran of 18 Municipal Opera performances, will appear for the third time as the Red Shadow when "The Desert Song" opens Monday at 8:30 p.m. for a one-week run at the outdoor theater in Forest Park. It will be Roecker's first 1955 appearance on the local stage.

Playing opposite Roecker in the feminine lead will be Janet Medlin, taking the part of Margot Bonvalet. She starred here earlier this year in "The Merry Widow."

New to the Muncy stage will be Norman Scott, a Metropolitan Opera bass-baritone, who will have the part of All Ben All as his debut role. Scott has sung as a soloist with Arturo Toscanini as well as performing grand opera.

Jack Goode will take the comic role of Benjamin Kidd. For the last 10 years he has been playing this role in revivals of the operetta standby. Goode made his first Municipal Opera appearance nearly 25 years ago as a juvenile dancing star.

Others in the cast will be Donald Clarke as Sid El Kar; Joan Kibrig as Susan; Lidija Franklin as Azuri; Oliver Cliff as General Birabeau; Mildred Hughes as Clementina; Andy Sabilla as Hasi; Eugene Dorain as Captain Paul Fontaine; Lewis Bolvard as Mindar and Christine Palmer as Edith and Lolita.

"The Desert Song," one of Sigmund Romberg's best known operetta scores, will be having its ninth run on the Municipal Opera stage. The story and lyrics for it are by Otto Harbach, Oscar Hammerstein II and Frank Mandel.

The plot of the musical concerns a Frenchman who leads the Riff tribesmen of North Africa in a revolt against the French troops, even though he is in love with the ward of a French general. The musical includes such songs as "One Alone," "The Riff Song," "The Desert Song," and "One Flower in Your Garden."

LADUE ENTRY WINS PRIZE IN MODEL CAR COMPETITION

Herbert Penning Jr., 28 Tealwood avenue, Ladue, received a $150 award today as first prize winner in the Fisher Body Craftsman Guild model car competition in the junior age division for Missouri. He will also receive a trip to Detroit in early August when his model will be in competition for a national award.

Second state honors and a $100 cash award in the senior division went to John C. Mick, 5623 Helen avenue, Jennings, while Barry Herr, 3924 Meramec street, won the same award in the junior age division.

Third place state honors worth $50, in the senior division were shared by Robert Taussing, Route 1, Creve Coeur, and Paul F. Babb Jr., 7507 Weil avenue, Shrewsbury. John J. Bollwerk Jr., Von Talge road, Affton, took a $25 honorable mention prize in the senior division and Richard Janish Jr., 937A Canaan avenue, Baden, received the same prize in the junior division.

Museum Director Sworn In

CHARLES NAGEL, new director of City Art Museum, being sworn in at City Hall yesterday by MRS. LUCILLE DARST, city registrar. Nagel, who was head of Brooklyn Museum for eight years, took up his duties here last Friday. He succeeded Perry T. Rathbone as museum director.

DR. W. M. LATIMER, ATOM RESEARCH PIONEER, DIES

OAKLAND, Calif., July 7 (AP)—Dr. Wendell M. Latimer, one of the nation's leading chemists and a pioneer in the basic research that fathered the atomic bomb, died yesterday. He was 62 years old.

He was associate director of the University of California Radiation Laboratory and chemical division director of the Atomic Energy Commission laboratory at nearby Livermore.

Latimer made many important contributions to United States defense efforts. Early in World War II, he was a member of the National Defense Research Council in studies on poisonous gases and plutonium, the explosive element in the atomic bomb. From 1943 until 1945, he was director of the Manhattan engineering district project on the chemistry of plutonium.

FUNERAL TO BE TOMORROW FOR GUSTAV A. WOELBLING

Funeral services for Gustav A. Woelbling, retired St. Louis police officer, will be tomorrow at 10 a.m. at the Kriegshauser undertaking establishment, 4228 South Kingshighway, with burial in Sunset Cemetery.

Mr. Woelbling, 75 years old, died of a lung tumor Tuesday at Lutheran Hospital. He was a member of the police department from 1904 until his retirement in 1944. He served as a mounted policeman and also a detective. He lived at 5812 Alaska street.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Magdalen Woelbling; a daughter, Mrs. Virginia Smythe of Blytheville, Ark., and a son, Dr. W. G. Woelbling, 4400 Chippewa street.

LIONS INTERNATIONAL PRESIDENT VISITS CITY

Humberto Valenzuela G. Says Many in Latin America Misunderstand U.S.

Many people in Latin America believe that the United States wants to dominate the entire world, Humberto Valenzuela G., newly-elected president of Lions International, said in an interview here yesterday.

To counteract this state of opinion, often spread by Communist sympathizers, people in both North and South America must work to improve understanding of each other's countries, the gray-haired banker and industrialist from Santiago, Chile, advised.

"If more Latin Americans had the opportunity to live with Americans, they would know as I do that this country believes in democracy for everybody," he said. They also would realize that life here is not so dangerous as gangster and cowboy movies suggest, he said.

The United States can aid Latin American nations, lacking capital and under-populated, by sending them loans and private investments, technicians and welfare workers and by creating more scholarships for study in this country, he said. As an example of mutually profitable assistance, Valenzuela pointed to his copper mines' repayment with interest within two years of a $1,000,000 Import-Export Bank loan.

In his term of office he hopes to raise scholarship funds for international student exchange and to maintain aid to the blind and other community services sponsored by the 12,000 Lions clubs in 69 countries.

His wife, a short, home-loving woman, finds her travels with her husband very interesting but tiring. She especially enjoys American food, because it is less seasoned and less fattening.

Arriving here yesterday from Chicago, Valenzuela spoke to the Overland Lions Club at a luncheon yesterday. Tomorrow he leaves for Kansas City and points in Central and South America.

CONVERSATIONAL GERMAN COURSE TO START ON KETC

A beginning course in conversational German will start at 8:30 o'clock tonight in a one-half hour program on St. Louis Educational Television Station KETC, channel 9.

The course, entitled "Eins, Zwei, Drei," will be taught by Dr. Frederick Schwartz of the Iowa State College department of modern languages. Tonight's program will be devoted to the German numbers from one to 10. The station will provide upon request a study guide to the 24-program course.

SECRETARY WILSON TO FISH IN QUEBEC BUSH COUNTRY

OTTAWA, Ontario, July 7 (UP)—United States Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Canadian Trade Minister C. D. Howe will go fishing together "somewhere in the Quebec bush" this weekend.

Officials in Ottawa said Wilson, who came to Canada last year for a fishing trip with Howe, was expected to meet Howe in Montreal tomorrow. The visit is unofficial.

KETC GETS $95,110 FOR TEST PROGRAM

Spelling, Composition, Science Television Courses to Be Given.

Educational Television Station KETC (Channel 9) has received a $95,110 grant for an experimental program from the Fund for the Advancement of Education, Philip J. Hickey, acting chairman of the St. Louis Educational Television Commission, announced today.

Hickey, superintendent of instruction for the St. Louis public schools, said the program will include a second-grade spelling course, a composition and grammar course for ninth-grade students and a secondary school course in science.

The three courses will be televised over KETC as a part of the educational station's in-school programming for the next school year.

Included in the experimental program will be at least five elementary and five high schools. Hickey said. Selected classes at these schools will receive instruction from the daily television program, and an achievement comparison will be made between these students and a similar number of students in other schools, he said.

"We are undertaking this experiment to determine whether certain educational processes can be given by way of television to large numbers of children more effectively than before thought possible," Hickey said.

In outlining the experimental program for consideration by the Fund for the Advancement of Education, Hickey stated that "our television teachers will be the best the schools in this area have to offer, and we shall make every effort to assure a high quality of instruction." Dr. Alvin Eulich of the Fund for the Advancement of Education said when the grant was awarded:

"We are pleased to have a part in your program of offering instruction to the schools over television. We feel this demonstration is likely to have far-reaching implications for American education. We shall, therefore, watch the results with much interest."

Jocko Conlan Always Disliked Long Games.

JOCKO CONLAN, who became irked Tuesday night at Cincinnati because Catcher Bill Sarni was taking too much time talking to his pitcher, in his eagerness to win a ball game, always did have an allergy for time-consuming tactics on the ball field. Jocko deserves his reputation as the umpire who tries hardest for short games.

Back in 1944, as we remember it, Jocko figured in an incident similar to the one at Cincinnati, although the 1944 game didn't develop into a brawl. It was a notable game, however, because it saw a catcher put on mask, pad and shinguards and catch one pitch as his entire official performance of the season.

The Cardinals were playing the Phillies and one of Billy Southworth's young pitchers, going into the ninth inning with a shutout, ran into control trouble in the final frame. Walker Cooper was the Cardinal catcher and because a shutout is something special for a young pitcher, Cooper was trying to help the young hurler to that objective. Coop made several trips to the mound between pitches, to give counsel and to calm the young man, and Conlan took exception.

"Get in there and catch and don't waste all this time," Conlan told Cooper.

"I haven't got any date to-night, Jocko," Cooper told the umpire. "Keep your shirt on. I'm just trying to help this kid get a shutout."

"The so-and-so with the shutout," Conlan replied. "You go out there again and tell you out of the game." Conlan was serious. It was wartime, the Cardinals were carrying only two catchers on the roster and the other one had been in the game. There wouldn't be another catcher available if Walk were put out of the game.

But when Cooper made another trip out to the mound, Conlan quickly thumbed him out of the game.

One Pitch, One Putout, A Full Season's Work.

WITH no catcher on the roster available to take Cooper's place behind the plate, Southworth signaled to the bullpen and a St. Louis boy, Bob Keely, on the payroll as a batting practice catcher, made his way to the dugout. He put on the equipment and took his place behind the plate. The count was two and two or three and two. At any rate, the young pitcher threw only one more ball. The Philadelphia batter swung and missed and the game was over.

That was Bob Keely's only official appearance of the season in a game for the Cardinals. The record book shows that he was in one game, had no times at bat, one putout. And that represented exactly half the catching Keely did in two years with the Cardinals. In 1945 he also caught long enough to get one putout. And he went to bat once that season, too.

Keely, who will be N.L. batting practice catcher in the All-Star game, now is a coach with the Milwaukee Braves, highly regarded despite his scant major league background as a player. And at that, Keely can lord it over a major league manager who is doing all right this year. Walter Alston, leader of the runaway Dodgers, had only one time at bat during his "career" in the majors with the Cardinals.

Back to the Cincinnati brawl, the player who gets our sympathy is Bill Sarni, the Cardinal catcher. It was a close game, with the outcome hanging on every pitch. Sarni wasn't killing time. He was using time, it is true, but he was using it to try to avoid any mistake by his pitcher. And it seems unkind for Conlan to have kicked Sarni out of the game, with the explanation a charge that Sarni "started it all." All Sarni was trying to do was to save a ball game. Is that wrong? And as Walk Cooper told the same Jocko Conlan in Philadelphia back in 1944, Sarni "didn't have any date to-night, Jocko." Who, besides Conlan, thought the game was lasting too long?

Cardinals, Hanging by Fingers, Cry for Stout Right Arm

6-4 Squeak Points Up Weakness Of Bullpen

By Bob Broeg

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

CINCINNATI, July 7—The Cardinals' front-office and far-flung scouting system today was faced with an immediate challenge to keep the Redbirds in contention for the first division, which could be achieved without difficulty—if the club can come up with a right-handed relief pitcher.

Ideally, of course, Dick Meyer or Bing Devine might wave a hand and bring, forth magically a topflight starter as well as a knight of the bullpen, but a Sir Gallahad of relievers would do wonders for the talented young team Manager Harry Walker is trying to give the aggressiveness and cockiness of champion Cardinal clubs.

However, as Walker expressed it before last night's game, "The best way to give a young club confidence is by winning. You can have fist-fights, your team can hit hard, run bases and make the plays, but there's no substitute for victory to make the kids know they can beat anybody."

The Cardinals did win last night, 6 to 4, but it was not to inspire a ball club, not one to give it self-assurance and might have been a Pyrrhic victory, too, because the best pitcher of the 1955 staff, Luis Arroyo, even had to warm up and rush to the mound to face one batter. Some pitchers lose effectiveness from one start to the next if their routine is interrupted.

No Soothing Effects.

The point is, if the one aspect seems far-fetched, that it still is no boost to the morale to walk into a clubhouse, cheeks puffed in relief and hair still standing on end after nearly letting a soft victory become a tough defeat. That's what nearly happened when nine Redlegs batted in the ninth inning and the tying runs were in scoring position before Mel Wright, the fourth St. Louis pitcher in the inning, retired Wally Post on a game-ending infield fly.

Wright, rookie reared recently recalled from Rochester, has the occasional ability, though it's questionable when he tries to get his sidesteering right-handed pitcher past left-handed hitters. Frank Smith, for whom the Redbirds paid dearly last winter by giving up both Gerry Staley and Ray Jablonski, has had arm tenderness from time to time and consequently, he's impressed Walker no more than he did the man who wanted him so badly—Eddie Stanky.

Only Paul LaPalme, the prized pick-up from Pittsburgh, has given the kind of rally-stopping consistency necessary from a relief pitcher for a modern ball club to win. And, as mentioned, it wouldn't take too many victories to compete actively for a first-division just three games distant.

But LaPalme has his limitations and, besides, the lefthander has become arm weary after appearing in 39 of the Cardinals' first 75 games. So Walker set LaPalme aside last night, though the Hat agreed he was tempted to swing in the dark little round man during the darker moments when victory almost fled last night.

It seemed such an anti-climax at first after the battle royal of the previous night when, not just incidentally, Cincinnati rallied against ineffective relief pitching and won just after Walker and Birdie Tebbetts, the Redleg manager, started a free-for-all by fighting. They subsequently were fined $100 each by National League President Warren Giles, and Bill Sarni, Redbird catcher and the third performer ejected, was levied a $25 assessment.

Calm and Collum.

As usual, the day or night after a baseball fight, there was calm that even extended to the contest itself as the Cardinals surged to a 6-0 lead against scrappy little lefthander Jackie menacing Ted Kluszewski at bat. Walker went to the lefthanded Arroyo, who probably was a smart hombre when he walked Kluszewski to force across the third Cincinnati run of the inning and fourth of the game. Now the equalizing marker was on second base, but Wright, as related, retired Post on a high fly to the infield.

The Cardinals got away with that one—just barely—but it wasn't a victory to make the kids acquire the unbeatable attitude Walker would like to see. That's why it would behoove the front office and the far-flung scouting system, if they regard first division as a sufficient prize for the moment, to beat baseball's bushes for a reliable right-handed reliever.

The Chicago White Sox dipped into the independent minors, didn't they, to buy Bob Keegan, Jack Harshman and Dick Donovan?

New Light on Moore's Birthday.

ARCHIE MOORE'S age and his birthday seem to be burning questions these days. All over the country, sportswriters are questioning the accuracy of Archie's announced age, 38.

It has been intimated by people "who know" from San Diego, Cal., now listed as Archie's home town, that he's got to be 43 or 44 years of age.

Archie, himself is responsible for some of the confusion. He announced that he was born in Collinsville, Ill. And that his birth date is Dec. 16.

There is no record of his birth at Collinsville about the time he was born, nor is there a record in Edwardsville, Ill.

That is not too surprising as many persons even today, probably are careless about birth records but there is one person who should know about Archie's. That's his mother so a call to the former Mrs. Moore now Mrs. Lorena Reynolds, at Pittsburgh provided a couple of surprises.

Asked when and where Archie was born, Mrs. Reynolds answered:

"He was born at Benoit, Miss., Dec. 13, 1916. He will be 39 years of age this year. His father's name was Tommy Moore and we had five sons, one of whom, besides Archie, is living. He is Sammy Moore and he lives in California."

As to whether the birth was recorded in Mississippi, Mrs. Reynolds was not sure.

"I had a midwife, not a doctor when Archie was born," she said. "Her name was Rebecca Rodgers, but whether she recorded the birth or whether she is still alive, I don't know."

Mrs. Reynolds is thrilled with the progress her son has made in boxing but she is not sure whether she will be able to see Archie battle Rocky Marciano for the heavyweight championship of the world at Yankee Stadium, Sept. 20.

"I don't know now whether I'll be able to make it," she said, "but what do you think of his chances?"

She seemed to like the answer which was that it appeared that Archie has an excellent chance to defeat Marciano, although it should be a whale of a fight.

Armstrong Testifies.

HENRY ARMSTRONG, former featherweight, lightweight and welterweight champion, projected himself into the Moore age controversy in Los Angeles, saying he had boxed at the same smelter with Archie 25 years ago which would mean that Moore had started boxing when he was 13 years of age.

The writer has known Moore ever since his start in the amateur boxing game here in 1936, 19 years ago. It seemed at that time that he was a youth of 18 or 19 years of age. There wasn't any real reason to question him as to his age and he wasn't so questioned. But from appearances he seemed to be, in 1936, 18 or 19 years of age, which would make him now just what he says he is, 38 years of age with his 39th birthday coming up in December.

Monroe Harrison, former heavyweight boxer, now a custodian at a public school, who started Archie in the boxing game and is closer to Archie than any other person in this city, contradicts Armstrong.

"Henry was a little older than Archie," said Monroe. "He's older than I am. I would say that Henry is about 43 years of age. I am 42, and Archie is about three or four years younger than I am."

Harrison is one of Moore's strongest boosters in the coming battle for the heavyweight championship and thinks Archie has an excellent chance to win.

"Archie is a good boxer and will stay away from Marciano and jab him," Monroe said. "The longer the bout goes the better for Archie. Marciano has that scar tissue around his eyes and nose and Archie can aim for that and open it up. Marciano will have to get Archie quick to beat him."

Patterson Moves Up.

FLOYD PATTERSON, Brooklyn light heavyweight, who is being pointed for a heavyweight title fight in 1957 by his manager, Gus D'Amato, took a step forward when he knocked out Archie McBride, Trenton (N.J.) heavyweight in the seventh round at Madison Square Garden.

Patterson, weighing only 170½ pounds, felled McBride for nine in the sixth round and then finished his foe, who weighed 186½ pounds, in the next round.

McBride is not a topnotcher but he knows his way around and it was an impressive victory for Patterson.

The bout was the usual Wednesday night television scrap but it was not seen here as Wednesday night fights are not on any St. Louis television station. So fans who were scientifically interested had to be content with the radio version.

From the account of broadcaster Steve Ellis it appeared that McBride could have been given only two rounds and all the rest of the way Patterson was in charge of his heavier foe.

D'Amato, interviewed over radio after the match, said that he had been surprised at Patterson's low weight, that he had expected Floyd to weigh 173 or 174 pounds.

"But we are taking each fight as it comes along," his manager said.

Asked if he wanted Patterson to fight Marciano, D'Amato replied:

"That's the aim of every boxer, isn't it?"

Ed Furgol and Other Yanks Fall Far Behind in British Open

St. Louis

Pro Has 147 for 36 Holes

ST. ANDREW'S, Scotland, July 7 (UP)—The United States' five entrants today survived for the final 36 holes of the British Open golf championship, but lost virtually all hope of winning the title by failing far behind British commonwealth stars at the halfway mark.

Defending champion Peter Thomson of Australia, Eric Brown of Scotland and Dennis Smalldon of Wales shared the lead with 139s as the field was cut from 94 to 49 for tomorrow's two rounds. Those with 148 or better will play tomorrow.

Johnny Bulla of Pittsburgh, a professional making his seventh bid for the crown, had the best 36-hole score among the Americans. Bulla had a 75 yesterday but shot a two-under-par 70 today for a 145.

That round on the 400-year-old course put him ahead of the United States' main hopes—former U.S. Open champions Ed Furgol of St. Louis, and Byron Nelson of Roanoke, Tex., and newly-crowned British amateur titleholder Joe Conrad of San Antonio, Tex.

Furgol fired a 37-39—76 for a 147. Nelson shot a 79-76 for a 147. Conrad and Jim McHale, another amateur from Wynnewood, Pa., barely qualified with 148. Conrad had a 36-40—76 after shooting a par 72 yesterday. McHale followed his first round 72 with a 36-40 also.

Three-time champion Henry Cotton of England reached the halfway mark with a 142 and three-time champion Bobby Locke of South Africa had a 143.

Americans Have Trouble. Bright sunshine and warm weather failed to help the Americans as they had trouble in the bunkers and on the fast, rolling greens.

Furgol, the 1954 United States Open champion, had a one-under-par 71 yesterday when he complained about the condition of the course and the treatment he has received here. He was a bit calmer today but repeated that he was disappointed in the course after taking 35 putts.

"I took 35 putts. I never had a single one-putt green," he said. "The greens were not cut today. This is the only open championship I have ever played in where the greens were not cut. I could understand it if the weather was inclement but it isn't."

Furgol went three over par coming in, mainly because of a seven on the 14th. It took him two strokes to get out of a bunker on that hole. On the 17th, his second shot landed against a wall behind the green. He could only mudge it from there out to a road. His approach ran over the green and landed on a grassy hole. Furgol studied it for a long time, then holed out for bogey five, bringing a great cheer from his gallery of 10,000.

Nelson Putts Poorly. Putting, always the only flaw in Nelson's otherwise magnificent game, caused his downfall. He three-putted the fourth, ninth and fourteenth holes, taking a six on the latter. He

These Predictions Are Based on Normal Water and Weather Conditions.

The Big Piney has been murky but is clearing. The Black, Current, Eleven Points and Jacks Forks are clear and low. Lower Black in fishing shape first time since opening day. Gasconade reported only in fair shape but should be ready Saturday. Meramec above Meramec Caverns in good shape and some large bass have been taken recently. Extreme lower Meramec will be very dingy. Doubtful if upper Nangua will be in shape for use of artificial lures. Lower portion is now clearing. Osage river below dam still murky but many large drum are being taken. Trotlines and limn-lines are taking catfish on the Meramec and Nangua.

All lakes clear or clearing. Upper Osage arm of Lake of the Ozarks has been muddy and may not be ready for the weekend. Some jack salmon are being taken on the Nangua arm of the Lake of the Ozarks and at Bull Shoals. Lantern fishing on all the lakes is taking white bass and crappie.

Best baits: surface bugs and plugs.

Knockout in the Making

ARCHIE McBRIDE, Trenton (N.J.) heavyweight, sinks to canvas from a right-left combination by FLOYD PATTERSON, Brooklyn, for a nine count in the seventh round of scheduled 10-round at Madison Square Garden. McBride, who also took a nine count in the sixth round, went down for the third and final time at 1:46 of the seventh round to give Patterson victory.

had 38 putts, one-putting only the fifteenth, where he holed a 12-footer for a birdie three. His drives and approaches were accurate. He missed the fairway only on the sixth when he pulled his drive to the right.

"When you're putting the way I have been here, you just don't beat anybody," Nelson said. Asked what he thought of his round, the 43-year-old Texan replied: "What's the English word for 'lousy'?"

Nelson flubbed short putts on the fourth and sixth greens and climaxed his poor front nine by missing a two-footer on the ninth hole.

Floyd Patterson Stops McBride, Boosts Bid for a Title Fight

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP)—"Floyd Patterson is going to be the youngest heavyweight champ of all time."

Cus D'Amato, a "neutral" observer who happens to be Patterson's manager, made that statement last night. Patterson, only 20, had just knocked out Archie McBride, his first man-sized heavyweight foe, after giving away 15½ pounds.

The end came at 1:46 of the seventh round at Madison Square Garden with about 2500 fans watching. McBride was down three times.

It didn't take any advanced math to figure out that Patterson must win before Jan. 4, 1958 for that will be the Brooklyn boy's twenty-third birthday. Joe Louis was only 23 when he knocked out Jimmy Braddock to become the youngest heavy champion in history.

"We'll be in a better position after the Archie Moore-Rocky Marciano bout in September," said D'Amato. "If Moore wins, we might go for the light heavyweight title. If Marciano wins, we might decide to leapfrog the light heavy division."

In the meantime, D'Amato must go out of town to get action for his fighter for the manager went on the indefinitely suspended list after last night's fight. He had been set down for refusing to answer questions about the Managers' Guild activities at the recent hearings of the New York State Athletic Commission.

Patterson, as calm as ever, didn't have much to say in his dressing room. He had a cut on his left cheek, another cut over the left eye and a scratch on the side of the right eye. "I had him figured after the fourth," he said. "I told Cus I was going to give him a hard time in the next round (fifth)."

McBride, 26-year-old Trenton, N.J. heavyweight, learned deep respect for Patterson's boxing hands although he thought he had the youngster "on the way" when he caught him with a left hook in the third round. "I lost him," he said. "He was too fast."

As McBride had fought ranked heavyweights like Nino Valdes, Hurricane Tommy Jackdaws and Bob Satterfield, he was asked to comment on Patterson's ability.

"He'll be a champ," was the answer. "He's much faster than Valdes. He'd outlast Jackson, probably knock him out. Satterfield, he's harder, punch for punch. I made my mistake when I got out of my crouch. Let my head out."

Patterson at 170½ was the heaviest of his career but McBride scaled 186½ pounds. It was Floyd's twenty-third birthday in 24 pro fights, his fifteenth knockout. His current winning streak was stretched to 10, the last five by knockouts. His only defeat was a disputed eighth round decision to Joey Maxim. June 7, 1954. The 1952 Olympic middleweight champion has been fighting pro only since Sept. 1952.

Judges Artie Alda and Harold Barnes had scored the fight 5-1 for Patterson at the end of six rounds but Referee Al Berli had it 3-3. The A.P. card showed Patterson, the 4 to 1 favorite, on top 5-1, losing only the third.

A six-punch flurry dropped McBride for a count of nine late in the sixth after he had taken a beating in the fifth. Early in the seventh a right-left combination dropped Archie again for nine. A right polished off McBride who was draped on all fours. He took the eight-nineteen on his knees.

Grand Circuit Off. GOSHEN, N. Y., July 7 (AP)—Yesterday's Grand Circuit program, including the Historic-Dickerson Cup trot, was postponed because officials of the Historic track were not able to get the oval in shape after a sudden heavy downpour.

The Historic-Dickerson Cup, one of the major Hambletonian previews, was to have been the 1955 debut of Scott Frost, Hambletonian favorite.

Campy's Doctor Sues O'Malley For $500,000

BROOKLYN, July 7 (AP)—Walter F. O'Malley, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, was sued for $500,000 today by the doctor who operated on the hand of Roy Campanella, Dodger catcher last October.

The plaintiff, Dr. Sam Sherkman, contends O'Malley damaged his reputation with alleged slanderous remarks to the press when the physician served Campanella with papers for collection of a $9500 bill for the operation.

Through his attorneys, Dr. Sherkman stated that "while I have never been guilty of any misconduct in my profession and have enjoyed a wide reputation, I have been damaged by Mr. O'Malley."

O'Malley came to the defense of Campanella, who claimed the $9500 was much too steep. At the time O'Malley was quoted as saying:

"It appears Dr. Sherkman thought he was operating on Roy's bankroll instead of his hand."

Reached at his office, O'Malley had this to say: "It is always open season on the Dodgers. However, I will say nothing more at this time that would add to the notoriety of this ridiculous situation."

Campanella, whose hand was injured in spring training of 1954, underwent surgery for the first time, for the removal of a bone chip, on May 4. The operation was performed by the club surgeon. When the hand did not mend as well as expected, a second operation was performed on Oct. 20, this time by Dr. Sherkman.

The slugging catcher is enjoying a banner season. He is leading the club with a .335 batting average, and has 19 home runs and 64 runs batted in. He has been sidelined with a damaged knee recently.

Dan Morgan, Famous Fight Manager, Dies

NEW YORK, July 7 (INS)—Dan Morgan, 82, one of the most famous and colorful of old-time fight managers, died today after a long illness.

For more than half a century he managed hundreds of fighters, including Jack Britton, world's welterweight champion, and Battling Levinsky, world's light heavyweight champion.

Morgan, known affectionately as "Dumb Dan," once estimated that he had earned more than $500,000 but cheerfully added that he had lost most of it betting on horses.

In late years he devoted most of his time to entertaining wounded war veterans in various hospitals. He was a witty story teller.

Six years ago the Boxing Writers' Association voted him the James J. Walker Memorial Trophy for his long services to boxing.

Toledo survived a slugging ordeal to beat Charleston, 10-8, despite Luke Easter's three homers while Denver choked off a last-inning Omaha rally with a double play to down the Cards, 4-1.

Louisville swept a doubleheader from Indianapolis, 4-2 and 5-1. Omaha fell out of a first-place tie and now shares second place with Toledo, just a half game out. Denver, in fourth, is three games farther back.

Toledo overcame Charleston power in the seventh when Jim Frey hit a sacrifice fly with bases loaded to break an 8-8 tie. The Sox added another run in the eighth on two singles and a sacrifice bunt.

Easter smashed a double in addition to his three homers. Ron Northey also had a homer for the losers. Frey batted in three runs and Harry Hanerink and Jim Pendleton, both St. Louisans, hit four-baggers for the Sox.

Denver's undefeated Don Larsen got his seventh victory of the season, but he needed help when Omaha rallied in the ninth. With the tying run on third and the winning tally at first, Rip Coleman got pinch-hitter Bob Clear to hit a high hopper near second, result: a double play.

Archie Moore

Only 'Logical' NBA Contender

MILWAUKEE, July 7 (UP)—Archie Moore was rated the only logical contender for Heavyweight Champion Rocky Marciano's boxing title in the quarterly ratings released yesterday by the National Boxing Association.

Moore, who holds the light heavyweight crown, earned a shot at Marciano when he recently knocked out Bobo Olson, N.B.A. Chairman Fred J. Saddy, Milwaukee, said that was the reason the group was deviating from its normal policy by listing Moore in both weight classes.

The N.B.A. said it could not find logical contenders for either Moore at light heavyweight or Sandy Saddler at featherweight.

'Baseball Is for the Birds,' Says Rookie Dropped by Nats

CHARLOTTE, N.C., July 7 (UP)—Shortstop Tony Roig, charging that baseball "is for the birds," headed home for New Orleans yesterday after assailing the Washington Senators for "kicking me back to the minors."

"I'm young enough to quit and get into something else," said the 25-year-old infielder. "This game isn't for me. This is for the birds."

Roig had been discontented since being shipped from Washington to the Charlotte Hornets of the South Atlantic League earlier this season.

"They said I needed experience—as if those two good years I had at Chattanooga (of the Southern Association) didn't show them I could play ball," he said. "It doesn't make sense."

"I have a good record in Class A ball so they send me to Class A. The bush leagues... riding buses night after night, beating yourself to death... I won't do it," he said.

Roig said he planned to return to Louisiana Tech to get his degree in physical education.

Apprentice Has Four Winners At Fairmount
Jimmy Clemens, teen-age apprentice jockey from the Oklahoma-Texas "bush" circuit, rode four winners on the nine-race program last night at Fairmount Park. Jimmy, under contract to J. R. Riley, is the first rider to visit the winner's circle four times in one night during the current East Side meeting.

Clemens increased his total of first to 18 or 11 fewer than the track's leading jockey Rafael Sanabria of Cuba. His mounts which paid off last night were Night Fog in the second race, Buckheat in the fourth, Carrier Girl in the seventh and Great Mischief in the ninth.

Jimmy had booted home three winners last Saturday night. Clarence Meaux, Bruce Brinkley, Billy Gummow, Terry Murphy, Dale Dew, Charles Billeaud and Bob Wiley previously had come up with triples.

The longest shot last night was Tee-Jay-M, which paid $77.80, $40.20 and $15.80. Jockey Johnny Matte won his second race in guiding Tee-Jay-M home first. A turnout of 5558 persons wagered $217,973 on the nine races.

Jockeys Harold Krene and Dave Bates, who have been riding at Omaha this summer, have applied for riding licenses and are hopeful of finishing out the season at Fairmount. They checked in yesterday.

Ted Williams Raises Average to .402 as Red Sox Win Sixth Straight

Last-Place Baltimore Blanks Leading Yanks

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP)—Manager Paul Richards may have a sound idea for the future with his youth movement at Baltimore, but when it comes to winning here and now it's the old guys who get the job done for the Orioles.

With a flock of recently signed bonus youngsters on the roster, it was veterans like Jim Wilson (33), Dave Philley (35), Foot Evers (34), Freddy Marsh (31), Chuck Dietrich (32) and Hank Majeski (38) who were in the lineup as the Orioles posted the New York Yankees, 4-0, last night.

The victory didn't mean too much to Baltimore, down in the basement 27½ games out of first, but it did mean the Yankees' American League lead over the Orioles was cut to 1½ games over Cleveland's Indians, who beat Kansas City, 8-4.

Wilson was the crafty "old-timer" who sent New York to its fourth straight defeat. The big right-hander, in his ninth big league season, gave the Yankees just four hits and didn't let a runner get past first base. He fanned four and walked only two, winning his sixth against eight defeats.

It was Wilson, too, who lined a two-run single as the Orioles scored all their runs in the fourth inning off Whitey Ford, who, like Wilson, is on the All-Star pitching staff. It was Ford's fourth defeat.

It was the second shutout of the year for Wilson, who had a no-hit game with Milwaukee last season, and it gave the Orioles two straight victories after losing 12 in a row.

It also was the second 1955 success for Baltimore against the Yankees. The Orioles beat New York 6-3 April 30—with six 20-or-older players in the lineup.

St. Louisan Bob Wiesler allowed one hit, no runs in three innings of relief for the Yankees.

While Cleveland closed in on the Yankees, Boston moved up on the third place Chicago White Sox. The Red Sox beat Washington, 7-5, after Detroit had knocked off the Pale Hose, 5-3. That left Boston 1½ games behind Chicago.

In the National, Brooklyn split with Pittsburgh, winning 10-5

Detroit Signs Joe Coleman to Replace Fain

DETROIT, July 7 (UP)—Feri

s Fain, 33-year-old veteran of 16 major league seasons, was out of a job today and Joe Coleman,

32, one-time teammate of Fain on the Philadelphia Athletics, had another chance in baseball.

The torrid-tempered Fain was given his unconditional release by the Detroit Tigers yesterday and Coleman, right-hander cut loose by Baltimore last Friday, was signed immediately to fill his spot on the roster.

The Tiger management gave

Fain's gimp knee, which has refused to mend, as the official reason for discharge. But behind the official reason was the report of a series of heated arguments between the first sacker and other players and coaches.

The two-time American League batting champion mixed in a verbal battle with Earl Tor-geson, his replacement at first base, while the Tigers were enroute to Kansas City from Chicago by train. He also engaged in an argument with Coach

Schoolboy Rowe and others during a bus trip from Cleveland to Detroit Monday night.

It was learned that Manager

Bucky Harris and General Manager Muddy Ruel decided then to release Fain soon thereafter.

However, Fain, who has spent nearly half his life in professional baseball since breaking in with the San Francisco Seals in 1939, denied reports of dissension. Harris also refused to comment on them, and said only that

Five Exhibition Games For Chicago Cardinals

CHICAGO, July 7 (UP)—The Chicago Cardinals will play five exhibition games before opening their regular season in the National Football League this year.

They will launch their pre-season schedule against the Chicago Bears at Jacksonville,

Fla., Aug. 20, and close it against the Green Bay Packers at Milwaukee, Sept. 17.

(One game in St. Louis is Aug.

28 with the Detroit Lions).

Millions of Europeans May Have Atomic Power Before Americans

Britain Hopes to Lead a Second Industrial Revolution Through Nuclear-Made Electricity

By KENNETH MILLER
LONDON, July 7 (U.P.)—Britain is running away with the atomic energy show in western Europe. It is spending more on research and development than the rest of non-Communist Europe put together.

The first atomic power plant will be generating electricity by the middle of next year. By 1957, Britain will be producing enough atom-made electricity to light nearly 40 cities the size of Washington, D.C.

However, the rest of Europe is far from idle. A survey by United Press correspondents in 16 capitals shows many countries working with all-out speed to get the atom into harness on a practical, workaday basis.

It is possible millions of Europeans will have the atom as their household servant before many Americans do, even though the scientific know-how, and possibly the equipment and material involved will be stamped "made in U.S.A."

U.S. Isn't Shortsighted.
This doesn't mean United States science and industry are slow or shortsighted, or that the United States, which has offered to help European countries get their atomic power programs started, is giving away something that could later be used at home.

Certain economic facts of life have made atom-electricity a more urgent goal in Europe than it is in the United States. America has enough coal, oil and hydro-electric reserves to keep generating plants supplied with fuel for years to come. Right now, it is cheaper for power companies—and users of electricity—to rely on these conventional fuels than to switch to atomic fuel.

In Europe the story is different. Many nations have dwindling supplies of coal and oil, or none at all. Mountainous countries like Sweden, Norway and Switzerland see the day coming when their hydro-electric potential will fail to meet their need for power.

Under such circumstances, electricity produced by nuclear energy would come as a godsend, regardless of price.

Britain is staking its future on the atom. It hopes to lead Europe through a second industrial revolution, as important as the one which carried Britain to world ascendancy in the nineteenth century.

British Plans.
Under present plans Britain will spend more than one billion dollars on atomic development in the next 10 years, and by 1963 will have 37 nuclear reactors in operation. British laboratories already are Europe's leading suppliers of radioactive isotopes for medical research.

Throughout western Europe, and in Britain, there is a shortage of trained scientists and engineers to carry on the research and development which must go into any atomic revolution.

West Germany, a late but fast-running starter in the atomic stakes, hopes to catch up with other European nations, but Nobel prize-winning Prof. Otto Hahn has said Germany's first task is to train scientists.

Italy, too, reports that the greatest roadblock to atomic development is the shortage of trained personnel.

United States and British technicians are helping build an experimental low-power reactor in Belgium to train future atomic engineers. This is part of an exchange agreement in which the United States and Britain get exclusive rights to 50 per cent of the uranium ore produced in the Belgian Congo.

Belgium gets the other 10 per cent, and is looking forward to the time when it no longer need worry about dwindling coal reserves.

France's 15-Year Program.

France is deep in a 15-year atomic development program. An atomic reactor generating 30,000 kilowatts of electricity will be running at Marcors by 1957. Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay is pressing for a European atomic pool involving the six Schuman plan nations.

Sweden is building Europe's first "atomic city," a $6,000,000 project south of Stockholm which will house 400 scientists and technicians. This is a kind of insurance. In 20 years, Sweden's hydro-electric power resources will have been tapped to their limit.

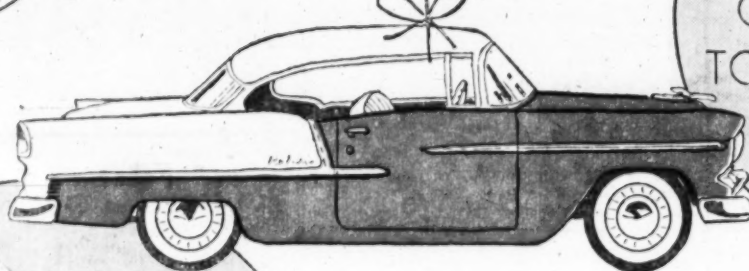

Norway is at work on a light nuclear reactor suitable for merchant vessels. The Danes are prospecting for uranium in Greenland, and hope to see an atomic power plant operating in Denmark within 10 years.

In Switzerland a group of 150 private firms is backing construction of an experimental reactor.

Radioactive ores are known to exist in Spain, Portugal and Yugoslavia, and each of those countries has begun to exploit them. Spain and Yugoslavia already are producing the "heavy water" needed for operating certain types of nuclear reactors.

Time to Think of Freezing, Canning

Watch for Buys in Fruits and Vegetables Now to Fill Your Freezer or Fruit Cellar.

By DOROTHY BRAINER
Post-Dispatch Food Editor.

WHEN YOU LOOK over the offerings at your favorite market this week, remember that it is a smart gal who has an eye to the future. You will be wise to shop with freezer or fruit cellar in mind, and to set aside a day sometime soon to turn the summer's bounty into next winter's treats.

A day spent now with freezer packaging materials, preserving kettle or jelly jars can pay handsome dividends, both materially and in personal pride in your housewifely accomplishments.

We can't tell you exactly when these items will reach their peak or be at their lowest prices; this depends upon many unpredictable factors. But we can alert you to be on the lookout for them, and when you find them at a price which seems fair don't delay. The season for most summer fruits and vegetables is fleeting.

Sour cherries are one item which you had better get this week if you plan to turn them into flavorful jelly. Other candidates for preserves include currants, raspberries and apricots. The transparent apples now showing up locally make delightful applesauce, and what better time to make materneln pickles than right now?

Keep a close watch on tomatoes. They are due to peak any time, so don't miss your opportunity.

The homegrown corn season is just getting under way, which means that its day of glory may be just around the corner. And don't overlook the homegrown okra, which is so nice and tender.

One final reminder—fine cucumbers at good prices are an open invitation to every woman who prides herself upon her homemade pickles.

SO THERE YOU HAVE the lineup on future possibilities. Now let's take a look at the things you may want for immediate use.

Potatoes head the list, by all means. They are in very heavy supply—potatoes of many varieties and from many sources.

Carrots are a good buy, as are beets. Broccoli and cauliflower have both been high, but may tend to be a little less expensive. Celery belongs in that same category.

We have no quarrel with cabbage as to price or quality, nor with onions.

YOU MAY HAVE your choice of many delectable fruits. Melons are excellent—and better way to start the day than what gourmet could ask for with a perfect cantaloup, or a better way to end a dinner than with a delicately flavored, juicy honeydew?

Watermelons are very plentiful and very good. And in addition to the melons already mentioned you may choose from Cranshaws, Casabas or Persians.

Speaking of gourmets, here is another treat. Beautiful, luscious Bing cherries. We always have difficulty restraining our use of adjectives when we write about these dark beauties; they bring out all of the superlatives in our food vocabulary. (And incidentally, Bings and Lamberts are two excellent varieties for freezing.)

Limes deserve special mention this week—they are here in numbers for use in refreshing beverages or pretty, cool-looking pies.

Summer avocados are putting in an appearance. If you aren't familiar with this variety it might pay to become acquainted; it is most popular out in California where people really know their avocados.

And if you are in an experimenting mood, better try those mangos while you can. They may not be with us much longer. For a really rich treat, cut in halves and remove the seed; fill the cavity with vanilla ice cream. Or serve the fruit plain with a few drops of lime juice squeezed over it.

IT IS DIFFICULT to make accurate predictions about the meat situation this week, as it is always in a state of flux after Fourth of July and the following short week.

But it would seem that chickens might be a value, that the choice veal of all cuts, ham and bacon might be worth considering.

Pork loins have come down a bit, and seem to be the best buy in fresh pork.

And again we remind you that we are just getting into the season for that baby beef which is a favorite with many.

MEALS ON WHEELS

When you eat on the porch or in the backyard, put the meal "on wheels," and save your energy. Pile all the food and dishes onto a yard cart, a wheel table, or even Billy's wagon.

Then enlist Dad or a youngster to "wheel out" the supper to the chosen dining spot.

Veal Chops in Sour Cream

Tender baked veal chops with sour cream sauce are delicious served with parsley potatoes and minted carrot sticks. Sour cream is a "magic" ingredient which can help you build an enviable culinary reputation.

Sour Cream Can Add That Special Touch to Many Dishes, From Soup to Dessert.

HAVE you learned the trick of using sour cream to help you build a culinary reputation? This one ingredient, with its pleasant tangy flavor, can add a touch of magic to almost any course of the meal.

The sour cream referred to is a fresh dairy product, made from sweet cream which is pasteurized, homogenized and inoculated with a culture of lactic acid bacteria, then allowed to develop acidity until just the right point has been reached.

This differs from the sour cream you obtain if cream is left in a warm spot, or lost in the depths of the refrigerator. Because of the high heat necessary in the pasteurization process, it takes so long for cream to sour normally that the resulting product is no longer fresh.

Let's see how we can capitalize on the bewitching flavor of sour cream. Use it as a soup garnish, with vegetables, as a salad dressing, in baked goods, with fruit for dessert.

It does flattering things to meats, and particularly to veal. As an example, consider these Veal Chops in Sour Cream.

Four lean veal chops.
Two tablespoons butter or margarine.
Salt and pepper.

Four large slices sweet onion.
One cup thick sour cream.
Grated Parmesan cheese.

Brown chops in butter in frying pan. Arrange in baking dish. Season to taste with salt and pepper and place an onion slice on top of each chop. Mix one-fourth cup water with the drippings in the frying pan and pour over the chops.

Cover and bake in a 350 degree preheated oven for 45 minutes. Remove the cover, spread your cream over the tops of the chops, sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese, and return to the oven for 20-30 minutes more.

Sour cream is also a "natural" with chicken, and one of the most famous combinations is Chicken Paprika.

One-fourth cup chopped onion.
One-fourth cup butter or margarine.
Four and one-half to five pound chicken, cut up.
Salt and pepper.

One to two teaspoons paprika.
Four tablespoons sifted flour.
One cup thick sour cream.
Cook onion in butter over low heat for about five minutes. Add the chicken. Sprinkle with salt and pepper; cover tightly and cook over low heat until tender.

Remove chicken. Skim off any excess fat from chicken stock in the pan. Mix paprika, flour and sour cream until smooth.

Add to chicken stock in the pan. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add salt if desired.

(To make a thinner gravy, add water gradually, stirring constantly.)

Cook chicken. Reheat. Yield: six servings.

Here is a recipe for chicken salad that really is different—crisp and crunchy with fresh vegetables and water chestnuts. Oriental Chicken Salad.

One bunch radishes.
One large cucumber.
One three-ounce can sliced broiled mushrooms.
One can water chestnuts (five ounces).
Two cups sliced cooked chicken.
One-half cup sour cream.
One-half cup mayonnaise.
One teaspoon ginger.
Wash radishes and cucumber and slice about one-eighth inch thick. Cut each piece of cucumber into four wedges. Drain mushrooms and chestnuts, saving broth for use in gravy or soup.

Slice chestnuts about one-eighth inch thick. Place all vegetables in large salad bowl with chicken. Thoroughly blend sour cream, mayonnaise and ginger. Add to chicken and vegetables and toss lightly together, making sure that all of the mixture has been coated with the dressing. Serve well chilled with crisp salad greens. Yield: four generous servings.

Sour cream has a way with vegetables, too. Those green beans that are so excellent right now in local markets will be something special in this.

Green Beans ala Russe.
One pint cooked green beans.
One-half cup sour cream.
Two tablespoons flour.
One-half cup liquid from beans.
One tablespoon sugar.
One tablespoon vinegar.
Two tablespoons chopped parsley.
Two tablespoons chopped onions.
Salt and pepper.

Fry onions and parsley in melted butter. Add flour, stir. Add one-half cup liquid from beans, seasonings, sugar and vinegar. Add beans and heat thoroughly. Just before serving add sour cream and serve hot.

Or try these Beets in Sour Sauce.
Two tablespoons flour.
One cup thick sour cream.
One tablespoon prepared horseradish.
One teaspoon vinegar.
Salt and pepper.
Three cups sliced, cooked beets, drained.

Add flour to sour cream. Mix until smooth. Cook in double boiler until thickened, stirring constantly. Add horseradish and vinegar. Season with salt and pepper. If desired, add more horseradish.

Add beets. Reheat, stirring occasionally. Yield: four to six servings.

Here sour cream appears in a vitamin-laden Cabbage Carrot Slaw.
Two teaspoons vinegar.
One-half to one teaspoon salt.
Few grains pepper.
Three cups shredded cabbage, chilled.
One and one-half cups grated carrots, chilled.
Lettuce or other greens.
Mix sour cream, vinegar, salt and pepper. Toss together lightly. Serve on lettuce. Yield: six servings.

For a salad dressing, just mix one-eighth to one-fourth teaspoon salt in one cup thick, sour cream. Serve with any of your favorite salad ingredients, either as a topping or tossed together.

To vary the dressing, try Cucumber Dressing: Combine two and one-half teaspoons lemon juice with the sour cream and salt. Fold in one cup drained chopped cucumbers, being careful not to overmix. Serve with fish salads, tomato aspic or on wedges of lettuce. Yield: six to eight servings.

Horseradish Dressing: Add two tablespoons drained prepared horseradish. Serve with ham, tongue, oysters or pickled beets. Yield: four to six servings.

A final reminder: do try sour cream with fresh fruits for summer dessert. Berries are delectable served with sour cream and brown sugar.

STUFFED TOMATOES
FINE SUMMER FARE

WHAT is your favorite way to use tomatoes? They are so versatile that their role in your menus is limited only by your imagination. And right now they are superb—big and succulent.

If you have lunch box toters at home, just wash the tomatoes, leave them whole—and be sure to include the salt.

Of course tomatoes are a natural in summer salads. Slice them, quarter or halve them, or cut them into small chunks. One word of caution—if they are to be used in a tossed salad be sure to toss all the other ingredients together first, then add the tomatoes and give the salad a final gentle toss before serving. In this way the tomatoes are mixed with the other ingredients and coated with dressing, but still keep their identity.

To use tomatoes for a garnish, try putting slices inside green pepper rings; this gives an effective contrast in color.

Here are four ways to prepare tomatoes, and some fillings to use with them.

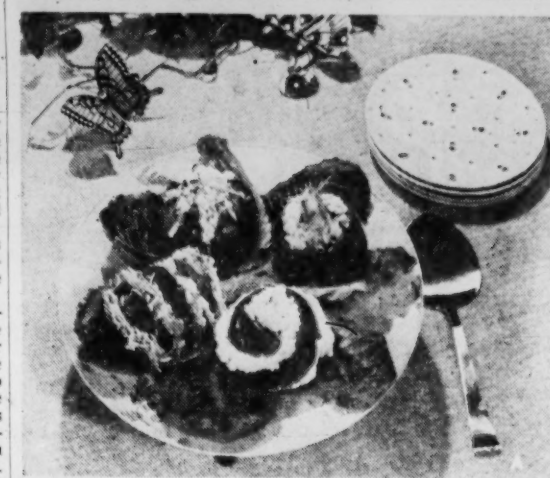

Stuffed Tomatoes.
For cups: Cut off one-fourth inch slice from stem end of each tomato and scoop out pulp, leaving tomato cup. Sprinkle inside with salt; invert and chill. Stuff with one of the salad fillings; serve on lettuce.

For flower cups: Cut tomato into four or five sections almost to stem end. Spread apart slightly; season; fill with one of the salads. Serve on lettuce.

For tomato fans: Slice tomatoes in vertical slices, not quite through. Fan slices apart; season and fill. Serve on lettuce.

For tomato swirls: Cut a spiral slice, starting at top of tomato

Ideal for Summer Luncheon

Stuffed tomatoes are sheer delight for summer eating, and with the excellent firm tomatoes now on the market the result is a pictorial masterpiece as well. Pictured here are four different ways to prepare them.

and cutting about three-fourths of the way down sides. Remove enough of the meat from the center of tomato for filling. Season and fill; replace spiral cut over filling. Serve on lettuce.

Suggested Fillings.
Crabmeat Salad:
One 6½-ounce can crabmeat.
One-half cup finely chopped celery.
One teaspoon capers.
Two tablespoons mayonnaise.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
One hard-cooked egg, chopped.
One teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon pepper.
Combine all ingredients and chill. Fills four tomatoes.

Egg Salad:
Four hard-cooked eggs, chopped.
Two green onions, sliced.
One teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon pepper.

Dash paprika.
One-fourth cup salad oil.
Two tablespoons vinegar.
One teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
Two tablespoons grated cheese.
Combine all ingredients and chill. Fills four tomatoes.

Vegetable Salad:
One cup shredded carrots.
Two cups shredded cabbage.
One teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon pepper.
One teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
Two teaspoons grated onion.
One teaspoon lemon juice.
One tablespoon mayonnaise.
One tablespoon sour cream.
One teaspoon prepared mustard.
Combine vegetables and seasonings. Let stand 30 minutes. Drain and add remaining ingredients. Chill. Fills four.

ICE CREAM AND CAKE
COLOR CO-ORDINATED

MOST women give a great deal of thought to color schemes in clothes and home furnishings, but how many create a dessert with a color scheme? It is a simple as matching angel food cake and ice cream, and every homemaker knows that these two foods add up to a delectable dessert on any menu.

For instance, green and white angel cake and mint or pistachio ice cream provide a cool combination for a hot summer day.

Pink and white marble cake with peppermint or strawberry ice cream is perfect for a bride's luncheon or afternoon dessert.

It is fun to design combinations to complement your table-setting. Besides changing the colors of the cake, you may tint a glaze for the top to match the color of the cake, or vary the flavoring in either cake or glaze.

To carry out this idea, all you need is a box of angel food cake mix and several kinds of food coloring. Just prepare the cake as directed on the package, then add whatever coloring you desire to half the batter. Spoon the white and colored batters alternately into the pan, make a few easy swirls with a knife, and the finished cake will have a pretty marbled appearance.

For a plain glaze which you can tint or flavor as you like, follow this recipe:

Measure two cups sifted confectioners' sugar into bowl. Heat three tablespoons milk and two tablespoons butter or margarine over low heat, stirring constantly, just until butter melts.

Remove from heat. Add to sugar, stirring until smooth. Stir in one-half teaspoon vanilla, or other flavoring to taste.

ISRAELI, EGYPT DELEGATES AGREE ON GAZA AGENDA

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector, July 7 (AP)—Israeli and Egyptian representatives agreed yesterday on an agenda for their conference under United Nations auspices to relieve tension in the Gaza strip.

Israel said both parties approved for discussion a list of proposals suggested by Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Canadian chief of U.N. truce observers in Palestine. Burns, chairman of the conference, submitted a detailed scheme for setting up joint Israeli-Egyptian patrols to keep peace along the troubled border, the announcement said.

A U.N. communique said the meeting took up another Burns proposal to use only well-trained and disciplined regular troops or police for patrols and outposts.

3 Top U.S. Air Officers Confer In Taipei on Red Air Buildup

Two Communist Jet Bases in Striking Distance of Formosa Reported Near Completion.

TAIPEI, Formosa, July 7 (AP)—Three top United States Air Force officers in the Pacific flew into Taipei today for a series of conferences on the buildup of Communist air power on the nearby Red mainland.

Simultaneously the Chinese Nationalists said two Red air bases which would bring Formosa and the offshore islands within easy striking distance of Communist jets were about completed.

The visiting officers are Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, commander of the Far East Air Force in Japan; Maj. Gen. Sory Smith, chief of the Pacific Air Command in Pearl Harbor, and Brig. Gen. William L. Lee, commander of the United States Thirteenth Air Force in the Philippines.

Operating Problems.

In addition to the Red buildup, they will discuss operating problems of the United States air task force on Formosa. One possible result might be the rotation of additional United States Air Force squadrons on Formosa for training purposes.

Gen. Wang (Tiger) Shu-ming, chief of the Nationalist air force, said a new Communist jet field at Swatow, 200 miles west of Formosa, is almost ready for use. He also said, in an interview, that remodeling work on a Red air base at Fochow is nearly complete. Fochow is 120 miles northwest of Formosa.

Wang said the Communists were continuing to shift their air power southward to the seaboard provinces, from which Formosa could be threatened or attacked at any time.

He estimated the Reds had about 1000 planes in these coastal provinces, about half of them Russian-type MIG-15s.

Nationalist Air Buildup.

The Nationalist air force, Wang said, is being built up with more modern planes, powerful radar equipment and better anti-aircraft guns. More Formosan airports can be used for jet training, he said, and fewer pilots have to be sent to the United States for that purpose.

Wang gave no estimate of the jet strength of his air force, but it is believed to include approximately one wing of Sabrejets.

Nationalist Chinese warplanes destroyed five armed motorized junks off the Red Chinese mainland today, Nationalist air force headquarters said.

It also said four gunboats and six armed motorized junks were damaged.

One of the two attacks was about 60 miles southwest of Quemoy and the other was near Nantung Island in the vicinity of Swatow. The air force said all its planes returned.

The Nationalists' official Taitao news agency said today a division of crack Chinese Communist troops was transferred in early June to the vicinity of Siberian port, near the borders of Manchuria and Korea.

The agency, operated by the Interior Ministry and claiming underground contacts on the mainland, said the move was "apparently connected with some new intrigue by the Soviet Union and Red China."

POLIO CASES DOWN 40 PCT. IN U.S. FROM LAST YEAR

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—New cases of polio reported for the week ended July 2 totaled 12 per cent above the figure for the preceding week but 40 per cent below the total for the corresponding week last year, the Public Health Service said today.

The service said a total of 331 cases had been reported for the week, excluding Montana which had not yet made its report but which had reported two cases for the preceding week.

The figure 331 compares with 277 cases for the preceding week and 562 cases for the corresponding week of 1954.

"Since the beginning of the year," the service said, "a total of 3708 cases of poliomyelitis has been reported as compared with 4697 for the same period of 1954."

PRINCESS SEES CRASH OF BRITISH JET FIGHTER

FARNBOROUGH, England, July 7 (UP)—One of Britain's supersonic Hawker-Hunter jet fighters crashed on take off today in full view of Princess Margaret, who was visiting Farnborough to see a display of Britain's newest and fastest aircraft.

The fighter plowed into the earth seconds after roaring off in a mass takeoff with other planes at this experimental, development field where a fighter crashed into a crowd in 1952.

The Princess and a crowd of thousands saw the swept-wing jet fall out of formation and plummet to earth a mile from the end of the runway. The pilot was killed.

The Princess flew here today in the Duke of Edinburgh's helicopter to attend celebrations of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Farnborough establishment.

FOUR WITNESSES HEARD IN POLICE 'PAYOFF' INQUIRY

Four witnesses were heard yesterday by the circuit court grand jury in its investigation of alleged payoffs to police by Mrs. June Lytz, former operator of a massage parlor at 308A North Theresa avenue. The jury then recessed until next Tuesday.

Assistant Circuit Attorney Joseph M. Setlich declined to name the witnesses, but said they were "not policemen." An investigation by the circuit attorney and the police board began after Miss Pauline Cloin, an employee of the massage parlor, charged that police had been paid off by the murdered Mrs. Lytz.

GRETA GARBO IN FRANCE

CANNES, France, July 7 (AP)—Greta Garbo arrived on the Riviera today in her usual manner—felt house slippers, slacks, a plain blouse, dark glasses and ducking photographers.

She came ashore by boat from the liner Constitution with her old friend George Schlee, husband of New York dress designer Valentina. She has bought the villa l'Europe, at Cap d'ail. While it is being repaired, she is staying at the Hotel de Paris in Monte Carlo.

GRAND, MARKET NORTH-SOUTH DETOUR TO BE READY MONDAY

Completion of a 500-foot blacktop strip that will enable north-south traffic to resume use of the Grand boulevard viaduct at Market street has been delayed by rain, but the detour should be ready for use by Monday evening, B. B. Bondurant, resident engineer for the State Highway Department, said today.

The detour, under construction for about two weeks, is 100 west of Grand boulevard. It was originally scheduled for completion last Friday. Rain interfered with a second deadline, set for late this afternoon, but pouring of the asphalt surface will be resumed tomorrow morning if the weather is dry, Bondurant said.

An underpass is being built to carry Market street traffic under Grand boulevard. During construction of the detour, which will carry two streetcar tracks, two lanes of motor traffic and a sidewalk, Grand has been closed to automotive traffic from Chouteau to Clark avenues. Maj. William C. Calkins, head of the Police Traffic Division, today urged that work on the detour be speeded.

YOUTH WOUNDED IN ATTEMPT TO FLEE FROM OIL STATION

Police Sgt. Rollie Cummings shot and wounded a youth who had broken into a filling station at Thirteenth street and St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis, early today when the youth tried to flee. A companion obeyed orders to halt, and was captured.

The youth, who said he was Donald Holloway, 20 years old, living in the 1800 block of Gaty avenue, is in St. Mary's Hospital with a bullet wound in the side. Holloway, a Negro, was shot when Cummings fired through a glass door as the youth dashed toward a side exit. Captured with Holloway was a 19-year-old Negro, booked as Samuel E. Bush, 1900 block of Piggott avenue.

Cummings and Patrolman Charles Carney Jr., who were dispatched to the filling station at 2:30 a.m. after neighbors reported burglars were in the place, said the youths were trying to remove the cash box from a soft drink machine when they saw the officers approaching.

15 LAWYERS NOMINATED FOR ILLINOIS JUDICIAL POST

Fifteen lawyers of the Illinois third judicial district have been nominated for the vacancy caused by the death of Circuit Judge Edward Bareis, East St. Louis, last March, it was announced by State's Attorney Richard T. Carter following a meeting last night at Hotel Broadview, East St. Louis.

Carter, chairman of a committee handling the election, said ballots would be sent out this week to 335 attorneys as a preliminary step in naming the new judge. His committee will meet July 18 to tabulate the vote and select the top five for a runoff. Political leaders in the seven counties of the district then will select one of the two top contenders.

Nominees are: Harry Patton and M. E. Newell, Alton; Jess R. Brown, Edwardsville; Walter Whitlock and Eugene Widman, both of Belleville; and Judson E. Harris, Du Quoin, and Joseph E. Fleming, Kevin Kane, H. V. Gustin, Walter Kassidy, Louis Beasley, James Wheatley, James A. Starnes, Zeno Middleton and Robert Rutledge, all of East St. Louis.

FINED $1000 FOR FAILURE TO FILE 1953 TAX RETURN

John Donald Gunn, owner of a highway materials supply company, was fined $1000 today after he pleaded guilty of failing to file an income tax return for the year 1953. United States District Judge George H. Moore allowed Gunn five days to pay the fine.

A second count charging Gunn with failure to file a return for 1952 was dropped by the Government. The charge is a misdemeanor punishable by a year's imprisonment and a fine up to $10,000. Gunn was charged with having failed to report gross income of $20,017 in 1953 and $16,198 in 1952.

Charges alleged the income was received by Gunn from the construction supply business operated by him under the name of the Highway Materials Co., with offices at 706 Chestnut street. Gunn, 46 years old, lives at 8308 San Bonita drive, Clayton.

FOUND SHOT TO DEATH, EMPTY PISTOL AT HIS SIDE

Peter F. Richarz, 67 years old, was found shot to death yesterday in his second-floor room at 2831 Lafayette avenue. An empty German-made pistol was at his side.

His sister, Miss Fannie Richarz, who lives in the same building, told police her brother had suffered a nervous condition since World War I, and said he had made statements indicating he would kill himself.

Miss Richarz said she called police after she heard a thud in his room.

Richarz's body was found by police. There was a bullet wound in the left side of the head.

What's New in Canning or Freezing?

BY SALLY COWAN

IT MAY surprise you to learn that the familiar, standard glass jar, which has been a home canning favorite for so many years, is equally useful for home freezing. This ought to please almost everyone who plans to do some canning or freezing this season because, for one thing, you will have to buy only one type of container to do your freezing or canning; and, for another, with glass you can be sure you will have dependably good home frozen food whenever you want it.

UNIVERSITY TESTS GLASS IN FREEZING

According to recent tests at the University of Massachusetts, glass canning jars meet all the essential requirements for a satisfactory package for home and locker frozen foods. In reply to the common belief that glass tends to break easily at low temperatures, the University's Bulletin states: "Technically speaking, there is no available evidence to the effect that the brittleness of such containers is increased at freezing temperatures."

GLASS PROVEN SAFE, EASY, PROTECTIVE

Atlas canning jars used for freezing were found to be moisture-vapor proof, preventing freezer burn and drying. They are leak-proof and air-tight, protecting flavor while preventing the absorption of flavor from other foods. A glass jar does not impart foreign odors or flavors, and it will not absorb grease, oil or water from the food it contains. Unlike other types of containers, glass can be kept clean always, and foods do not adhere to it. Furthermore, the contents of a glass jar are easily identified without labels. Only glass has all of these advantages.

GLASS ECONOMICAL THROUGH RE-USE

Since Atlas Mason jars are durable they may be used many, many times, as they have been used in home canning for years. And since the same glass jars can be used for either canning or freezing, no large investment in special freezing containers is needed to do both.

ATLAS GIVES FREE DIRECTIONS, RECIPES

The makers of Atlas Jars have prepared a fully illustrated booklet containing complete instructions for home canning and freezing, as well as helpful hints and many special recipes and food preservation ideas. You may obtain a copy by writing to: Hazel-Atlas Glass Company, Dept. D, Wheeling, West Virginia.

WEALTHY INVENTOR INDICTED ON 60 MORALS CHARGES

MINEOLA, N.Y., July 7 (UP)—A multi-millionaire inventor, who filmed sex parties between himself and teen-age girls, will be arraigned today on 60 morals charges that could imprison him for life.

Ivan Jerome, a 62-year-old Russian, was indicted by a Nassau county grand jury yesterday.

He has been held in $50,000 bail since his arrest June 28.

Jerome is charged with rape, abuse and endangering the morals of girls from 11 to 17 years of age, whom he allegedly gave money and cheap costume jewelry to perform in the cheap pornographic films.

The films were discovered by firemen after a $500,000 fire in Jerome's farmer's market in Massapequa last June 12.

STATE DEPT. AID SAYS U.S. STILL BARS RED CHINA

Hopes Statement Will Correct Contrary Impression Reported by Nu on U.N. Entry.

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—A State Department spokesman said today United States opposition to seating Red China in the United Nations stands unchanged. The spokesman said he hoped his statement would correct a contrary impression reported by Burmese Premier U Nu.

Press Officer Henry Suydam said he had received a number of inquiries as to policy on the matter after Nu told a New York press conference yesterday he had got in Washington "the impression that most of the responsible people are not against the admission of Peiping into the United Nations."

Nu added they were simply thinking "about the time when it could be done."

Bridges Calls for Names.

Senator Bridges Rep., New Hampshire, called in an interview today for the names of the "responsible officials" who gave Nu the impression he reported.

Suydam was asked whether Bridges had requested the State Department to make inquiries for the names. Suydam said he knew of no action like that.

Earlier White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters he had made inquiries and had learned that Nu did not discuss the matter of admitting Red China in his talks with President Eisenhower. He said the same thing was true of the Burmese official's conversations with Secretary of State Dulles.

Knowland Begins Survey.

Senate Republican Leader Knowland said his "rather extensive inquiries" had turned up no United States official who believes Red China should be brought into the U.N. Knowland told the Senate he considers the statement by Nu "rather unfortunate."

Suydam was asked whether his own comment was designed to meet Nu's "impression."

"I hope what I have said here will correct that impression," Suydam said.

His statement was simply this: "There has been no change in United States policy to oppose the seating in the United Nations of a representative of the Chinese Communist regime."

Suydam was reminded that Nu had emphasized the problem of timing and he was asked about eventual admission of Red China. He was asked specifically whether he was saying there was no change in United States policy "at this time."

Suydam said he was making a statement authorized by the State Department and "if we had wished to state 'at this time' we would have added it."

Congressional Resolution.

A new foreign aid authorization bill near final congressional approval contains language saying it is the sense of Congress that Communist China "has not demonstrated its willingness to fulfill the obligations contained

In the charter of the United Nations. . . .

At an Overseas Press Club reception in New York yesterday, Nu said some Asians are dubious about the United States because:

1. It has taken what Nu called equivocal positions in recent years on colonial issues.
2. It has allied itself with and given support to "undemocratic, corrupt and discredited regimes," some of which have "been repudiated by the people concerned."
3. "Some of your leaders, and a portion of your press . . . are responsible for building the impression abroad that America is a land of warmongers, thirsting for another war regardless of its consequences."

Nu arrived in Detroit today to tour the huge Ford Rouge plant and Greenfield Village. He also planned to visit the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor.

880,000 CANADIAN CHILDREN INOCULATED; NO POLIO CASES

OTTAWA, July 7 (AP)—Canada inoculated 880,000 children, mostly in the 5-to-7 age group, with Salk vaccine in the April 12-July 12 period. Most got two injections and some all three. Officials reported no cases of polio among the inoculated.

The program recessed July 1 for two months of vacation.

STEPS TO ENLARGE TRIAL AUG. 8 FOR U.S. MAJOR COUNCIL OF EUROPE ACCUSED OF AIDING ENEMY WILL BE STUDIED

STRASBOURG, France, July 7 (AP)—Francois de Menthon of France today launched a study of steps to bring other nations, including eastern European states, into the Council of Europe.

The spokesman for the general affairs committee of the European Consultative Assembly filed an Assembly motion to this effect as a followup to proposals made yesterday by British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay. Both Macmillan and Pinay urged such a study.

Ales Bebler, Yugoslav ambassador to France and formerly his nation's foreign minister, arrived from Paris and conferred with Leon Marechal, secretary general of the Council. Apparently it concerned Yugoslavia's possible adherence to the European organization in one way or another.

De Menthon told a news conference that other nations might be linked to the council in one of three ways: (1) Associate members after rules for associates have been watered down; (2) Observers under terms to be discussed in each case, or (3) Governments invited to participate in certain activities of the council.

NEW YORK FIGHTS CALIFORNIA BID AS CHIEF TV CENTER

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP)—Gov. Averell Harriman has conferred with major television network representatives to try to prevent New York's losing out to California as a producing center, the New York Times says.

The Times story, by Jack Gould, says Harriman noted that the National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System have established large permanent plants in Hollywood, but have not done so in New York.

BRITISH SEAMAN CHARGED WITH REVEALING SECRETS

PORTSMOUTH, England, July 7 (AP)—A seaman in the Royal Navy's submarine service was charged today with revealing secret information.

The Admiralty accused Able Seaman Michael Ronald Andrews with "failing to heed a warning that he should not reveal certain information which had come to him in the performance of his duties."

TWO HURT WHEN STREETCAR SPLITS SWITCH, IS DERAILED

Two women were injured last night when a University streetcar jumped the tracks after splitting a switch at Big Bend boulevard and Millbrook avenue, University City, and knocked them against a barricade.

Miss Pearl Nunley, 5577 Vernon avenue, and Mrs. Amanda Landman, 4044 Adline avenue, were treated at St. Louis County Hospital for cuts and bruises. The streetcar operator, Harold W. Karnes, 5062 Wells avenue, said the rear wheels left the tracks, after a passenger got out of the car and threw the switch for him.

FOUND DEAD IN HOSPITAL

Marcus Hurtt, a retired brick layer, of 4420 Jennings road, Pine Lawn, was found dead last night in his room at Alexian Brothers Hospital, 3933 South Broadway.

He was found in a seated position with one end of his bathrobe cord looped over the door of his room and the other end around his neck. Hurtt, 83 years old, was admitted to the hospital June 30.

JUNE CONSTRUCTION OUTLAYS SET RECORD

Expenditures for Last Month
Figured at $3,800,-

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Outlays for new construction were higher in June, at about $3,800,000,000, than in any previous month on record, the Departments of Labor and Commerce estimated today.

That rounded out a record first half of the year, with construction expenditures totaling some $19,100,000,000.

This represented an annual rate, after adjustment for seasonal factors, of $41,700,000,000, 11 per cent higher than the previous record of $37,600,000,000 in the previous peak year, 1954.

The joint monthly report from the two departments said virtually all types of construction shared in the June upsurge. Construction outlays rose 7 per cent from May to June.

The report said:
For the first half of the year dollar outlays on new construction ran 14 per cent higher than in the first half of 1954.

Store building was 42 per cent above the level of the first half of 1954, housing was 34 per cent higher, building of churches was 33 per cent higher and public school construction ran 19 per cent ahead. Work on Air Force bases pushed construction of military facilities ahead of the pace in the first six months of last year.

$50 FILLING STATION HOLDUP

Charles Kimble, attendant at a service station at 231 South Vandeventer avenue, was robbed of $50 early today by a man who threatened him with a revolver and said, "Give me the money and make it snappy."

Kimble took $50 from his pockets and handed it over, and the man left. The robber was a Negro. Kimble was robbed of $543 in another holdup on Saturday. He was unable to say whether the two holdups were by the same man.

MISSING FIGHTER PLANE HAD BEEN HERE ALL THE TIME

Five airplanes participated in a search today for an Air Force F-94 Starfire jet fighter, which was at Lambert-St. Louis Field all the time.

The search, which began at dawn, was called off about 10 a.m. when it was learned the supposedly missing plane landed here last night after changing course due to bad weather. It had been on way from Grandview Air Force Base, Kansas City, to Stewart Air Force Base, Nashville, Tenn.

It was discovered by coincidence that the plane was here when the operations officer at the Naval Air Station noticed that the number of an aircraft for which a flight plan was filed this morning was the same as that of the missing fighter. The search resulted when the Military Flight Service at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, O., failed to close out the pilot's flight plan after his arrival here last night.

19,545 New Canadian Citizens.
OTTAWA, July 7 (AP)—Citizenship certificates were granted to 19,545 new Canadians last year, 40 per cent more than in 1953. The Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday. Among the newcomers are 570 former United States citizens.

GIVES MOTORIST PUSH BUT GOOD DEED BACKFIRES

The act of a good Samaritan landed John I. Rollings, president of the Missouri Federation of Labor, in police court yesterday, but all was well when his role became clear and Judge Robert G. Dowd dismissed the charges of careless driving and leaving the scene of an accident.

The trouble developed June 3, when Rollings gave a push to an automobile whose driver did not want it pushed in the 2200 block of South Vandeventer avenue. The driver, Charles R. Thurber, of the 4000 block of DeTonty street, said he was parked double and waiting for someone when Rollings drove up from the rear.

Thurber said he motioned for him to go around. But Rollings, taking the arm signal as a request for a push, eased up to the bumper and gave. Whereupon Thurber got out and protested, finally going to a police station and preferring charges.

A good deed had backfired.

FINED FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

Thomas A. Christoffel, 3330 Bendick avenue, was fined $100 today by Police Judge Robert G. Dowd who found him guilty of driving when intoxicated. His driver's license was suspended for 90 days.

Christoffel was arrested April 4 in the 3200 block of Utah street after his automobile had struck the rear of another car. Police testified that an intoximeter test showed Christoffel was drunk. Christoffel told the judge he was not drunk, but sleepy.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

MAN ARRESTED IN GAMBLING RAID CONVICTED, FINED $500

Mike Michaels, 1455A Chouteau avenue, was fined $500 yesterday by Police Judge Robert G. Dowd after he was found guilty of setting up and keeping a common gaming house. Michaels was arrested June 1 when members of the police gambling squad raided his flat at the Chouteau avenue address. Police testified the flat had been under surveillance for two weeks previous to Michaels' arrest. Further testimony disclosed that Michaels threw two telephones out a side window as police attempted to gain entry. Maj. James F. Thompson, head of the squad, who led the raid, said evidence of $9501 in bets evidently taken the previous day, was found. Bet tabs showed most of the wagers were on baseball games and horse races. He added, Michaels has appealed the fine.

Chevron Macaroni Casserole (Makes 4-6 servings)

1 tablespoon salt
3 quarts boiling water
2 cups elbow macaroni (8 ounces)
1 10 1/2-ounce can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1 cup milk
1 cup grated processed Cheddar cheese (about 1/4 pound)
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Freshly ground pepper
1 12-ounce can luncheon meat, cut in 1/4-inch strips

Add 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add macaroni so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

Combine soup, milk, cheese, Worcestershire sauce and pepper; place over low heat and cook, stirring occasionally, until cheese is melted. Add macaroni and luncheon meat, reserving 6 strips casserole and place meat strips on top of casserole to form chevrons. Place under broiler about 3 inches from heat for 10 minutes, or until lightly browned and sauce is bubbly.

PANORAMA OF PLAZA PROGRESS

As demolition progresses on the Plaza area, an unusual view of familiar St. Louis landmarks is revealed. In this scene, from an elevation at Fourteenth and Pine streets, the Basilica of St. John the Apostle and Evangelist (left) and the Centenary Methodist Church (right) rise above the cleared area. The main Post Office and Union Station on Market Street are at upper left. The two churches and the Eighteenth Street Garage (center) are among the few buildings to remain in the area. Buildings in the foreground are yet to be razed.

BIG SPLASH AT THE ZOO

Amused spectators encouraging Bobo, the Forest Park zoo's big gorilla, in his mischievous habit of splashing people with water from the pool in his cage. Except for his keeper, Frank Florsek, Bobo scoops water at all who come within range. Zoo Director George P. Vierheller received a splashing Tuesday when Bobo seized a golden opportunity and drenched him as he passed the cage.

MASTER OF HIS ART

Showing his consummate mastery of the bullfighting art, Litri kneels with his back to the bull in the Oran Arena, Algeria. The famed bull-fighter appeared yesterday before a crowd of 12,000 for his first public exhibition in two years. Spanish observers and members of the press termed his comeback remarkable. He was awarded two ears and a tail for his first bull.

Some Free Advice

TV Stars Should Save Their Money

By Jack O'Brian

NEW YORK, July 7 (INS).

WHY do they fall? Why does a "Mr. Peepers" cause a regretful, even a resentful howl of mass anguish one year and then cause its admirers to write NBC in lots of thousands and successfully get it back on TV? Then why this year does the show lose its once fond place in the television sun, almost in a whimper, and with little or no protest from the same fans who once wouldn't consider losing it?

Why does a "Red Buttons" start off like a bat out of the borscht circuit to land in TV with the impact of a Gleason; then lose sponsors, viewers, even sympathizers?

The psychologists say everything in sight and come up with social studies and trend analysis and whatnot.

IT BOILS DOWN simply to this: Stars of today's big shows had better save their money. It's likely to happen to them, too.

Red Buttons never really had very good material. He had a certain youthful personality and natural aggressiveness and a wide smile and an elaborate humility which served temporarily—a strange combination of assertive drive and fabricated shyness. Pretty soon the personality wasn't enough. It was plain Red never had bothered to create a "character" to solidify the "personality."

His hassles with some 87 writers became public knowledge.

His public attacks on his aides became common gossip and pretty soon the humility and shyness were rubbed away, for they only had been painted on. Along with his "personality," Red had had rosters, personality and in the mass; but Red didn't take his sudden success gently, cautiously. He in fact, "took it big." His shows suffered and the audience grew restless. His few catch phrases (ho-ho hee-hee, etc.) were replaced by all sorts of things up to and including Davy Crockett.

"MR. PEEPER" is a case of another, gentler color entirely. Some say TV is totally unlike life, or the earth, and the meek will not inherit TV's earth, that the inheritors must be driving and canny egotists such as Milton Berle, Jackie Gleason, Jack Webb, restlessly galvanic ego-whippers all. Others, such as Wally Cox, may offer a cautious foot in TV's door from time to time, but had better be ready to yank it out or get it fractured, their careers with it.

Imogene Coca suffered too horrible a fate this season for a girl of her talents. She alone of the original big three—Sid Caesar, Max Liebman and Imogene—was unready when Caesar and Liebman decided (without even telling Imogene in advance) they were going their separate NBC ways. She was too valuable to lose, but TV spread so frighteningly in every direction NBC couldn't or didn't keep a careful creative eye on the rich, sad little star. Wait till next year.

"MY FAVORITE HUSBAND" was a misfortune composed mostly of backstage bickering. The stars Barry Nelson and Joan Caulfield didn't actually hate each other; simply, Nelson hated being a sort of treacherous straight-man for the domestic comicalities written for and about Joan.

The scripts were amusing, fairly adult and literate for TV situation comedy, and the series at least created a real comic star in Bob Sweeney, much as "The Honeymooners" exploded Art Carney into full stardom. But Nelson hated his lines, Joan hated Nelson's hating his lines but liked her own, the rift widened, sponsors grew impatient, then edgy, then said the heck with it.

"My Favorite Husband" and TV thereupon got a divorce.

JOAN DAVIS'S series "I Married Joan" was a cheerful cornball caper with its heart in the right place, if occasionally hidden by the baggy trappings of very low comedy. It might have gone on for years except for one awful competitive word: "Disneveland!" "Dancer" was hoist on a combination of old hat, or cap, psycho-who-dunits and tough competition, to be replaced by the inevitable quiz ("$64,000 Question"). "Honestly Celeste," starring Celeste Holm, was done in by daggers in its scripts in the form of endless clichés; poor direction; a star with a pernicious attack of "the cutes" and other creative malefactions. "Halls of Ivy" may have choked on its ivy, which got poisoned with unbecoming delusions of Shaw, Wilde, Shakespeare and other honorable wise guys whose stuff did not, as "Halls" did, become stuffy. "Stu Erwin Show" was too gentle to combat Godfrey, even in the splashy wake of "Disneveland."

"RAY MILLAND SHOW" was dull last season and was renewed; was intelligent, if low key, adult fun this year and was cancelled. Blame it on that bad first time around. Also Groucho tilting glances, leerily, opposite.

"Strike It Rich"—Attacked by public authorities, the evening version went down ingloriously.

"Professional Father" lost out through the proximity of its awful scripts and George Gobel, as its new, fresh and worthy competitor.

"Comedy Hour"—An old basic Broadway rule was flouted virtually all the time. A comedy show can't get along without comedy; a production needs producers, directors, material; everyone finally fled, and out of sheer embarrassment even the title was changed from "The Comedy Hour" to "The Variety Hour." Now it lacks variety, too. You can't win sometimes and here plainly is one of the times.

As we were saying a few paragraphs ago—stars: Save your money.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

RUSSEL CROUSE, inclined to mislay things himself, can never get over the punctilious, attentive-to-every-detail behavior of his partner and crony, Howard Lindsay. "He even answers every letter the day he gets it," marvels Crouse in mock despair. "Why, if he gets one of those flossy announcements about a private month-end sale for special customers of a Fifth Avenue haberdashery, Lindsay sits right down to explain to them why he can't make it!"

ONE OF THE CATTIEST ACTRESSES in the film colony outdid herself the night her arch rival made a big hit in a Las Vegas casino. "Hmph!" snorted the caty one; "she's certainly an overnight sensation—every night!"

A NEAT SWITCH was pulled recently by some American officials in Berlin who understood the value of propaganda. Some Red hoodlums dumped a pile of garbage over the border line into the Western zone. Next morning they found on their side a barrel of creamy, fresh butter, with a note attached that read, "Each gives what he has."

Delicate Flavored Sweetbreads

Another Tasty Dish That Seldom Reaches the Table

By Hoyt Alden

PICKING up where we left off on the subject of splendid dishes which are too often ignored because of either the squeamishness, provincialism or ignorance of a lot of people, we take up the subject of the sweetbread.

In order to clear up any misunderstanding, sweetbreads are the thymus glands of calves and lambs. Those of the calf are most commonly encountered on the meat counter. As animals mature the gland disappears. Sweetbreads come in pairs, one part is called the heart sweetbread and the other the throat sweetbread.

They have a delicate flavor, and like brains, their consistency is quite soft. So, like brains, they require some preliminary cooking to stiffen them. Here's how:

Wash them well and then put them in a saucepan of boiling water with a teaspoon of salt and a tablespoon of either vinegar or lemon juice. Let them simmer for 15 minutes, then put them in a bowl of ice water.

They are now thoroughly cooked. Any additional cooking will be merely to complete the manner in which you wish to prepare them. At this point you should also go over them carefully and remove the cords and fibers.

AS far as I'm concerned you'd have to get up mighty early in the morning and go a long ways to find a better way to cook a sweetbread than just plain broiling it in butter. You can broil them whole or split them lengthwise. I like them broiled whole. After the pre-cooking, just brush them generously with butter, stick them under the broiler and let them stay until nicely browned which shouldn't take more than five or six minutes. Put them on hot toast, salt and pepper them, and have at it.

To me, putting fancy sauces on broiled sweetbreads is like putting catchup on a good steak. But a lot of perfectly nice people like them with mushroom sauce, made like this: Take the skins off half a pound of fresh mushrooms and put skins and stems in two and a half cups of water. Add half a teaspoon of salt, bring to a boil and let it simmer for 20 minutes. Drain, saving the liquid. Cut the mushroom caps thin and cook them in three tablespoons of butter for 10 minutes. Then blend in two tablespoons of flour and slowly stir in two cups of the mushroom stock. Bring it to a boil stirring all the time. Add a bouillon cube, a tablespoon of lemon juice and a little salt if needed. Let it simmer for 10 minutes, then pour it, hot, over the broiled sweetbreads and you have something pretty fine.

Back to the plain broiled sweetbreads, while they're broiling put a slice of good ham in a skillet and brown it a little on both sides and place the sweetbreads on that instead of toast.

Since sweetbreads are relatively expensive, they are often used in ways that stretch them. One way is to cream them with mushrooms, oysters or chicken. Here's a good recipe for creamed sweetbreads and mushrooms:

Pre-cook the sweetbreads as described above, then cut them

In small pieces. Melt four tablespoons of butter in a sauce pan and cook a fourth of a pound of sliced mushrooms therein for five minutes over a gentle fire. Blend in three tablespoons of flour and when smooth add a cup of cream and a cup of chicken stock. If you have no chicken stock, use a chicken bouillon cube. Bring it to a boil, stirring all the time. Add the sweetbreads and let it all simmer for about 10 minutes. Taste it for seasoning. Just before serving stir in a couple of tablespoons of good sherry, and serve it on toast that is hot and crisp.

ANOTHER excellent sweetbread dish is called sweetbreads hollandaise. Pre-cook the sweetbreads and cut them into bite-size pieces. Then beat up an egg and mix it with two tablespoons of milk, a half teaspoon of salt and a fourth teaspoon of paprika.

Dip the pieces of sweetbread in this mixture and then roll them in a half cup of crushed crumbs combined with a tablespoon of finely minced parsley. Now cut up a clove of garlic and saute it in three tablespoons of butter for about five minutes. You can also wrap large hunks of sweetbread in bacon and bake them in a moderate oven until the bacon is crisp.

Or you can cut them in cubes and put them on a skewer, alternating with inch squares of bacon and mushroom caps. Broil them, turning them three times, until the bacon is crisp.

Or, they may be cut up, dredged with seasoned flour, browned in fat and then placed in a low baking dish. After which you cover them with half a cup of stock and half a cup of cream and bake them for 20 minutes. Serve them on toast fried in butter and spread with deviled ham.

An old-timer is one who remembers when the bad guys in the movies were Indians or weird creatures from Mars instead of teen-agers that look like the ones next door.

Every community these days has to have a week-long festival with a fancy name to lure the tourists, but one town in the West complains that showmen have ruined its plans for a dustomera.

Looking back on it, there's an un-American tinge to the way our forefathers bought Manhattan for $24. Couldn't they have gotten it for nothing down 30-year terms and with a set of dishes thrown in?

Many flush tanks fail to operate properly because they don't contain a sufficient amount of water. The water content of the tank can be increased by bending the rod to which the float is attached upward. Check the operation of the tank after bending the rod to be sure that the water supply cuts off before water goes above the level of the overflow pipe. If it does, the rod has been bent too high.

Words, Wit And Wisdom

By William Morris

EVERY so often the mail brings a definitely rewarding letter. One such letter came today from John Miller of Milwaukee and I think you'll be interested in the point he makes. After noting that he finds these pieces both interesting and intellectually stimulating—thanks, John—he notes: "It's easy to see why our language is so confusing to the foreign born. We have so many words with the same sounds but different spellings and again identical words with widely different and apparently wholly unrelated meanings."

"ONE SUCH WORD which frankly has me curious as to its origin et cetera is 'spanking.' Commonly one thinks of spanking as a form of juvenile discipline (not in the Real Gone Lexicon era, I'm sure) but again we find phrases like 'spanking new.' At the risk of seeming stupid, what is the relationship between these meanings and uses of the word?"

Far from being stupid, Mr. Miller, you show a keen curiosity about the language we speak—and that's a long step in the direction of a better-rounded, more forceful vocabulary.

IN THIS CASE we are dealing with a pair of homonyms—words with the same sound and, in this case, spelling but of different origin and meaning. Spank, meaning to strike with an open hand, is a word formed in imitation of the sound it represents, an "echoic" word. "Blast" and "thump" are other words which probably originated in attempts to echo the sounds represented.

Spanking as in "spanking new," however, is thought to come from one of the Scandinavian tongues. Originally it was used to describe a fresh, lively breeze. Indeed it probably was first a sailor term, since it surely is related to the "spanker," a fore-and-aft sail. Eventually "spanking" came to its present meaning—anything remarkable or outstanding of its kind. Incidentally, it seems to me to be gradually falling into disuse. A generation ago you often heard of a "spanking team of horses." I have yet to hear anyone speak of his "spanking new convertible!"

1. WILL MARRIAGE WITHOUT LOVE EVER MAKE PEOPLE HAPPY? YES ☐ NO ☐

Answer to Question 1: O, it never makes either partner happy. Psychiatrist Marynia Farnham says, in substance: "Sexual expression, unless it is the expression of love, is meaningless. This is the most misunderstood notion of our times, and it has led to tragic results—increased divorce and infidelity. Neither sex to the exclusion of love, nor love to the exclusion of sex, is ever satisfying. Neither produces the greatest source of happiness—a love-filled home."

Answer to Question 2: True, if he wants to be a liberally educated person. Educator William T. Harris said, "Man gains most of his real-world wisdom from the poets." Charles Darwin, in his late years, said if he could live life over again, he would read some poetry and listen to some good music at least once a week. He believed he had lost a great deal of happiness from neglect of poetry and music. If you can't enjoy Shakespeare, Goethe, etc., read poetry of everyday life—an excellent collection in Ralph Woods' "Treasury of the Familiar."

Answer to Question 3: One of the deepest truths of life, and one we most neglect. The worker has an accident, typist makes mistakes, motorist has a crash, manager makes wrong decision—not necessarily from carelessness or lack of skill. The workman may have a sick child, typist's romance may be on the rocks, manager may fear losing his job, manager is worried over business. Some people seem to have a happier lot than others, but they, too, have worries and fears. A little kindness may give them the faith needed to be successful in the struggle.

Cheese-Filled Frankfurters Ingredients: One-fourth pound cheddar cheese, one tablespoon mayonnaise, two tablespoons tomato catchup, two tablespoons diced canned pimiento, four frankfurters, four frankfurter rolls, butter or margarine. Method: Grate cheese coarsely; there should be one cup. Mix with mayonnaise, catchup and pimiento. Split frankfurters in half lengthwise but not all the way through; spread frankfurters on foil-lined broiler with cut sides down; broil until hot through. Remove from oven. Turn cut sides up on pan; don't worry if frankfurters curl because filling will weigh them down. Spoon cheese filling over frankfurters. Place under moderate heat until cheese melts; watch carefully. Meanwhile split rolls in half lengthwise but not all the way through; toast and butter. With wide spatula, carefully place a filled frankfurter in each roll. Serve at once. Makes four servings.

The Child Show-Off

By Angelo Patri

MOST children love an appreciative audience, and usually get it, so they do not try too hard to be seen and heard at inopportune times. Then there are two groups at either end of the line who give their parents concern, the almost uncontrollable show-off and the very shy one. The overanxious one is the one we are talking about today.

This child, boy or girl, is highly excitable. The presence of other children, of strangers, or visiting friends, seems to make him lose control of himself and cause him to put on a show, much to the embarrassment of his parents. Even when he is taken to church, or Sunday school, he is likely to talk loudly, make noises, make faces at anyone looking his way, anything to attract attention to himself.

SOME OF THIS MAY BE CAUSED by an irritable nervous system, one so on edge that the least stimulation causes an uncontrolled spurt of energy. This is something for the physician and the psychologist to treat. Some of the children really ask for attention and once they get it are content, go their way and give no more trouble.

Viola was warned before her father and mother took her to see her aunt who lived at a distance that she must be on her very best behavior because Auntie was an old lady and not used to frisky little children. Viola solemnly agreed that proper conduct obliged her to be ladylike, a good child, one who did not speak until spoken to and then answered politely. Fine.

The introductions over and the guests settled in Auntie's living room, Viola rose suddenly, raced swiftly to the hearth rug and stood on her head. "Good gracious," said Auntie, merrily. Encouraged by the tone of the remark, Viola said, "And I can turn three cartwheels—see," and over and over she went.

"THAT'S WONDERFUL," said Auntie. "And what else can you do?" "I can ride at a fast canter. Can you?" The 80-year-old lady said, "Not today, but I remember the day I could" and launched into a story of when she was a little girl "like you."

Things do not always work out as well as that so if there is a show-off in the family prepare for his antics. Take along occupations like puzzles, paper and crayons, new books, anything to keep him busy and off the scene. He will manage to get into mischief somehow but if there are occupations at hand he can usually be controlled. Fortunately the healthy show-off soon passes through this state of mind, redirects his appeal for attention, and is less unendurable. "This too, shall pass."

A READER writes: When you attend a bridal or baby shower are you expected to buy another gift upon receiving a wedding announcement or baby announcement?—H.M.R., Granby, Colo.

AMY VANDERBILT

Depending on how you feel about the bride and groom you may even send a wedding gift when you have not been included in the invitation to the reception.

When you have taken a gift to a baby shower, you are not expected to take a gift to the baby after it arrives, as well. Again, however, you may do so if you are very close to the family or are a relative, but even in this case it is not obligatory.

Valley Park School Bus Trip to Mexico

20 Graduates Raised $3000

On Their Own to Finance

South-of-Border Journey

By John Keasler

IN Mexico City, land of the cringing fender, automotive vehicles are driven with a certain flourish, a debonair daredevilry which produces a horn-honking chaos sufficient to turn some visitors a very pale white. It may be that George S. Knight discovered the ideal vehicle, short of an extroverted bulldozer, for getting through Mexico City traffic.

He did it in a 53-passenger school bus painted bright yellow, a method of transportation so inspiring at an intersection bluff-out that it brought forth involuntary shouts of "bravo!" from Latin-American onlookers.

"We had a Mexican guide with us and each time we would win out over other traffic he would shout and cheer," said Knight. "I'll tell you, that Mexico City traffic is bad enough to scare a St. Louis cab driver—and that's pretty bad."

The reason Knight found himself driving a yellow, 53-passenger school bus through Mexico City to shouts of bravo was a 5000-mile journey paid for by Valley Park High School graduates.

This group recently got back from the Mexico trip, with lots to talk about, approximately three sombreroes per wayfarer, a considerably broadened education and the approximately correct pronunciation of "un momentito," which in Spanish means maybe, sooner than manana, maybe not.

Knight is the hard-working Valley Park School superintendent turned bus driver for the trip, an affair looked forward to each year by the senior class of Valley Park High School.

Last term's senior, raised some $3000 on their own, with the help and supervision of Mrs. Anne Zeiser Ritter, principal, and Miss Ann Miller, a teacher and sponsor of the senior class. The youngsters put on suppers, dances, school carnivals, plays, ice cream sales, a donkey baseball game, barbecue and fish suppers and published the school annual.

This kept them right busy, but they felt the goal was certainly worth it; a long journey, far-away places, strange sounding names. And now they know for sure all the work was worth it—they had a fine time.

Ten boys, 10 girls—16 to 18 years old—climbed in the school bus on June 1, accompanied by Knight, Mrs. Ritter and Miss Miller. Three weeks and 5150 miles later they returned.

YOU folks who think travel and touring has to cost large bunches of money, hearken: The cost was $5.22 per day per party member; that's food, transportation, lodging and some extras. The only difference in that trip and so-called luxury tours was the youngsters feel that they had more fun.

"They thought they were rich when they changed dollars for pesos," Knight said. It's 12 1/2 pesos per dollar. Knight, as treasurer, was sagging at the hip pockets.

The 20 graduates—10 others of the class didn't go, for one reason or another—turned the rear of the bus into racks for clothing and luggage. Many had never been very far from home before. For some it was their first stay in hotels and motels. Most of the daylight hours were devoted to traveling.

Here came Texas. It's getting so you can hardly go anywhere without running into Texas. Texans were hospitable. In Marshall recreational facilities were turned over to the group; in Harlingen everybody went to a baseball game. Local reporters trotted dutifully out to meet the party.

The teen-agers tried their first Mexican meat at Montemorelos and pronounced it hot—most of them switched promptly back to less fierce fare.

Lugging along their Spanish-English dictionaries, and with a smattering of conversational Spanish picked up in special classes at their high school last year, the Valley Parkers did fully as well as could be expected.

That fine and expressive bit of the fairly universal language showed up — the wolf whistle. Mexican men are reputed to regard women with some interest, and the high school girls from Valley Park occasionally gained the impression they had stumbled into a resort of mynah birds.

Some of these gallants kept referring to the girls with a bit of praise which may stem back to the old Castilian and, phonetically, would seem to be spelled "Pre-see Babe-ee."

"Hey, where are all the beautiful señoritas I've always read about?" inquired one teen-age

Valley Parker of Knight. "I thought they would be running around in droves."

Knight said it was entirely possible they locked them up when young gentlemen from the United States were in town.

THE trip was fun, yes, but quite often the laughter had a way of trailing off short. Low standard of living suddenly meant something more than a vague phrase used in dull texts. Poverty you actually see is unlike poverty you read about. And in places there was plenty of poverty.

"We didn't skip over anything," Superintendent Knight explained. "That was the idea, for the youngsters to get to know the country and its people. They saw skinny livestock and they saw men who worked all their life for tortillas and something to wear, with no hope of ever getting more."

At the opposite extreme was gaiety, festivals, fountains splashing happily in town squares and Mexican bands addicted to serenading anybody who will hold still—including a bevy of the girls who one night found themselves standing on a balcony while the serenaders below acted just like in the movies.

Driving was arduous; hairpin, and in some case paperclip, curves—one grade was 60 miles long, to an altitude of 7000 feet. Knight had to drive up in low gear, drive down again in low gear.

"The rear end of the bus sounded like it was frying after that," he said, but other than making sizzling noises, it proved to be a very co-operative bus. No large trouble, not even a flat. Nor were the youngsters any trouble, if anybody has been

It was a good thing that the long weekend came during such a hot spell, for many people were able to get to the country and find some relief. Our swimming pool has been in almost constant use. I don't think anything gives the children more comfort than being able to plunge into the pool and stay there for an hour at a time. They have a wonderful game they call "Red Rover" and that seems to take all their interest and energy for long periods of time.

OFF THE RECORD

announced last Sunday that in our policy at the Geneva Conference we would assume that the Soviet Union wanted primarily a reduction in the costs of its armaments. Of course, this is a case where we might have a chance to do some real bargaining if the Soviet Union had other things it considered even more important than spending on armaments. But it is a fair assumption that that will be one of the things that we can use as a bargaining point. We know that consumer goods have not been produced in sufficient quantities in the Soviet Union and that they are anxious to give their people more of the pleasures and comforts of life. This will be done, of course, and the efforts will be made to make it appear that they are giving something that no one could have except in the Soviet Union. This would not be true, as we all know, but one cannot blame them for trying to make it appear like a great advantage they are gaining over the Western powers.

appalled at the prospect of herding 20 teen-agers through Mexico.

"They were a cheerful, co-operative group," Knight said. "They learned travel etiquette early and followed it."

In various towns visited, the teen-agers usually would split up in groups, each group accompanied by an adult, and strike out to various points of interest. Everybody was supposed to be back in their rooms at the hotel or motel by 11 o'clock or so.

HISTORICAL points were visited, with planning beforehand—Knight, a believer in the follow-through method of education, is busy right now writing up the trip in pamphlet form and including a historical background of Mexico. Even the most history-resistant are bound to read with great interest about some place they, themselves, have seen, he feels.

The group sat in the bullfight arena and saw seven bulls exterminated, true and clean. Reaction to this form of endeavor was mixed—some of the group disliked bullfighting more than others.

This bunch of kids from Valley Park came back tired and happy and a lot more knowledgeable than when they left—they had seen things they never dreamed existed, and learned

Contract Bridge

IT IS an unpleasant fact, but nevertheless a fact, that some bridge hands resist the most skilled and scientific treatment—the slam that is actually a lay-down or the next thing to it, cannot be reached with reasonable degree of safety. Consider, for example, the deal below, which defied the efforts of a justly famous partnership.

South, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

Travel Here and Abroad
For Many St. Louisans

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

AMONG the St. Louisans who have departed recently for Europe are Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Pflager, 47 Westmoreland place, and their son, Godfrey, who sailed Friday from New York aboard the Nieuw Amsterdam. During their two-month stay abroad they will travel through England, France, Italy, Switzerland and Germany.

Mrs. Thomas Skinner Maffitt, 6340 Wydown boulevard, Clayton, is traveling through Europe after a visit in Naples, Italy, with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pierce Maffitt and their family. The date of her return is uncertain. Edward P. Maffitt, who is in the foreign service, is assigned to Naples.

Miss Ada Weld, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Garneau Weld, 9782 Litzinger road, Ladue, landed in New York Tuesday aboard the United States, concluding a four-month European trip. She is due home today. Miss Weld was preceded here several weeks ago by Miss Jean Drummond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Drummond, who went abroad with her.

Not only Europe but resorts in this country are attracting numerous St. Louis families. Friday the Austin Porter Lelands, 6443 Wydown boulevard, Clayton, will depart for Charlevoix, Mich., where they have been spending the summer for many years. They will be accompanied by their daughters, Miss Talbot, a debutante of next season, and Irene. They will occupy the cottage long in Mrs. Leland's family. Nearby is the cottage (both are near the Belvedere) occupied by Mr. Leland's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hume Gardner of Washington, who will be there all summer. Mrs. Gardner was Miss Florence Leland.

A longtime summer resident of Charlevoix is Mrs. Charles M. Rice, 1 Oak Knoll, Clayton, who has been at the resort for several weeks. Her daughter, Mrs. William N. Eisendrath Jr., 4930 Pershing avenue, is settled in her summer place just outside Charlevoix.

Mr. Eisendrath, assistant director of the City Art Museum, will spend August with his family. The Eisendraths' younger daughter, Miss Ellen, is attending summer school at Barnard College, New York, where she will be a sophomore in the fall. She has been selected for membership next year in the Student Service Organization. Members of the group serve as guides and hostesses to visitors at Barnard.

Miss Ann Eisendrath, who will be a junior next year at Tufts College, Medford, Mass., is enrolled at Washington University in the summer session. She, too, plans to spend the late summer in Charlevoix.

Mrs. C. Oscar Lamy, 629 South Skinker boulevard, is spending this week as Mrs. Rice's guest, en route to the Harbor Point clubhouse, Harbor Point, Mich., for the season.

Miss Ford Completes Wedding Plans.

MISS JEAN FORD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Ford, 8029 Davis drive, Clayton, has chosen Aug. 20 as the date of her marriage to Ronald E. Buesinger of Taylorville, Ill. The Church of the Immacolata will be the scene of the ceremony, to be performed at 11 o'clock in the morning by Bishop Leo C. Byrne. Mr. and Ford will give a reception afterward at Norwood Hills Country Club.

MISS FORD... TO BE AUGUST BRIDE.

Scenes—Vandervort-Barney Photographs.

The bride-to-be has asked her sister, Miss Joan Ford, to be maid of honor, with her sister-in-law, Mrs. James C. Ford of Cheyenne, Wyo., to be matron of honor. Another sister, Miss Mary Joy Ford, and Miss Catherine Underwood are to serve as bridesmaids. Jane Dolan will be flower girl for her cousin.

Mr. Buesinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest V. Buesinger of Taylorville, will have his brother, Richard L. Buesinger, as best man. Ushers will include his fiancée's brother, Sgt. James C. Ford, now stationed with the Air Force in Cheyenne, Wyo.; Preston Dilts of Springfield, Ill.; William Crowley of Chicago and James Joyce.

Claire Munson to Be Married.

MR. AND MRS. ALEXANDER L. MUNSON, 20 South Gore avenue, Webster Groves, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Claire Louise Munson, to Harry Carter Strauch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Strauch, 1223 Briarwood drive, Ladue. The wedding will take place next February.

Both families moved to St. Louis the summer of 1953, the Munsons from Port Washington, N.Y., and the Strauchs from Jenkintown, Pa. Miss Munson and her fiancé met at a garden party.

The bride-elect was graduated from high school in Port Washington and attended Smith College, where she participated in the orchestra and traveling choral group. She is an active member of the Webster Groves Theater Guild and Ladue Chapel.

Mr. Strauch is a senior at Lehigh University majoring in industrial engineering, and a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. At graduation he will be commissioned in the Air Force and will go on active duty as a pilot. He was graduated from Jenkintown High School, where he played football and also basketball as a member of the state championship team.

Miss Munson is the sister of Ens. Alexander Lee Munson of the Coast Guard, Miss Andrea Lee, Miss Jeanne Anne, Lawrence Henry and Miss Karen Geer Munson. The prospective bridegroom has two brothers, Charles Scureman and Daniel Mark Strauch.

Miss Maley, Mr. Eberle Plan Wedding.

THE marriage of Miss Barbara Jean Maley and Richard George Eberle, whose engagement was announced last January, will take place Sept. 3 at St. Roch's Church. The ceremony will be performed at 11 o'clock that morning by a brother of the prospective bridegroom, the Rev. Francis L. Eberle. Later Miss Maley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mark A. Maley, 6058 Westminster place, will give a breakfast at the Missouri Athletic Club.

Miss Maley will have Miss Sally Reilly as maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Elizabeth Byrnes, Miss Dorothy Kane, a cousin; Miss Mary Rose Driscoll and Mrs. Donald W. Maley, a sister-in-law, Franklin, O.

Mr. Eberle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Eberle, 604 North Woodlawn avenue, Kirkwood, will be attended by a brother, Thomas P. Eberle, as best man, and another brother, Arthur J. Eberle Jr., Anniston, Ala.; the prospective bride's brothers, Mark Jr. and Donald Maley; Edward L. Massey, Donald Kueser and Jerry Waddock.

A series of pre-wedding parties is being planned for the bride-elect. They will be announced later.

Their Engagements Announced

THE congregation of First Presbyterian Church gave a reception for the pastor, the Rev. Robert I. Long Jr., and Mrs. Long Sunday afternoon, June 26, in the Sunday School room of the church. The occasion was the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of the guests of honor.

Silver and white were emphasized in the decorations. The tea table, covered with lace, was decorated with white candles in silver containers, silver vases filled with white carnations, gladioluses and stock, and silver trays of cakes and mints.

Louis C. Hoppe was in charge of the program, which consisted of singing favorite songs and the presentation of a gift of silver dollars to the Longs. Mrs. Paul Heil, on behalf of the Women's Association of the church, presented a large photograph of the Rev. Mr. Long, which is to hang in the new educational building.

Out-of-town guests at the party included Mrs. Long's father, Campbell B. Sweet, Fulton, Mo.; the Rev. Mr. Long's sister, Mrs. Harold Hoeglund of Yakima, Wash., and her five children, and the Longs' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Shoup of Houston, Tex., and their son, Michael Jr.

The Rev. and Mrs. Long and their children, Robert III, Miss Sweet Long and James Campbell Long, departed last Thursday for Humboldt, Tenn., accompanied by Mrs. Hoeglund and her family, for a family reunion at the home of the Rev. Mr. Long's mother, Mrs. Robert I. Long Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Cole, 25 Royal place, and her son, Jacky, have gone to Bonham, Tex., to visit his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Cole, at their ranch. The Coles' daughter, Miss Patricia, is at Camp Greystone, N.C., with Mary Institute classmates and is expected home Aug. 15.

Miss La Cossitt Bride-Elect of
T. P. Trinkaus Jr.

ANNOUNCEMENT of the engagement of Miss Margaret La Cossitt to Theodore Phillip Trinkaus Jr. has been made by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry La Cossitt of New York.

Miss La Cossitt is the niece of Mrs. Albert E. Mudkins and Dr. Joseph B. Bounds of St. Louis; E. Edward Bounds of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Bryan Wilson, Bement, Ill. Her grandparents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Wilson of Mexico, Mo., the late Henry D. La Cossitt, Shreveport, La., and the late Mrs. Edward H. Bounds, Hannibal, Mo. The bride-elect was graduated from Horace Mann School and the Brearley School in New York and from Bradford (Mass.) Junior College. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Theodore P. Trinkaus of Stamford, Conn., and the late Mrs. Trinkaus. He is an alumnus of Brunswick Preparatory School, Greenwich, Conn., now serving with the Army stationed at Fort Jay, Governor's Island, N.Y. His fraternity is Delta Tau Delta.

Dear Martha:

I AM a 22-year-old married woman. My husband and I went out on our own after living with my parents, and we made a failure of it. We are literally broke. My parents gave us $10 to last us till pay day. My husband has spent $7.50 of it already. He won't sit down and talk over money matters with me. He always avoids the subject. LOST.

Readers are requested to keep their letters short when writing to Martha Carr. For a personal reply enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope with the letter you send to Martha Carr, in care of the Post-Dispatch. Letters of a medical or legal nature cannot be answered.

If you can, give him whatever money he feels he needs for expenses, plus a little more for spending, and you budget and pay out the rest. He won't have nice in-laws around always who will dish out $10 bills, and the earlier he finds that out, the better. My suggestion to you is to seek professional help on the problem. Ask the Family and Children's Service to help you work out a budget and advise you on how to persuade your husband to stay within it.

Dear Martha:

I HAVE TWO GRANDDAUGHTERS, one a college freshman, the other in high school. They received gifts from friends for graduation and never said "thank you" until months later. My niece came from California and she brought the girls some beautiful things but they didn't thank her. I talked with them and they said if they thanked her now, it was too obvious that they forgot. I am very embarrassed. CONSTANT READER.

It's always embarrassing to a courteous, thoughtful person to realize that a member of her family is too impolite even to acknowledge gifts. But I'm afraid this is one of those situations over which you have little control. Nagging might get grudging gratitude from the girls, but the time for instilling ordinary courtesy has long since passed. I believe all you can do at this point is to make sure that you express appreciation whenever the girls receive gifts and hope your own sense of what is right will somehow get through to them. They're in for some hard licks in life if they haven't yet learned the basic courtesies.

Dear Martha:

WHAT ABOUT THE GIRL who has had to earn her daily bread like most of us, then marries a fine fellow who gives her the necessities of life, but still by some quirk of the imagination she thinks she should have more? What's the poor guy to do when he goes to work full of worry? We want our wives to have the best and we are going to do all in our power to give it to them. The glamour gal is all right for movies or television. But we want a nice quiet home and a nice girl who if we love her is beautiful. A trip to the beauty parlor won't break anyone, but to actually live there, to be afraid to dirty lily white hands and then wonder why there isn't more money, brother, I'm stumped! FOOL.

Martha Carr has compiled a list of baby names for both boys and girls. For your free copy write to her at the Post-Dispatch, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What to Wear

By Louise Trescott

WOMEN traveling alone wonder about clothes, particularly formal attire. Many assume that because they are alone, dressing for dinner is not required. It all depends on the place. "In-My-Sixties" asks if evening clothes are compulsory when traveling first class:

LOUISE TRESCOTT

"I am going to Europe in September on the S.S. United States, first class. I am wondering whether an evening dress is compulsory equipment. At my age, and because I shall be traveling alone, and also because I want to keep my luggage as light as possible, I thought perhaps I need not bother. "If it is practically compulsory to have an evening dress along, would black velvet be suitable? I have very little use for this sort of thing and do not want to invest in another formal, if I can avoid it."

AN EVENING DRESS isn't exactly compulsory, traveling first class, but you will find most people will dress for dinner to some extent. Only occasionally one or two hardy souls turn up who do not, and they are usually men.

You certainly need not dress in a strictly formal full-length gown every night. Street-length conservative dinner gowns are completely acceptable and may be of use elsewhere in your travels, especially if equipped with jackets.

If your black velvet has good lines and you feel good in it, take that, too. If not, don't. Don't clutter your trip with a dress that has lost its glamour.

Beauty After 40

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

THE woman of handsome Junoesque proportions often tries to camouflage her legs by wearing dark-toned stockings. Some think that the sheerest hosiery would flatter by giving a bare-legged look. Still others turn to wearing highly ornate shoes and fancy stockings in a sort of spirit of "I don't care."

The best and smartest way to dress your Junoesque legs is to wear simple, full-fashioned nylons in one of the popular fashion-accepted shades. A soft beige with a pencil-slim seam in the back, which slenderizes the legs, is recommended. The narrow heel reinforcement is especially slimming to the ankle.

WOMEN WITH LARGER LEGS must use special care in selecting the size and shades in their nylons. The foot size and the leg length are of equal importance. I believe in the nylon tops. They give greater stretch and resiliency and, wonder of wonders, they stop runs before they get a running start!

One manufacturer designs nylons with an almost invisible nylon toe-ring to stop toe runs and if you wear open-toe sandals this is a particularly attractive feature.

I WANT TO STRESS especially that the handsome Juno types should not lower their hemlines and feel self-conscious about their legs. The straight hem, without fancy trimming, is the most flattering. Wide skirts are good if you are the type for them.

Dress your legs and feet simply and neatly, and be careful to select stocking shades which harmonize with your outfit. The classic opera pump and the simple open-toe sandal are the best choice in shoes. And consider your height in selecting heels.

A Women's-Eye View of Politics

Esther Van Wagoner Tufty Reports From Washington for Over 300 Papers

By Mary Kimbrough

ESTHER VAN WAGONER TUFTY is a tall, blonde, Junoesque individual with a hearty laugh, a heartier handshake, and a speaking acquaintance with big wheels in Washington and crowned heads in Europe, and a sparkling career which she built from point zero. She became a Washington newspaper correspondent before she had ever set foot in that city.

Today, 20 years later, she is one of the nation's top news analysts. She heads the Tufty News Bureau in Washington and what she writes appears in more than 300 newspapers, both in the United States and abroad. In addition, she has conducted a number of her own radio shows, is an NBC-TV news commentator appearing each week on NBC's "Home Show" which is telecast by KSD-TV. She also owns a half-interest in five newspapers, including one in Sedalia, Mo.

Mrs. Tufty came back to her native Midwest—she calls it the nation's "barometer"—recently to address the national convention of Theta Sigma Phi, professional journalism fraternity for women, the Advertising Club of St. Louis and the Women's Advertising Club. But in addition to talking about Washington, she was catching up on the news.

A native of Kingston, Mich., she counts herself "fortunate" to have been born in the Midwest because "I feel this is more American than any other part of the country. It is free from regional prejudice. Out here, people take their work seriously, but not themselves."

"You can't be a good Washington correspondent unless you get out of Washington."

But Mrs. Tufty, sister of former Michigan governor Murray D. Van Wagoner, found out a lot about being a Washington correspondent before she ever got there. Editor of an Evanston (Ill.) paper when her former husband, an electrical engineer, was transferred to Washington, she decided to take her career with her.

"My brother told me I couldn't very well become managing editor of a Washington newspaper, so why not round up some papers in Michigan and report to them on the national scene. I got 26 papers signed up right away, and that was the start of the Tufty News Bureau. It reports for papers both in this country and overseas, ranging from the giant London Mirror to the Three Rivers (Mich.) Commercial with 5000 circulation."

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

ESTHER VAN WAGONER TUFTY
THEIR WORK SERIOUSLY, BUT NOT THEMSELVES.

HER ASSIGNMENTS to herself have taken her throughout the world. She was the only newspaperwoman traveling with Thomas E. Dewey's campaign party in 1944 and was injured in the wreck of the nominee's train at Castle Rock, Wash. During the London blitz of World War II, she spoke, wrote and broadcast from target areas under auspices of the British government. Last December, she was entertained by Queen Juliana while she was in Holland as judge of a contest in which the Dutch people annually honor an American reporter for the year's best "Dutch" story.

But Washington has been her principal beat and through the years she has watched the political currents swirl. And because she is a reporter, with more interest in what's going on around her than in herself, an interview with Esther Tufty is apt to turn into a behind-the-scenes look at Washington.

THESE ARE AMONG her predictions and observations:

She's "one of the few" to believe President Eisenhower won't run again.

"I have burritis, too," she laughed, "so I know what he's going through. But, seriously, he is conscious of the fact that he will be 66 at the next election. Add four years to that, and he won't have much time to spend at Gettysburg."

"I'm sure Mrs. Eisenhower isn't anxious for more of this.

I traveled on their train during the campaign and I had a chance to know her well."

"However, if I'm wrong and the same two presidential nominees run again, excitement will be over the vice presidency. Eisenhower definitely will want Nixon to be his running mate. "But at the Republican convention, I look for fireworks over the selection of a vice president, and I think there will be large followings for Clare Boothe Luce and Margaret Chase Smith. "Mrs. Luce will get the big money. She wants to be the Number One woman, and the only one in her way is Senator Smith. Margaret has a real, substantial following. She has the kind of liberalism that won't annoy the party."

THOUGH SHE OPERATES in a professional world peopled mostly by men, Mrs. Tufty has kept a sharp eye on the progress of women in politics and gives them a boost whenever she gets the chance.

"It's an unintelligent deduction that because we have only a handful of women in Congress today, women aren't interested in what is going on in government and public affairs. Remember, there are between 300 and 500 women in lower level jobs."

"There are several reasons, of course, why women haven't taken a more important and prominent role in politics. One is at the nominating level. If there is a good candidate in opposition, the party leaders aren't apt to put up a woman. Also, the pressure groups won't get behind them. And as long as we have nominations made in smoke-filled rooms, women won't hold such high offices as the vice presidency."

"Until a woman has reached the age of less responsibility in her personal life, she can't very well enter politics. If her children are grown and married and if she has kept up with the world, then she's ready to seek public office."

"But I'll tell you one very good reason why more men than women are in high political office: The women in politics, unlike her husband, has no little woman at home to help."

Hot Again After Brief Break

Department of Commerce

Low Temperatures and Areas of Precipitation Expected Tonight

Weather conditions as of 1:30 a.m., C.D.T., July 7.
Temperature figures show averages for area. Arrows denote wind flow; shaded areas indicate rain.
Barometric highs and lows in inches.

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

St. Louis's string of six consecutive plus 90-degree days was ended yesterday by cloudy skies and light rain, but Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren said hot and humid weather would continue today and tomorrow. He predicted a possibility of thundershowers.

Rainfall measuring .03 of an inch here yesterday brought the month's total to date to 1.84 inches and 18.06 for the year.
This puts precipitation .92 of an inch ahead for the first seven days of July, but 4.41 inches behind normal for the year.

Showers and thundershowers were general in the state in the 24-hour period ended early today with rainfall of more than an inch chiefly in the southeastern section. Rain was reported in the eastern half of the nation with heavy falls of 2.67 inches at Columbus, O.; 2.65 at International Falls, Minn., and more than an inch in scattered areas.
Temperatures ranged in Missouri this morning from 64 at Farmington and Kirksville to 77 at Kansas City, and over the nation from 28 at Fraser, Colo., to 81 at Corpus Christi and Galveston, Tex. Yesterday's high was 108 at Gila Bend, Ariz.

Wahlgren pointed out that St.
Louis had had eight plus 90-degree days this year as compared with 126 at this time last year, 36 in 1953 and 31 in 1952.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

TODAY we shall have further questions about tri-lobites, also a few questions about other forms of life in early periods of the earth's history.

Q. Did trilobites have eyes?
A. The fossils of some of them indicate that they had eyes of a crude sort. Each trilobite had a pair of feelers.

Q. What did they eat?
A. It is believed that they ate several kinds of small sea animals, including sponges and shellfish. Very likely they also fed on seaweeds.

Q. Were trilobites "the greatest animals in the world" during the Cambrian Period?
A. That honor usually is given to them. It appears, however, that the largest kinds of tri-lobites failed to reach a weight of more than 10 pounds. Some of the smaller kinds weighed less than one ounce.

Q. Did trilobites live only during the Cambrian Period?
A. No, they kept an important place during later periods, including the Silurian and the Devonian. They died out during the Permian Period, according to the record of the rocks.

Q. What caused the end of the trilobite race?
A. The rise of powerful enemies. Among these were the cephalopods and fish.

A cephalopod (pronounced SEF-uh-lo-pod) of early times had a curling shell in which it could hide. When ready to attack, it sent several "arms" outward and grasped the object which it wanted to eat. Often this object was a trilobite. The victim was drawn toward the mouth, and then was crushed.

At the present day, vast ages later, there still are cephalopods in the ocean. Among these are

the chambered nautilus, the squid and the octopus.
